POLICE SEEKING LIQUOR IN HOME SHOOT MAN, 64

Vance de Louhe Wounded in Arm Resisting Raid by Patrolmen Who Had No Warrant.

RAIDERS REPORT FINDING WHISKY

Previous Search of Injured Man's Residence March 17 Disclosed Supply of Prohibition Contraband.

Vance De Louhe, 64 years old, a retired master machinist, of 5912 Water street, was wounded in the right arm today in an exchange of shots with Carondelet District police who traced an odor of liquor to his premises and went there to investigate.

De Louhe said the police demanded admittance to his home and told him no search warrant was needed, but this was denied by Capt. Hoffman of the Carondelet District. Liquor was confiscated in and around the house, and De Louhe and his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary McBride, weer arrested.

Two bullets from polive revolvers fractured De Louhe's right elbow. A third bruised his left side. He was taken to City Hospital.

At 10:30 a. m., Sergeant Charles Welsch and aPtrolman Ivan Watts, who were in a department automobile in the 5900 block of Water street, detected an alcoholic odor. They left the car and traced the odor to the premises at 5912. Patrolman Elmer Steinheufel, walking that beat, came along then and the three entered the yard.

Where the Stories Vary.

The accounts of what followed differ.

"Mrs. McBride and I had just finished a late breakfast," De Louhe told reporters, "when a sergeant and several other policemen appeared at the front door and demanded admittance. I asked them if they had a search warrant and they said they didn't need one. I slammed the door in their faces.

"Then a policeman looked in a window and said something about breaking in. I showed him a shotgun and he went away. Then he fired through the wall at me and I fired back. Things quieted down and I thought the cops were gone, so I went out into the yard to repair a flat-boat, taking my shotgun along.

"A policeman fired at me and I fired back and re-entered the house and reloaded the shotgun. Then they fired through the wall at me, breaking my elbow, and come into the house."

Hospital physicians said De Louhe had been drinking. He admitted taking a "bracer" after he had been wounded.

The Police Account.

"When we smelled the liquor coming from De Louhe's place I decided to see him and inquire about his conduct, as we had found liquor in his shed on St. Patrick's day," Sergt. Welsch reported. "When I stepped up to his door, De Louhe grabbed a shotgun, pointed it out a window at Patrolman Steinheufel and said: 'You meddlesome —, get out of here.'

"He fired twice at Steinheufel. We went around to the back yard and he came out and leveled the shotgun at us. I told him to put it down, but he fired twice. Then he ran back into the house and locked the door.

"Patrolman Watts had gone for reserves, and we were waiting for them, when he fired through a wall at us. We fired back. Then Mrs. McBride ran out and said: 'He'll give up. He's shot.' We went into the house and arrested them."

Sergt. Welsch reported finding three shotguns in the house. In the house, in the yard and in a cesspool under a shed, a five-gallon demijohn and a quart or alleged whisky, 64 quarts and 56 pints of alleged beer, three crocks and a quantity of bottle caps were confiscated.

Lyman Chalkley Jr. Wants $100,000 for Damage to Health During Experiments.

By the Associated Press.

MARSHAL DESTROYS 14,400 QUARTS OF PRE-WAR WHISKY

It Belonged to George Remus and Its Bootleg Value Was $300,000.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11.—Destruction of the W. P. Squibb whisky stock, with a bootleg valuation of $300,000, was begun here today by Linus P. Meredith, United States Marshal. There are 14,400 quarts of the contraband liquor.

A mandate from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago affirming a destruction order of the Indiana District Court, was sent to Meredith today. The mandate was not delivered to the Marshal at the time it was received from Chicago because of an investigation into the theft of 330 cases from the padlocked stock.

Three Negro employes of the Federal Building recently confessed to participation in the liquor removal, while another Negro and a white man were indicted for parts in the same theft. Yesterday District Judge Baltzell granted a petition of Albert Ward, District Attorney, asking that the liquor be poured out.

The Squibb whisky was seized at Lawrenceburg, Ind., in 1921, and the following year brought to Indianapolis and stored in the Federal Building. There was originally 1453 cases in the stock, which prohibition officers say is the last pre-war whisky in Indiana.

This whisky was the property of George Remus, notorious bootlegger, and was declared contraband by the Government.

PLANES WRECKED IN MID-AIR, FLYERS SAVED BY PARACHUTES

Officers Engaged in Machine-Gun Maneuvers Collide Coming Out of a Nose Dive.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., May 11.—Although both machines were wrecked, Majs. Harold E. Geiger and Harold M. Hickam, student aviators at Langley Field, escaped unhurt in parachutes after their pursuit planes had collided at an altitude of 250 feet. Both made perfect landings.

The officers were engaged in bombing and machine-gun maneuvers over Langley Field and were flyin gtheir single-seaters in formation, with Sergeant James Lee in a third plane. At the time of the crash the three planes were coming out of a nose dive, following a simulated attack upon a bombing plane at an elevation of 3000 feet.

Geiger's plane struck the tail of Hickam's, cutting it off, while one of the wings on Geiger's plane was smashed. Both attempted to right their planes as they drew apart, but found it imposible.

Maj. Hickam fell backward from his plane, while Maj. Geiger succeeded in jumping.

GOODMAN KING, FORMER JEWELRY FIRM HEAD, DIES

Succumbs to Heart Disease at Home — He Suffered First Illness of His Life Two Months Ago.

ADMITTED TO BAR AFTER RETIREMENT

When Fire Razed Store During 1897 Holidays, He Bought Out Business of Rival Over Night.

Goodman King, former president of Mermod, Jaccard & King, jewelers in St. Louis for 97 years, died of heart disease at 6 a. m. today at his home, 78 Vandeventer place.

Two months ago the first illness of his life forced him to absent himself from his law office for a week. A month ago he became more seriously ill and since had not been downtown. His condition became worse within the last few days.

No one, not even members of his family, knows his age. It is thought that he was about 79. A favorite answer to inquiry on the subject was, even in his latter years: "Oh, about 39." Upon his retirement from the jewelry firm in 1917, he took up the study of law in night school. During that period his answer on his age was: "I am the youngest man in my class." Though he was then past 70, he completed a four-year course in two years and was admitted to the bar in 1919.

Bought Out Store Over Night.

Twenty-five years ago, Mr. King was considered a spectacular business man and one feat attracted the attention of the entire country. Just as the Christmas rush of 1897 was beginning—on Saturday night, Dec. 19—fire destroyed the Jaccard building at Broadway and Locust street. It was a complete sweep. Only ashes remained.

Over Sunday, Mr. King bought out the business of a chief competitor, the Kurtzeborn Jewelry Co., across the street, and when the business day dawned Monday, Mermod, Jaccard & King were ready, under the old name, for business as usual.

His family recalled today that, so far as St. Louis is concerned, King created the bureau of information, coining the name. Jaccard's was so widely known outside of St. Louis that visitors usually sought it for information of all kinds. They checked their parcels at Jaccard's and took Jaccard's advice on where to buy the things that Jaccard's didn't sell. King eventually created with the jewelry company, a bureau prepared to answer questions of every sort. He established the first "white way" in the city—between Washington avenue and Chestnut street, along Broadway.

Was Born in England.

It became necessary, at one time, to raise money to enlarge the old exposition building that stood on the site of the Public Library. If the purpose of the meeting was disclosed, it was feared, there would be no attendance. Also, if some good reason for attending was not given, there would be no attendance. "Leave it to me," Mr. King said. He sent out invitations to business men with money. To each he appended: "As a vice-president, you are requested to occupy a place on the stage." More than 500 men turned out and the money was raised.

Mr. King was born in Sussex, England, and came to St. Louis in 1865. He worked for Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney for four days. He read an advertisement of Mermod & Jaccard for a bookkeeper and applied. He knew nothing about bookkeeping. He was asked whether he was a bookkeeper. "I can take care of the books," he replied. Upon being employed, he took the books of the company home each night and, with the help of a friend, who was employed at a business school, he kept up the books until he mastered the rules of accounting.

Promoted Civic Interests.

During his 52 years with the jewelry firm, he returned his savings to the business so that, at the time of its consolidation with Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney in 1917, he and his son, Clarence Hopkins King, owned 42 per cent of its stock. Mr. King retired from the business at this time, leaving his son in charge of their interests. Clarence King still is a vice president of the company, though he relinquished active connection last year.

In recent years Mr. King interested himself in organized promotion of civic interests. In 1916, he

TWO MEN FOUND SLAIN IN ILLINOIS STORE

Proprietor Dead Behind Counter; Revolver at Feet of Clerk on Floor.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., May 11.—Carl Howerter, 32 years old, part owner of a general store, and Frank Jones, 37, clerk in the store, at Smithfield, in the west part of Fulton County, were found shot to death in the store this morning.

Howerter's body was behind the counter while that of Jones was lying in the center of the room with a bullet wound in the head. A large caliber revolver was lying at Jones' feet.

The cause of the shooting could not be learned but relatives said there had been trouble between the two men for some time and at times heated arguments occurred.

According to Jones' mother, who lives across the street Jones opened the store as usual at 6:30 o'clock. Shortly afterward several shots were heard but as far as can be learned no one investigated.

Mrs. Howerter, widow of the slain man, went to the store for supplies at 7:30 and found the door locked. With ht chelp of several men the door was broken down and the bodies found. An inquest will be held today. Howerter was the father of four children. Jones was unmarried.

By the Associated Press.

Sergeant Smith and two patrolmen arrested Miss Halley last night in a Garden of Eden scene in "Bunk of 1926." She had danced under a canvas tree while smaller Eves wandered through the aisles and dropped apples into the laps of men. Sergeant Smith said Miss Halley was not wearing tights.

The manager of the Broadhurst Theater and the stage manager also were arrested.

Quits King's Bay on 2000-Mile Hop to Take Three Days—Seeks Link Between Europe, Asia and America.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OSEO, Norway, May 11.—The Amundsen-Ellsworth dirigible, Norge, started on its flight to the North Pole and Alaska at 10:10 o'clock this morning, says a message from King's Bay, Spitzbergen (10:10 a. m. in King's Bay is 3:06 a. m. in St. Louis).

A wireless message received from Amundsen at 11:45 o'clock this morning said:

"Now flying across the polar ice. The expedition sends its best thanks to the Premier (of Norway) for his kindly telegram received immediately before the start."

It was officially announced that Amundsen will take possession of any land found during the voyage in the name of the King of Norway.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Ideal weather conditions for a trans-Polar flight are prevailing in the Arctic, according to the United States Weather Bureau. Abnormally high pressure is reported from both Spitzbergen and Alaska. This indicates that clear, cold weather, with little wind, prevails along the line of flight of the Norge, although less favorable conditions may occur near the Pole.

Amundsen Hunting Land to Link Europe, Asia and America.

ROALD AMUNDSEN, the explorer, and Lincoln Ellsworth, his companion on their unsuccessful attempt to reach the North Pole by airplane last year, hope primarily to discover land during the flight of their Italian-built dirigible Norge. Amundsen has pointed out that it is only 2000 miles from Spitzbergen to Alaska and that the discovery of even a small piece of land near the top of the world would afford a connecting link between America and Europe and Asia.

Under the plans outlined by Amundsen, the Norge will fly almost in a straight line across the Pole and through the center of the unexplored region of the Arctic area in the Polar Sea. The leaders of the expedition have estimated that it will take three days to fly from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, to Point Barrow, Alaska.

Col. Nobile Commands Ship.

The first pilot of the Norge is Col. Umberto Nobile, the Italian aviation officer who superintended her construction and who flew her successfully from Rome across Europe to England, thence to Norway and Leningrad and finally to Spitzbergen, from which point Lieutenant-Commander Byrd made his airplane flight to the North Pole.

Among the flyers whom Amundsen planned to take on the trip to the pole were Lieut. Hjalmer Riiser-Larsen, Lieut. Oscar Omdahl, Capt. Oscar Wisting and Lieut. Gustave Amundsen, a nephew of the explorer. All these men had been on previous polar expeditions. Ellsworth is the only American member of the flying crew.

One of the gravest dangers which Amundsen has recognized is the difficulty of landing in the polar area, and it was for this reason chiefly that he decided to use a dirigible instead of an airplane in the belief that the dirigible can be

SIX ROBBERS GET $20,000 IN HOLDUP OF OHIO BANK

Cashier of Depository at Sidney Forced to Open Vault as Day's Business Begins.

By the Associated Press.

SIDNEY, O., May 11.—Six armed men robbed the First National Bank here of $20,000 just as it opened today and escaped in an automobile in the direction of Cincinnati.

While two robbers kept the automobile ready and one guarded the door, three others threatened employes with revolvers, compelled Cashier Cummins to open the vault from which they scooped bundles of currency, and sped away.

Pursuit was organized by police in nearby towns.

NEW YORK-TEXAS AIR MAIL

Rail Time Reduced More Than Half by New Service.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—More than 34 hours will be knocked off the mail schedule between New York and Dallas, Tex., with the inauguration tomorrow of the new contract air mail route Number 3, out of Chicago. The new route will put Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, Wichita, Kansas City, and St. Joseph, and points adjacent to those cities in overnight postal communication with New York.

The flying time between Dallas and New York is expected to be slightly under 22 hours as compared to rail time of 56¾ hours.

The mail will be carried between New York and Chicago over the Government owned trans-continental air mail route. Between Chicago and the Southwestern points, the mail will be carried by an air service with which the Government has contracted. The postal rate over the route will be 15c an ounce. Of this the Government will receive 5c and the contractor 10c.

The new airplane was the tenth and last Curtiss-Pigeon to arrive. Jones piloted a Curtiss-Pigeon into Kansas City on the Ford reliability tour. He brought also a Curtiss plane into Kansas City for the American Legion flying circus in 1921.

MOVE TO STOP STRIKE BY COMPROMISE TO BE MADE IN COMMONS

HOPES FOR SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE CAUSE RISE ON LONDON EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 11.

THE Stock Exchange today showed indications of confidence that an early settlement of the general strike is in sight.

Gilt edged securities were quoted at a slightly higher price in anticipation of renewed buying when it is officially announced that the strike has been settled. There were plenty of buyers for home rails, rubber and some of the speculative favorites. In the exchange market, New York transfers of pounds, which had been quoted at 4.85 9-16, rose to 4.85 13-16.

CREW QUITS AND PREVENTS SHIP'S LEAVING NEW YORK

Walkout on Sandgate Castle Caused by Striking Marine Branch of the I. W. W.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Barber Line freighter, Sandgate Castle, which was to have sailed today for Capetown via Philadelphia, with a general cargo, was detained when its crew quit work in sympathy with the British general strike at the instigation of the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union.

It was the first vessel to be held up since the union, a branch of the Industrial Workers of the World, declared a strike at midnight Sunday for a flat $15-a-month wage increase for all grades.

In addition, the union claimed a complete walkout of four oil tankers and an American freighter. Of the ships mentioned by the union, the Standard Oil tanker Charles Pratt sailed on schedule for Talara, Peru; another Standard Oil tanker, the W. S. Teagle, is tied up for 30 days' repairs at Bayonne, N. J., and officers of the Pan-American Petroleum Co. tanker Herman Bridge and the Bull Line freighter Clare denied their crews had quit.

COOLIDGE VIEW OF BIG STRIKE

President Thinks Stoppage of British Production May Affect U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—If the general strike in England continues, President Coolidge fears it will have an adverse effect upon American commerce.

While there might be some temporary gain through American concerns taking up orders that British companies could not fill, the White House indicated a belief today that such a gain would be more than offset by the consequences upon American business of a long stoppage of production in England.

BERLIN AND SKYSCRAPERS

Eighty-Foot Height Fixed as Limit on the Unter der Linden.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 11.—"No skyscrapers for Unter der Linden" is the slogan proposed by the Berlin Building Commission.

The City Council instituted a prize contest for the best plan to reconstruct the well-known boulevard so as to adapt it to modern requirements without robbing it of its general historical aspect. Even the best of the plans were so fantastic that the alteration originally intended was given up. The commission compromised by increasing the maximum height of buildings on Unter der Linden from 60 to 80 feet.

TOMMIES TO LOSE MUTTON STEW

Roast Beef and Sausage Instead for British Army.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 11.—Mutton stew, along with lamb chops and roast mutton, has been crossed off the menu of the British army, as a measure of economy.

By ceasing to supply mutton, the War Office has found that it can save thousands of pounds a year. This kind of meat will not appear in the army mess again until it becomes much cheaper. Roast and boiled beef and sausages will be served instead.

GENERAL CUBAN RAIL STRIKE

Havana Power-House Employes Also Quit Work.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 11.—A general railway strike, in sympathy with the striking Cuba Railroad employes, went into effect last night.

The walkout by the employes of the Havana central electric power-house threw the neighboring town of Guanabacoa into darkness.

Sir John Simon to Propose Continuance of Subsidy and Return to Pre-Walkout Status.

UNIONS ORDER OUT 350,000 MORE MEN

Trades Council Recesses While Ramsay MacDonald Goes From Meeting to Parliament.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 11.—Sir John Simon, a former Attorney-General, will initiate a move in Parliament shortly for settlement of the general strike.

Sir John, replying to Sir Henry Slesser's speech of yesterday, in the House of Commons today maintained his previous contention that the strike was illegal. He declared, however, as both the Trades Union Congress and the Government appeared to be afraid to move for fear of displaying weakness, he and some of his friends proposed to assume the responsibility.

They would place on the order paper a resolution for an early date asking Commons to put on record its view that if and when conditions became satisfactory, the Government ought to announce its willingness to give brief temporary assistance to the coal industry.

The essential first condition, he continued, was the unqualified calling off of the general strike. Secondly, there should be a resumption of work in the mines, with the owners paying the old rates of wages. Third, the Government should carry out the recommendations of the Royal Coal Commission.

(A summary of this report will be found on Page 17 of toda's Post-Dispatch.)

Must Accept Entire Report.

Lastly, there ought to be the essential condition that those speaking for the miners and mine owners should give definite undertakings that they would negotiate on the basis of the contents of the Coal Commission's report, without excluding anything contained in it.

The British Worker, the labor organ, announced late today that the workers in shipyards and engineering shops would be called out tonight.

The British Worker says that the order applies to all unions in the engineering and shipbuilding trades affiliated with the Trades Union Congress, but does not apply to men engaged in work at the Government dock yards, admiralty establishments or Government engineering works. The engineering and shipbuilding trades which would be affected number approximately 350,000 workers.

Strikers' Council Recesses.

After an hour's discussion of the strike situation at a special meeting early this evening the Trades Union Congress adjourned until later in the evening.

Former Labor Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who was present at the meeting, in the meanwhile went to the House of Commons.

The general feeling of those connected with the meeting was that the atmosphere of peace had been improved. One rumor had it that J. H. Thomas, one of the labor leaders, had found a promising peace formula.

Peace negotiations in the general strike can be definitely said to be going on under the surface. They have not yet reached an official status, but a man high in the labor ranks stated late today that parleys were proceeding. He said it was possible that something definite would be forthcoming tomorrow, but emphasized that nothing definite was in sight now.

A spokesman for the strikers announced that he understood the Government has placed an embargo on any foreign funds which might be sent to the British strikers.

Government Sees No End Yet.

A Government communique, issued at 7 p. m., said:

"There is as yet little sign of general collapse of the strike, and the Trades Union Congress is believed to be making efforts to call out certain trades still at work.

"It can be definitely stated that there is growing disaffection among the strikers with the policy of the

LLOYD GEORGE URGES STRIKE SETTLEMENT BY COMPROMISE

Former Premier in Commons Insists That Proposals of Archbishop of Canterbury Are Fair.

'BAD POLICY TO TALK OF BREAKING UNIONS'

Strike Can't Be Ended Except on Some Such Terms as Suggested, He Declares in Stormy Debate.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, May 11.—All general strike developments yesterday were overshadowed by Former Premier Lloyd George's speech in the House of Commons supporting the Archbishop of Canterbury's suppressed appeal, on behalf of the Christian churches, for a compromise settlement.

In the midst of a debate which aroused an unprecedented storm of rage among the Tories, the former Premier, speaking in a manner reminiscent of his battles before the war, when he was the champion of radicalism, shouted in reference to Chancellor Churchill's methods of running the official British Gazette:

"It is a bad policy to talk of breaking the trade unions like a potter's vessel."

The liberal leader insisted that the Archbishop's proposals were fair. They were: First, calling off the general strike; second, renewal of the Government subsidy to the coal industry to keep mine wages at the old level pending negotiation; third, withdrawal by the mine owners of the wage reductions which precipitated the strike.

A member of the strikers' general council declared this acceptable if the third point were to read "withdrawal of the coal owners' lockout notices."

"Churches Largely Alienated."

The Government, declared Lloyd George, by ignoring and refusing to print this plan, drawn up at Lambeth Palace Friday in a meeting with the Archbishop of York, leaders of the free churches and Cardinal Bourne for the Catholics, "has alienated to a large extent the Christian churches from the Government."

"I predict," he added, "that this dispute cannot be settled except upon some such terms as suggested in the recommendation of the churches, without most incalculable disaster."

As soon as the Tory benches realized he was pleading for a compromise peace, the uproar began, increased as the speaker continued. Again and again, facing the howling Tory side, the former Premier declared he was only trying to save the country from ruin.

"Sedition,' "defeatist," "mischief," yelled the Conservative members, leaping to their feet. Lloyd George had not faced such a House since 1914, but he had not forgotten how. Without wavering a moment, he silenced his foes by saying:

"I have done my share to save the nation from disaster. None of you can say he has done more. Remember we are not fighting a foreign foe now."

Ex-Premier's Greatest Ordeal.

The debate was rather unexpected, for it was confined by the rules to the conduct of the House Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, and Chairman Hope declared discussion of the strike question as a whole or mediation out of order. But Lloyd George managed to raise the question by attacking Sir William as responsible for the conduct of the British Gazette and failure of that organ to print the Archbishop's appeal.

He told the correspondent afterward that his pronouncement for peace without victory was the greatest ordeal of his career, and remarked: "It is the Boer war over again," referring to the days when his life was sought by mobs resentful of his pro-Boer sentiments.

He also told a private meeting of the Liberal party last night, when he was criticised for his stand, that they should not be trapped by the Tories into shouting for complete victory. He explained he had certain information that the Moderates in the Cabinet already were in unofficial negotiations with the trade union congress and a compromise would probably be reached.

Churchill, who replied to the war Premier, said the Gazette could not print everything and was trying to make a fair selection of the news. He added that the Archbishop's appeal would be printed as soon as space could be found for it. He made the announcement then that all news print not actually in the hands of publishers would be commandeered to get the maximum production of the Gazette.

C. G. Ammong, Laborite, then took up Lloyd George's attack where it had been left off. He intimated the failure to print the appeal was deliberate on the part of the Chancellor, who, he declared, was out to prevent any reasonable peace so he could "bring down the iron heel and pose as the savior of society."

Police Brutality Charged.

It was altogether the fault of the Chancellor and his group, Ammong added, that the disputants were not making peace on the basis of the Archbishop's plan.

Another Labor member, Dr. L. H. Guest, charged the police were "Cossacking" strikers, that men who were causing no trouble had been clubbed, that Constables had entered bars to beat up inoffensive citizens, had pursued women, ordered strikers out of their homes, and beaten them in the streets.

The Home Secretary, whose department has charge of the police, answered these complaints by denying them in full. He insisted there was no use of clubs by any policemen except in certain districts, notoriously tough, where hoodlums had tried to interfere with food transportation.

He paid hearty tribute to the manner in which the police are carrying out a difficult task, explaining that he based his remarks on complete investigations.

TEXAS OIL CO. FILES ANSWER IN OUSTER SUIT

General Denial of Charges Follows Practically Same Lines as That of Standard.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 11.—The Texas Oil Co. of Texas today filed a separate answer in the Missouri Supreme Court to the State antitrust suit brought by the Attorney-General to have it, the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky and the White Eagle Oil & Refining Co. ousted from the State, or fined.

The answer is a general denial to the charges filed in the Supreme Court Dec. 12, 1925, and also follows along virtually the same lines as the answer filed in the court yesterday by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the principal company in the suit.

The Texas company's reply stated that it never entered into a trust, or combination with the other companies to restrain trade and control prices of gasoline and oils in Missouri and other territory. It is said that the Texas company is in active competition with the other companies included in the suit, and added that the only contract it has with the Standard covers patent oil "cracking," or refining processes owned by it and the Standard. The contracts are strictly legal and privileged under the Constitutions of the nation and the State, the answer asserted.

BUT 1100 OF 5000 CITY EMPLOYES IN MAYOR'S SOCIETY

Cards Serially Numbered Up to 4000 Sent Out Pressing Them to Become Members.

PLAN CONNECTED WITH RECALL FIGHT

In Secret Conference Miller Is Said to Have Urged Swelling Roll of Association He Fosters.

A recent drive to obtain members for Mayor Miller's Municipal Employes' Benefit Association, which was organized last July, but which has not found much favor with city job holders, has been connected in City Hall political circles with the administration plans to combat the movement to recall the Mayor.

The original plan was that each employe each month should contribute 1 per cent of his salary, which in 12 months would mean 1 per cent of his salary for the year. This has recently been changed to ½ of 1 per cent or those receiving less than $150 a month.

In the late drive for increasing the membership, cards bearing serial numbers have been sent out, the numbers having reached 4400.

Salisbury Admits Sending Out Cards

Harry L. Salisbury, Director of Public Welfare, who is treasurer of the organization, today said it had only 1100 members, although there are more than 5000 city employes who might be expected to join, and that only $1600 was in the treasury. He admitted the sending out of the cards, but said many of them had not been returned. He expressed the opinion the reason was that the new budget had just been passed and that employes had been waiting for that before joining.

It was estimated at the City Hall that if the administration used its power to force its appointees to join, a fund of nearly $60,000 a year could be obtained.

At the time of the organization of the association it was announced that its purpose was to loan money to municipal employes at low interest, to provide them with recreation and to protect them from unwarranted criticism. This last purpose is now construed as permission to use the association to oppose the recall.

Mayor's Plan Out of Favor.

However, the association has not met with favor among the employes. They received information from department heads that it would replace the ward organizations and clubs to which most of them belong, and few cared to sever their connections with their neighborhood organizations.

Privately they expressed opposition to the methods adopted by the Mayor in putting his association into being. The members had no opportunity to vote on the officers, who, after a conference of department heads, were announced. They include a board of trustees, the members being the Mayor, Director of Public Safety Brod, City Marshal Duffy, Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks and Director of Public Welfare Salisbury.

After the recall movement gained headway, the Mayor had a secret conference of all heads of departments and institutions in his office. At this meeting, it was learned, the suggestion was made that they should get busy and increase the membership of the association.

In his statement today, Salisbury said only two loans had been made from the association's funds.

Recall Signatures Total 65,522.

Signatures to the petitions for the recall of Mayor Miller total 65,522 today, the Miller Recall Committee announces, 1908 having been added in the last 24 hours. A margin is being accumulated over the required minimum of 60,456.

This is the first daily report since the first week of the canvass, which began April 5, on which a gain of more than 2000 signatures has not been announced.

JESUS CONCEIVED AS JOYOUS

Artist Says Gospels Support His "Smiling Christ" Canvas.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 11.—An unusual conception of Jesus as a man of joys rather than the traditional "man of sorrowrs" is seen in "the smiling Christ," a panel painted by Doane Powell and exhibited here today by the Chicago Architectural League.

Powell said that there is abundant support in the gospels for a conception of Jesus as one proclaiming freedom to the captive, comfort to those that mourn and hope that men "might have life more abundant." "Nevertheless," he declared, "religious art, influenced by old world conceptions has almost uniformly pictured a 'pale Galilean' with a sorrowful aspect. When all is said, art really has no authentic portrait of Christ."

Old Earl a Policeman; Other Notes of Strike

LONDON, May 11.

THE aged Earl of Meath, originator of the "Empire Day" movement, has been sworn in as a special constable, at Chertsea for duty during the strike. Asked his age, he replied: "Eighty-five, and I'm still able to tackle a man. I box every morning."

The Prince of Wales spent most of the night in making a round of all the volunteer workers' canteens in London. It was his own idea. Apparently he had no fear of any possible accident to himself in the troubled areas.

The Leviathan sailed from Southampton for New York this morning with 383 passengers. All the baggage was loaded by volunteer workers.

A fleet of submarines has made its appearance in the Thames. Five submersibles have been stationed at the Victoria docks to furnish electrical power for unloading ships, refrigeration and other necessities.

Ramsay MacDonald has had placed at his disposal by the Labor Party a little rickety, dull green automobile driven by a rosy-cheeked 22-year-old miss.

"'No," she said, "I am not Miss MacDonald. My name? Oh, it doesn't matter; just call me 'Miss Volunteer'."

As in the great war, the British strike has produced the "conscientious objector." Many labor sympathizers refuse to ride in trains, buses or subways operated by volunteer labor, and as far as possible, refrain from eating food convoyed by troops.

The strike has put the so-called American season in England back one month, in the opinion of hotel men. The cancellation of American tourist reservations for May and June is placed at from 5 to 10 per cent.

Air traffic from the Continent has increased 50 per cent since the strike started.

The general strike "was never meant as, and even now is not, a strike against Parliament, the Government or the Constitution," Former Premier Macdonald wrote for the first copy of the British Independent. The paper, which appeared in mimeograph form this afternoon, is edited at London by Oxford under-graduates and has for its announced purpose the work of conciliation.

"I heartily welcome your efforts," Macdonald wrote concerning the paper's conciliation plan. "This dispute ought never to have happened and had the problems been handled with ordinary care and common sense there would have been neither a strike nor a lockout. Good will and calm heads in the end will prevail. We are working literally night and day that that may be soon."

MO-VE IN COMMONS TO SETTLE STRIKE BY A COMPROMISE

general strike, and considerable uneasiness as to its ultimate results."

A. J. Cook, the miners' secretary, said any settlement must be one that would at least maintain the present working conditions and hours of the miners.

"I desire to inform the miners and the general public, he said, "that we are as firm today as we were when the miners decided unanimously that there was to be no reduction in wages."

Cook further said there had been no negotiations, and added: "There are many influences at work to find a bridge, but whatever bridge is found it must be one to secure the status quo at least for the miners.

The British Broadcasting Co. today broadcast that, although no official confirmation could be obtained, there was reason to believe moves toward settlement of the strike were taking place.

The company added that Ramsay MacDonald, the parliamentary labor chief had an interview this morning with the miners' executive before a meeting of the General Council of the Trades Union Congress.

Coal Commission Takes Hand.

Reports of peace negotiations, with Sir Herbert Samuel, chairman of the Royal Coal Commission, as a central figure, continued, but neither the labor chiefs nor the Government would discuss them.

The North Wales Presbytery has asked King George to call a round table conference of all the leaders concerned in the crisis.

The Trades Union Congress denied further strike orders had been issued, but said the second line of defense men, including the electrical and gas workers, were continuing to walk out on their own initiative. The denial was prompted by a Belfast message saying the labor council there has received intimations that the engineering and shipbuilding trades would cease work tomorrow.

A report from the Clyde said a threatened stoppage of shipyard workers and engineers there was being discussed.

Reports from the provinces indicated that the strike was steadily collapsing in South Wales, as far as the tramway men, railway men and electricians were concerned. The Government spokesman, citing improvement in the transportation services, said 5503 trains were run yesterday in the whole country, as compared with 849 on the first day of the strike.

The Trades Union Congress said this afternoon that reports reaching it from all parts of the country indicated that the morale of the strikers was excellent.

"In South Wales, Liverpool and on the East Coast the men are splendid," it was declared.

Ships Being Unloaded.

All the docks in South Wales are working and food supplies, at least in the port towns, are adequate.

At Bristol voluntary laborers are unloading the ships as soon as they are berthed. The brewery employes have returned to work. The engineering union issued final strike notices to its members, but dispatches indicate that these have been largely ignored.

In Birmingham numbers of tramway men and industrial workers are returning.

Forty-eight vessels are discharging or loading at the Liverpool and Birkenhead docks without disturbance. Arrivals and sailings continue. The road transport there is improving, with 20,000 volunteers working. Most of the flour mills have resumed, with volunteer labor. Cattle killings continue in the abattoirs.

Municipal workers in many centers throughout the country have returned, after short absences.

Coal Shortage at Tyne.

On the Tyne shipping is practically at a standstill, owing to the coal shortage, but the shipyards are still working.

The Barrow shipyards are functioning, but the Hodbarrow Iron Ore Mines in Cumberland, the largest in England, will close by the end of the week if the strike continues.

The main development at Glasgow is the reopening of the docks, volunteers discharging cargoes of foodstuffs, which are conveyed to the traders without military escort.

The strike is affecting the boot trade in Northampton. One large factory has closed and others are working on short time. Similar conditions prevail at Ketterington, Rushden, Wellingboro, Burton, Latimer and Finedon.

The general strike is illegal, Justice Astbury declared in the Chancery division today, and those inciting it or participating in it are not protected under the laws regulating trades unions.

His opinion was made in granting an injunction against certain branch leaders of the Sailors and Firemen's Union. The injunction restrains the branch leaders from calling out their men without orders from general headquarters of the union.

Fast Train Wrecked.

The first case of serious sabotage since the strike began was reported today.

The "Flying Scotchman," an express from Edinburgh to London, one of the fastest trains in Great Britain, was wrecked yesterday near New Castle, and the authorities today claimed a rail had been deliberately loosened.

The train was being run by a volunteer crew, replacing railwaymen. Luckily, the engineer had slowed to six miles an hour, and only one passenger was injured.

Four deaths from railway accidents have occurred in the last 24 hours. Three passengers were killed and a number hurt when a train manned by volunteers collided with a freight train near Edinburgh, and in an accident at Cambridge one person was killed and two were injured.

King George held a privy council at Buckingham Palace this morning. Whether it was for ratification of further emergency measures was not disclosed.

Food Distribution Effective.

The system of food distribution throughout Great Britain has reached a point where officials believe only unusually serious trouble can interfere with the full rationing of the population.

Motor convoys are proceeding several times daily from the docks in London to Hyde Park with flour, and to Smithfield Market with meat. The provincial roads are filled by day and by night with a stream of lorries carrying food to the provincial towns.

London is getting its daily supply of meat by a fleet of motors and this morning a convoy of 300 lorries went from the docks to the market where it was distributed to the trade without trouble.

Ships are beginning to arrive from the Continent with supplies of butter, eggs and cheese.

The number of volunteer workers at the docks increased today by more than a thousand, many of the volunteers being described as strikers.

Food lorries are meeting with little annoyance from the strikers and in one of the districts where trouble had been expected—Camden-town—pickets today assisted traffic policemen in keeping the trucks moving.

General Strike Not Popular With Belfast Dock Workers.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 11.—That the order for the Belfast dockers to cease work is not popular appeared today when, after a brief meeting, the men unloaded all foodstuffs from steamers arriving from Liverpool and Fleetwood. William McMullen, transport organizer, said there was apparently no desire for a general strike in Ireland.

COMPANY SAILS INTO TROUBLE ON TOY BOATS

Officers of Bankrupt Lyons Co. Tell How Aluminum Craft Went Down With Assets.

The ships of The Lyons Co. are still coming in but, instead of bringing the proverbial prosperity they carry cargoes of grief. So officers of the concern told Referee in Bankruptcy Coles yesterday.

The financial difficulties of The Lyons Co., 511-13 North Main street, an aluminumware concern, resulted from an unsuccessful effort to promote a national sales campaign for a toy motor boat that would not run, in addition to carrying on the company's regular business of selling aluminum household utensils, company officers testified.

The boat, which has a 9-inch keel, was designed to be run by "canned heat" or solidified alcohol. Due to the canned heat or something else, five out of every six of the boats sold by The Lyons Co. failed to operate, officers of the concern admitted yesterday. Most of the selling was on consignment and when the eccentricities of the toy became known many consignments were returned by retail dealers.

The Ships Come In.

"The ships have continued to come in until I feel like the director of the Emergency Fleet Corporation," Irvine Mitchell, trustee in the case told the Referee. "Unless I find a purchaser pretty quick, I'm afraid the fleet will have to sail into some junk dealer's yard."

Garvey E. Lyons, founder and former president of the concern, testified that The Lyons Co. developed from the G. E. Lyons Co. in 1923. The new company was capitalized at $150,000, one-third paid up. Lyons claims to have sold 70,000 of the motor boats before they became temperamental and carried the concern to destruction. Last September Lyons traded his stock in the company to John Goin, a southeast Missouri farmer, for some Ozark land and retired from the enterprise.

President a "Straw Man."

J. F. Mayer, a director of the company, followed Lyons to the presidency, but is not familiar with what transpired during his term as head of the concern, he told Referee Coles. Following Lyons' withdrawal the business was managed by S. J. Brown, the company's advertising manager, Mayer said.

"You were just a 'straw man' in the president's chair, is that it?" Referee Coles inquired.

"That's it," Mayer responded. "I only held 12 shares of stock and let Brown run the business."

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company Feb. 18 last by creditors holding claims for $20,831. A trustee's sale of machinery and raw materials netted $4500. This sum is virtually all creditors will receive, according to Mitchell, unless he finds a buyer for several thousand "canned heat" motor boats.

GIRL, 16, WHO DISAPPEARED, TELLS OF BOGUS MARRIAGE

Lillian Holt Has No Certificate; Harry Reid, Whom She Calls Husband, Says He's Single.

A police investigation of the disappearance of Lillian Holt, 16 years old, from the home of her mother, Mrs. Evelyn Bay, 4036A Manchester avenue, April 26, resulted in the arrest yesterday of the girl and youth whom she described as her husband.

The young man said he was Harry Reid, 19, of 4050 Blaine avenue. According to the police, he said he was unmarried, a paroled Boonville Reformatory prisoner and had stolen two automobiles in elopements with Lillian.

Lillian, who returned home May 2, told of having been married to Reid in St. Louis County by a man whom Reid brought, but had no marriage certificate.

She left home again last Tuesday. Detectives and a policewoman found her and Reid in a clubhouse at Creve Coeur Lake yesterday and recovered one of the automobiles Reid said he had stolen.

Both Reid and Lillian refused to discuss the case with reporters.

The Norge, which was originally the N-1 of the Italian aviation service, was turned out at the State airship factory at Rome under the direction of Col. Nobile. It is equipped completely as a passenger carrier and is fitted with one large, combined control and passenger car mounted well forward. There is accommodation for 20 passengers in this car.

On the trip from Leningrad to Spitzbergen the Norge carried a crew of 14. She is 348 feet long, with a maximum height of 85 feet 4 inches and a maximum width of 64 feet. Her maximum speed is 62 miles an hour. Her useful cargo capacity is eight tons. She is inflated with hydrogen.

The Italian Government is keenly interested in the flight, and it was through Premier Mussolini that Amundsen and Elsworth were given the use of the Norge.

Before leaving for Spitzbergen, Amundsen said that he had never entered on any of his explorations with greater confidence of success than on this flight.

BONDSMAN ON TRIAL DENIES COURT FRAUD

Mike Cutter Says He Never Saw Man for Whom a Substitute Appeared.

Denial that he had knowingly brought a "ringer" into court to substitute for a defendant under bond was made today by Mike Cutter, grocer, of 2000 Division street, on the witness stand in his trial on a charge of forgery in causing the false impersonation of another in a bail bond.

The State charges that Cutter brought Michael Walsh into court on Aug. 9 last after instructing him to pose as Martin Brennan, who was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. As a result of the appearance a forfeiture on a $1000 bond, which Cutter had signed for Brennan, was set aside.

"I am not a professional bondsman except in the newspapers," Cutter testified before Circuit Judge Frey today. "I signed Brennan's bond as an accommodation because I was told he was an uncle of a friend. I never saw him in my life.

"When Walsh came to me and said he was Brennan I believed him. I didn't know a substitution had been made any more than the Court did. I didn't get a cent for signing the bond."

One Man Acquitted.

After the substitution had been uncovered Walsh was indicted, and tried before a jury, which acquitted him. It was shown today that Cutter had arranged with Jack Niemann, professional bondsman, and Joseph Mogler, picture show chain proprietor, to sign Walsh's bond.

"I was interested in getting Walsh a bond because I was told he was going to try to frame me," Cutter said. "A friend of mine said 'Geist (William Geist, clerk for the Circuit Attorney) wants Walsh to snitch and testify against you.'

"'They can't jackpot me like that,' I answered, and I arranged for a bond for Walsh."

Character Witnesses.

Cutter introduced 10 character witness.

Yesterday Circuit Judge Hamilton, testifying for the State, told how he had set aside the forfeiture on Brennan's bond when Walsh appeared before him. The plan had been to have Walsh plead guilty for Brennan and take a $100 fine, but when Judge Hamilton signified his intention of sending him to the workhouse Walsh asked for his release on bond again. He was arrested as he left the courtroom and charged with forging this bond by signing to it the name of Brennan.

INVESTIGATE MAN'S DEATH

Police are investigating the death of John E. Price, 49 years old, an attendant at the City Sanitarium, who died at City Hospital Sunday night from an abdominal rupture.

Saturday he drove to the sanitarium grounds in a taxicab, stepped out, bending as though in pain, and then, apparently changing his mind, got back into the cab and drove off. He was found that evening in a semiconscious condition lying on the grounds. He was unable to explain what had happened to him. Police believe that he may have been struck or kicked in the abdomen. His widow, Ella, resides at Merna, Neb.

YOUTH AMBUSHED AND SLAIN NEAR HOME OF FIANCEE

Caesar Garavaglia Shot in Alley Five Minutes After Bidding Good Night to Mary Marcalini.

FIRED ON APPARENTLY BY TWO ASSASSINS

Police Without Definite Information as to Motive—Victim Was to Have Been Married Next Year.

Police are without definite information as to a motive for the murder of Caesar Garavaglia, 21 years old, of 5334 Northrup avenue, who was ambushed in an alley near his home last night, five minutes after he said good-night to his 17-year-old fiancee.

The usual theories in such cases, suspecting blackmailers, bootleggers and jealous suitors, are being considered, of course, but without much faith in any. The fact that Garavaglia formerly had been a saloon keeper interested police, but his relatives insisted he never handled liquor or associated with bootleggers. The relatives described him as hard-working young man who kept out of trouble. So far as is known, he had no rival for the hand of Miss Mary Marcalini of 5218 Pattison avenue. They were to have been married next year.

Dies in Father's Arms.

That he was shot to death by two assassins, not one, was indicated when automatic pistol shells of different caliber were found in the alley. He himself was not armed. His father, the first man to reach him asked, "Who shot you?" He mumbled an unintelligible reply, and expired in his father's arms.

Today Miss Marcalini, who had been keeping company with Garavaglia for 15 months, discussed the case. She and he were born in St. Louis, of parents who came from Northern Italy, and she understands the law must takes its course, but she said:

"If they catch the men who killed Caesar, I want to do to them what they did to Caesar."

Had Been to Picture Show.

Three nights a week Caesar and Mary kept company and, sometimes, there would be a fourth night. They were together Sunday night, and last night, an "extra" occasion, they went to see a movie at the Columbia Theater, 5257 Columbia avenue. They started homeward about 9:30 o'clock and walked slowly.

In front of 5240 Pattison avenue, they said good-night. Garvaglia walked to the corner of Edwards street and Pattison avenue and there encountered a group of youths who invited him to play pool. "I'm too tired," he replied. It was 10 o'clock. He walked north a half block and then, taking a short cut to the rear of his home, turned west into an alley that runs between Northrup and Pattison avenues.

Miss Marcalini was chatting with a neighbor, Mrs. Josephine Fasani of 5226 Pattison, in front of the latter's home, when they heard a series of shots, and Miss Marcalini remarked apprehensively, "Oh, I hope Caesar got home all right."

No Trace of Slayers.

Antonio Garavaglia, father of Caesar, heard the shots and heard someone crying, "Help! Help!" Then all was still. He ran from his kitchen into the alley, followed by a neighbor, Fred Manie of 5332 Northrup. They found Caesar dying in the unpaved alley, in the rear of 5324 Northrup. The slayers were gone.

Garavaglia had been wounded thrice, one bullet entering the back and piercing the heart, the others striking th right arm and left leg. Seven bullet marks were found on adjacent sheds and two .32 and .38 caliber automatic pistol cartridges were on the ground. The slayers evidently had fired from a recess beside a shed.

The inquest will be tomorrow. Garavaglia quit the saloon business about three years ago and had been working at the Quick Meal Stove Co. Miss Marcalini is employed at the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

FRISCO STOCKHOLDERS ELECT THREE NEW DIRECTORS

All 17 Members of Board of Missouri Pacific Renamed at Annual Meeting.

The annual meetings of stockholders of the Missouri Pacific and St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co.'s were held at their general offices here today.

Three new members of the board of directors of the Frisco were elected to succeed Sam Lazarus, St. Louis capitalist, and A. G. Becker, both of whom died recently, and Frank C. Wright, who resigned. The new directors are H. P. Wright of Kansas City, Henry Ruhlender of New York and R. E. Lee Wilson of Wilson, Ark.

All 17 members of the board of the Missouri Pacific were re-elected.

Officers of each railroad will be elected at meetings to be held soon.

They were to have been married next year.

Dies in Father's Arms.

That he was shot to death by two assassins, not one, was indicated when automatic pistol shells of different caliber were found in the alley. He himself was not armed. His father, the first man to reach him asked, "Who shot you?" He mumbled an unintelligible reply, and expired in his father's arms.

Today Miss Marcalini, who had been keeping company with Garavaglia for 15 months, discussed the case. She and he were born in St. Louis, of parents who came from Northern Italy, and she understands the law must takes its course, but she said:

"If they catch the men who killed Caesar, I want to do to them what they did to Caesar."

Had Been to Picture Show.

Three nights a week Caesar and Mary kept company and, sometimes, there would be a fourth night. They were together Sunday night, and last night, an "extra" occasion, they went to see a movie at the Columbia Theater, 5257 Columbia avenue. They started homeward about 9:30 o'clock and walked slowly.

In front of 5240 Pattison avenue, they said good-night. Garvaglia walked to the corner of Edwards street and Pattison avenue and there encountered a group of youths who invited him to play pool. "I'm too tired," he replied. It was 10 o'clock. He walked north a half block and then, taking a short cut to the rear of his home, turned west into an alley that runs between Northrup and Pattison avenues.

Miss Marcalini was chatting with a neighbor, Mrs. Josephine Fasani of 5226 Pattison, in front of the latter's home, when they heard a series of shots, and Miss Marcalini remarked apprehensively, "Oh, I hope Caesar got home all right."

No Trace of Slayers.

Antonio Garavaglia, father of Caesar, heard the shots and heard someone crying, "Help! Help!" Then all was still. He ran from his kitchen into the alley, followed by a neighbor, Fred Manie of 5332 Northrup. They found Caesar dying in the unpaved alley, in the rear of 5324 Northrup. The slayers were gone.

Garavaglia had been wounded thrice, one bullet entering the back and piercing the heart, the others striking th right arm and left leg. Seven bullet marks were found on adjacent sheds and two .32 and .38 caliber automatic pistol cartridges were on the ground. The slayers evidently had fired from a recess beside a shed.

The inquest will be tomorrow. Garavaglia quit the saloon business about three years ago and had been working at the Quick Meal Stove Co. Miss Marcalini is employed at the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

MAN LET IN BANK JUST BEFORE HOLDUP

Police Say He Entered Hodiamont Depository to Cash Check—Loss Is $20,000.

Investigation by the police of the robbery of the Hodiamont Bank, 6145 Bartmer avenue, Saturday night, disclosed they said, that a man had been admitted to the place about 9 p. m. ostensibly to cash a check, just before the robbers entered, although it was after banking hours.

About $20,000, instead of $15,000, as at first announced, was taken in the holdup, the detectives' report today stated. This included $15,000 which had been deposited by Kroger and Piggly-Wiggly groceries in the vicinity.

At the telephonic request of the president of the Safety Payroll and Banking Service Co., Sam C. Gossom, cashier of the bank, had gone to the sidewalk to ask the crew of an armored money truck of the company to wait there for their employer. A man approached Gossom, the truck crew said, and asked to have a check cashed. Gossom let him in, they declared.

Stood at Counter.

It was then almost 9 p. m. and the bank had closed at 8 o'clock.

One of the crew noticed this man at the bank counter, and a moment later Gossom ran out, crying, "Stickup," and went to a nearby store to call the police. The crew found the front door locked. They concluded to wait there, believing the stranger was a lone robber. However, they saw a disturbance in the rear of the bank, where they found the back door open.

By that time the robbers—five men who had entered at the back—had left, an dthe man who asked to cash a check had slipped out the back way, too. The police think it likely he was a confederate of the robbers and locked the front door.

Double Door at Back.

There is a double door at the back, provided with two heavy bolts, an iron bar and two locks. None of the fastenings had been forced open, so that the entrance must have been left unlocked. The door is supposed to be kept locked.

Six months ago and again last month the police received confidential information of prospective robberies of this bank. Each time bank officials were notified and policemen stationed in the vicinity. As a result, Charles O. Miles of 6753 Bartmer avenue, president of the bank, put the keys of the back door in his desk, where he said he left them Saturday. The police suggested bricking up the back entrance and providing the tellers' cages with bulletproof screens.

The bank was opened from 5 to 8 p. m. Saturday to receive deposits, particularly of the neighboring chain grocery stores, some of which were collected by the armored truck. A policeman was stationed in the bank for that period, and at 8:25 p. m., the detectives reported, was told by Cashier Gossom that he could go.

WIFE FOUND ALIVE, MAN SAVED FROM MURDER CHARGE

Kansas City Police Locate Mrs. Clara Thompson, Supposed Victim of Iowa Strawstack Fire.

HUSBAND ON WAY BACK TO BE TRIED

Her Grandmother Had Identified Body—Whose It Is Remains a Mystery at Carlysle, Ia.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, May 11.—As Earl Thompson was en route to Des Moines, Ia., today in custody of an Iowa Sheriff to face charges of having murdered his wife and burned her body in a strawstack near Carlisle, Ia., the wife was found in Kansas City, alive and eager to exonerate her husband.

Thompson had scarcely been on his journey an hour when police found Mrs. Thompson.

Mrs. Maggie Harman of Omaha identified the body of a woman found in a burned straw stack near carlisle, last August, as that of her granddaughter, Mrs. Clara Thompson, 27, missing since last June. Thompson, 34, husband of the supposed victim, was arrested in Kansas City. He was held for questioning.

The arrest yesterday, however, brought a new mystery into the case, as Thompson said he had talked with his estranged wife in the lobby of a Kansas City theater last Saturday.

Mrs. Harman based her identification on the shape of the face, the teeth, size of the body and color and texture of the hair. She also said that beads found near the body were similar to a strand worn by her granddaughter.

Authorities long had given up hope that the body could be identified, as the burning of the straw stack at Carlisle, near Des Moines, apparently covered up every clew. The body, discovered nearly a month after the fire, was almost entirely consumed.

Grandmother Skeptical That Mrs. Harman Is Still Alive.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., May 11.—Mrs. Maggie Harman, who identified the "straw stack murder" victim of Carlisle, Ia., as her granddaughter, Mrs. Clara Thompson, said on her arrival from Des Moines today that she was skeptical that Mrs. Thompson had been found in Kansas City.

"I can't believe she's been found until I see her with my own eyes," Mrs. Harman said. "I can't understand why she didn't write to me if she is alive. I am positive I am not mistaken in my identification."

69 ARRAIGNED IN POLICE COURTS FOR SPEEDING

First Offenders Who Pleaded Guilty Let Off With Payment of Minimum Fines.

Thirty-six speeders appeared before City Judges Rosecan and Beck yesterday and 33 more were in police courts this morning. Those who pleaded guilty yesterday were assessed the minimum fine of $25 and costs. Others, who would not acknowledge they had been speeding, were fined, when found guilty, $1 a mile and costs. One flagrant offender drew a fine of $45 and costs.

The Judges followed their usual policy of fixing the minimum penalty to first offenders who admitted they were speeding.

COURT GIVES CONSTABLE TEN DAYS TO PAY $1034

Money Represents Fines Collected From Carondelet Township Justices of the Peace.

Constable William F. Knight of Carondelet Township has been ordered by the St. Louis County Court to pay to the County Treasurer within 10 days $1034, representing his collection of fines levied by Justices of the Peace in his township in the last year.

Constables are required by law to make settlements for fines with the County Treasurer and County Court each quarter, but Knight had not done so since the February term of court, 1925. Books of the Justices were consulted to determine what he owes.

Knight said today the figures were correct, and he expected to turn over the money this week. He explained he had been so busy he had neglected to settle before. His township covers the southern end of the county. A large part of the fines is realized in speeding and other traffic cases.

Chivalry and Cruelty Mingled by an Indian

Navajo, Who Released White Woman He Had Kidnaped Then Killed Two of Her Men Relatives, Sought.

By the Associated Press.

TELLURIDE, Colo., May 11.—George Nelson, a Navajo Indian sheep herder, who combined white man's chivalry with the traditional cruelty of aborigines, is being pursued in the mountains of Southwestern Colorado today by numerous posses, bent on bringing him to face charges of slaying John G. Wolfe, and John H. Wolfe, uncle and nephew, near Beaver Mesa last Friday.

The Indian's curiously mingled chivalry and cruelty was told by Leonore Wolfe, 28 years old, niece and sister of the slain men, who was kidnaped by Nelson, and by his footprints after he had released the woman when she appealed to his love for her and to his chivalry.

Kidnaped Then Released Woman.

Nelson kidnaped the woman last Friday during the absence of her father, Jose Wolfe, and then released her after an hour of captivity when her tears and pleadings had melted the Indian's heart. He accompanied her for two miles toward her home and left after cautioning her that he would kill her father if he stepped from the ranch house before Saturday.

Saturday her father went to his brother's ranch home, an elaborate affair, several miles away. He found it in ashes, and after several hours of searching found the bodies of his brother and son in a canyon several miles from the house. Each had been shot through the head.

Trackers who were summoned to the ranch declared that the Indian, apparently fearing the wrath of relatives after the kidnaping episode, had ambushed the men, fired the home, shot a friendly shepherd dog that was following him and then fled in a southwesterly direction.

A Coroner's jury here yesterday charged Nelson with the slayings.

Feeling runs high throughout this entire section. Cowboys have left the ranges to join the posses and virtually every able-bodied man in San Miguel County has taken up the man hunt.

Story Told by Young Woman.

According to the story told by the young woman, the Indian appeared at the Lower Wolfe ranch on Beaver Mesa late Friday afternoon. She was alone in the ranch house. Her brother and her uncle were repairing fences two miles away.

The Indian, Miss Wolfe said, forced her at the point of a rifle to place her hands behind her, and bound them with a rope. He then declared his love and when Miss Wolfe told him he would be killed by her brother, he threatened her life. Miss Wolfe then asked if an Indian would be less chivalrous to the woman he loved than a white man. Nelson pondered this for a moment and released her.

500 MEN DIG 12 HOURS IN EFFORT TO SAVE BABY

Child Found Suffocated in Well After Hole 38 Feet Deep Is Sunk.

By the Associated Press.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., May 11.—After digging down 38 feet, volunteer workers last night took from a well on a farm near here the body of the 14-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elkneh Carter. More than 500 workers from the vicinity, spurred on by the possibility that the child might still be alive, worked for more than 12 hours to reach the baby.

After efforts to revive the infant with a pulmotor proved unavailing, Dr. W. T. Bertrand pronounced him dead. He said death was caused by suffocation and not by the fall, bearing out the theory on which rescue work was started, that if the child could be reached in time it might be taken out alive. No bruises were found on the body when it was taken from the well.

Shaft Very Narrow.

The child was missed shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning and shortly after it was ascertained that he had fallen in the well. The shaft leading to the water was so narrow that it was believed the child had slipped gradually, rather than fallen, into the well. Rescuers located the body where it had lodged about four feet above the water. The child was so tightly wedged against the wall of the shaft that it was impossible to bring him up with grappling hooks fastened in his clothing.

Efforts were first made to sink a shaft wide enough for a man to do down, but the sand caved in constantly and rescuers were forced to abandon this method. Grading shovels and road scrapers were brought and an inverted cone-shaped hole, with its point where the child lay and about 75 feet in diameter at the top, was dug.

Cave-ins again hampered the workers, tons of loose sand falling several times during the operations and delaying the workers. In one of these Robert Lachien, one of the workers, was buried and taken out unconscious. He was revived and found to be but slightly injured.

Temporary Lighting System.

When darkness threatened to put a stop to the work, an improvised electric lighting system was placed about the well so the diggers could continue their work.

The child's father worked with the rescue crew, refusing to stop for rest until he fell from exhaustion. Other workers were organized into shifts of about 100, relieving each other hourly.

SHOOTS FIRM'S HEAD AND ENDS OWN LIFE

C. L. Dalton, Former Missourian, Dead After Business Quarrel in Cincinnati, O.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., May 11.—Harry Lansiedel, 45 years old, president of the Dalton Adding Machine Co., is in a hospital seriously wounded, and Charles L. Dalton, 35, former general manager of the concern, is dead as a result of a business argument in the former's office late yesterday.

Dalton, stockholder in the concern and son of the late James L. Dalton, former head of the company, was reported by police to have shot Lansiedel and then turned the weapon on himself.

Dalton resigned as general manager last fall, shortly before the death of his father. The shooting occurred in the private office of Lansiedel and followed a 10-minute plea by H. C. Grubbs, vice president, in an effort to induce Dalton to forego his announced intention to kill Lansiedel. Five shots were fired, four at Lansiedel and one which pierced the heart of Dalton. He died instantly.

Officials of the company attributed Dalton's act to jealousy over Lansiedel's advancement to the president of the concern and the fact that Dalton was rapidly losing his small holdings in the company.

C. L. Dalton Brought Up in Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., May 11.—Charles L. Dalton, who figured in the Cincinnati shooting yesterday, growing out of the dispute in the Dalton Adding Machine Co., was graduated from high school here in 1911, after which he joined the office force of the adding machine company, which his father, James L. Dalton, formerly a merchant here, had founded on a small scale, and had successfully developed into a large concern.

A substantial job was given the younger Dalton almost immediately and when the company plant was moved to Cincinnati in 1914 he was made general manager. Of late months, it is reported here, he had been at loggerheads with his father over business policies and finally as a result of these differences the father asked his resignation last fall.

When the father died last January, it was expected that young Dalton, who still had stock in the concern, would be elected president. Instead Landsiedel was chosen and Dalton continued in another business.

Charles Dalton married Miss Edith Morrison, daughter of W. E. Morrison, a wealthy mill owner here, just before the factory was moved. Mrs. Dalton returned to the home of her parents last August, with their two daughters, Mary Jane and Clara Alice. At the time of the shooting Mrs. Dalton was in Memphis on a visit.

Landsiedel began with the adding machine company in 1905 as an office employe and worked himself up to his present position. He was the inventor of several devices which were used to improve the Dalton machine.

Efforts were made in 1913 to have the Dalton Adding Machine Co. factory moved to St. Louis from Poplar Bluff, but stockholders voted to move to Cincinnati.

Soon after the plant was moved to Cincinnati a misunderstanding among stockholders caused the funds of the concern to be tied up. The common stockholders had elected one set of officers and the preferred stockholders another, and there was some doubt which had authority to handle the company funds. The matter was adjusted within a short time, however.

Elder Dalton Left $300,000 Estate to Widow.

After James L. Dalton's death last January his will was taken from the files of the Scottish Rite Masons here and forwarded to Cincinnati to be presented in the Probate Court. It was made here in 1905 as part of the ritual of Scottish Rite Masons, and bequeathed his estate, valued at about $300,000, to his widow.

MISSING

WALTER S. WARD.

NO TRACE OF MISSING BAKING MAGNATE'S SON

New Jersey Creek Dragged for Walter S. Ward's Body Without Results.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Walter S. Ward, missing millionaire, has fallen the victim of belated gang vengeance for the killing of Clarence Peters, in 1922, is the belief of Ralph D. Ward, a brother. Officers are searching for Walter Ward in New York, New Jersey and Maryland.

When Walter was tried in White Plains for murdering Peters he claimed self-defense, saying the slain marine was a member of a blackmail gang and threatened him with death unless he paid $75,000. Ward was tried twice and acquitted the second time.

Assunnpink Creek, near the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Trenton, N. J., where the missing man's automobile was found last Thursday with a windshield broken and a rock lying on the front seat, was dragged yesterday but nothing significant was found. The Trenton police gave up the search on the theory that he was missing for reasons best known to himself.

This theory they held on the basis that this is not the first time he has disappeared. He vanished in 1922 and it took a week for his own detectives to trail him to the Bowie track.

Gums Firmed to Healthy Coral Tint

Accept full 10-day tube of this new way that leading dental authorities urge. Your teeth are not naturally dull . . . simply clouded by a dingy film coat now easily cleared off.

THERE is now a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that acts differently from ordinary pastes and dentifrices. A way that clears cloudy teeth to sparkling whiteness; that firms gums to a healthy coral tint.

Modern dental science has made important new discoveries. It's been proved teeth are seldom naturally "off color." Simply clouded by a film that old-time dentifrices did not successfully clear off.

Let us send you a full 10-day tube to try. By clearing your teeth of that film coat, you may change your whole appearance.

What film is—dulls teeth, invites gum disorders

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a germ-laden film that forms on your teeth. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It makes teeth look "off color."

That film clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and decay.

Old ways won't clear it off

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice the world has turned to this method.

Clears film off. Firms the Gums

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power. Send the coupon. Clip it now before you forget.

$55,000 AWARD TO MRS. FOLK ON EGYPTIAN CLAIM

Suit Was Based on Services Rendered by Late Joseph W. Folk for That Country.

TOTAL AMOUNT SHE SOUGHT $602,924

Ex-Governor of Missouri Had Been Employed to Create Interest in Egyptian Independence.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 11.—The mixed tribunal has rendered a judgment of $55,000 and costs against Zagloul Pasha, as president of the Egyptian Wafd, in favor of Mrs. Joseph W. Folk of St. Louis, for services by her late husband, a former Governor of Missouri, in the cause of Egyptian independence. The Wafd is the executive branch of the Egyptian Nationalist party.

The total claim was for $602,924, but the court rejected that part of the claim directed against Zagloul Pasha and Mohammed Mahmud Pasha, former agent of the Wafd in the United States, in their personal capacity.

Mahmud Pasha, while in the United States, is alleged to have contracted for Folk's services in carrying out propaganda in the United States in favor of Egyptian independence, the object being to arouse American sympathy and thus bring pressure to bear on the British Government.

Mrs. Folk sued for salary which she alleged was due her husband for his services in this respect.

Nature of Work Done by Folk in Behalf of Egypt.

The judgment in favor of Mrs. Folk was based upon a claim she filed for salary alleged to be due her husband, who died in May, 1923, in appearing before the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate, before the State Department and in furthering Egyptian propaganda in this country.

It was the contention of Mrs. Folk that her husband was entitled under his agreement to a salary of $5000 a month during the fight for Egyptian independence, $100,000 in the event he appeared before the League of Nations, $100,000 if he carried on a campaign of propaganda for two years, and $500,000 if freedom from British rule was gained for the Egyptians.

Folk's services appear to have been limited to his appearance before the Senate committee and to the campaign of propaganda. He did not appear before the League of Nations, and while Egypt eventually was released from direct British domination, there remains a condition of British "protection."

The defense to the action was that Mohammed Mahmud Pasha was not authorized to enter into the contract with Folk, although there was no denial that Folk had received a payment of $5000 for his services.

FOUR BEQUESTS TO CHARITY IN MRS. MARY O'NEIL'S WILL

Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home and Father Dempsey's Hotel to Receive $500 Each.

The will of Mrs. Mary A. O'Neil, 80 years old, who died May 2, was filed in Probate Court yesterday.

She bequeathed $2000 to Mrs. Charles Koch, a niece, and $500 each to the Convent of the Good Shepherd, 3501 Gravois avenue; Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, 3010 Washington boulevard, Father Dempsey's Hotel and the Sisters of Mercy of St. Agathas's Academy, Chicago.

The family home at 4507 Lindell boulevard was left to Mrs. William B. Logan, a daughter, of New York, and the remainder of the estate was put in trust of the Mercantile Trust Co. for the benefit of the daughter and James P. O'Neil of Pasadena, Cal., a son.

The will shows that Mrs. O'Neil created a separate trust fund with the Mercantile Trust Co. for Marsulite Stuart Nolker, her granddaughter by adoption. She, therefore, revoked a bequest in the will amounting to $50,000 for the granddaughter.

No estimate was made of the value of the estate. Mrs. O'Neil was the widow of Peter A. O'Neil, who at one time was proprietor of a restaurant ata Union Station.

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

BUENOS AIRES, May 11.—The first night club opened here charged an initiation fee of $10 and dues of $5 a month. An announcement said:

"Two badges to women members will be issued—blue and gold. When the gold badge is worn it is understood the woman does not wish to dance. The blue badge signifies that the wearer is free for the next dance."

Physicians universally recommend it

Never before has a product like Hardy's Iodized Salt received such universal recommendation from noted physicians and health authorities. ## POSTAL COMMITTEE AGREES ON NEW RATES

Effort Will Be Made to Get Proposed Reductions Through Congress This Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Material changes in five classes of temporary postal rates approved last year have been agreed upon by the special Joint Congressianal Postal Committee. They are:

Reduction in the rate on private mailing cards from 2 cents to 1 cent.

Reduction of the rate on transient second-class mail matter — newspapers mailed by individuals —to one cent.

Establishment of a rate of not more than 2 cents on return postal cards sent out by business firms, with the collection to be made after return.

Rearrangement of the special handling rate on parcel post packages so that in place of the standard 25-cent charges there will be a graduation, with a 15-cent rate for packages weighing not over 2 pounds; 25 cents for packages weighing from 2 to 10 pounds, and 35 cents for packages over 10 pounds.

A penalty of 1 cent for each ounce on mail on which postage is short-paid more than one rate.

While concurring in these changes, Senator McKellar of Tennessee, disagreed with the majority on several points, proposing a restoration of the 1920 rate on newspapers and other publications with a 50-cent bundle charge rate; reduction of the rate on third-class matter from 1½ cents to 1 cent for each two ounces; and abolition of the 2 cents special charge on fourth class mail.

The majority report will be made today to the Senate and House. The latter will act first under the agreement and members of the committee hope to get the changes through at this session of Congress.

Declaring that it recognized the force of the arguments regarding a return to 1920 second-class rates, the majority said that when statistics for a full year were in it might be possible "to provide some amelioration of the conditions of which the publishers of newspapers and periodicals now complain."

The majority said it also had in mind the establishment within the third-class mail of subdivisions whereby the larger users of this class could have the benefit of a pound rate.

"The committee is of the general opinion that the entire structure of fourth-class rates (parcel post) should be recast," the report said.

WOMAN WHO KILLED MAN FREED BY JURY

Verdict of Justifiable Homicide in Case of Mrs. Edna Smith of Cahokia.

A Coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday at East St. Louis in the case of William Uxa, 43 years old, of Cahokia, who was shot Saturday by Mrs. Edna Smith, 24 years old, on the porch of her home at Cahokia. Uxa was shot above the right knee, the bullet severing an artery, and died from loss of blood before a physician from East St. Louis arrived, 40 minutes later.

Mrs. Smith testified she was standing four feet away from Uxa when she fired through the screen door, which he was trying to force open, and that she purposely shot low only to injure or frighten him, since he had kicked her three days before when he gained entrance and was threatening to kill her and burn the house at the time.

She said Uxa, who was formerly a handy man about the place, had been there earlier in the morning and had tried to force his way into her home, but that she had frightened him away with an empty shotgun. She declared Uxa had been discharged a week before because he would not stay sober and that he was intoxicated when she shot him.

Her testimony was corroborated by Francis Ziegelmeyer, 105 South Fourth street, East St. Louis, a witness. Mrs. Smith is the wife of Ralph Smith, who formerly operated a roadhouse where the shooting occurred.

You may be Losing more than Weight

Your health is in the balance when you start to reduce

WHAT good will a fashionably slender figure do you—if you wreck your health to get it? The danger is real. You will be wise to look beyond the scales when you start to reduce.

For your health's sake, before you attempt to reduce your weight, get the June Delineator and read "Control Your Weight" by Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, president of the American Medical Association. The real facts about health and weight are here given in an authoritative but understandable way.

Physicians Meet at Delineator's Request to Discuss Critical Situation

THE story behind this article is quite as interesting as the article itself. More than 30,000 letters received by The Delineator's Editorial Department revealed the alarming fact that the fad for excessive slenderness is sweeping the country to its most remote villages. Women young and old, plain and beautiful, are possessed by a mania to get rid of flesh. They seem to care little about the danger of drastic reduction. All they want to know is "How can it be done?"

The Delineator, through its editor, Mrs. William Brown Meloney, appealed to leading physicians for assistance in answering these 30,000 questions. Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, president of the American Medical Association, and Dr. Samuel Brown of the New York Academy of Medicine, to whom Mrs. Meloney first appealed, were quick to realize the seriousness of the situation. On the invitation of the American Medical Association, 22 of the country's leading specialists came to New York and met in the first gathering of scientists ever held anywhere in the world for the purpose of studying adult normal weight and its relation to health.

The Adult Weight Conference continued in session for two days. Committees were appointed to report on adequate adult weight tables and to conduct a campaign of public education in cooperation with The Delineator. A formal resolution was adopted commending The Delineator "for its interest in arranging this conference and for its cooperation in placing the matter properly before the public."

Dr. Phillips' article is the first of this important series. You will undoubtedly want to read them all, but be sure to start from the beginning with Dr. Phillips' most interesting discussion of this important subject.

A Record of Accomplished Service

1907-1910 The Delineator created and promoted a child-rescue campaign and found homes for twenty-one thousand children.

1916-1917 A national census showed that six out of every seven babies escaped infant mortality, but that the seventh baby died. The Delineator launched "the seventh baby campaign," the good results of which are still in evidence.

1916 The Delineator developed the Junior Red Cross, which in 1917 was taken up throughout the country and made a national organization.

1918 The Delineator adopted Landres et St. Georges, a devastated town adjoining the Argonne Cemetery, where 37,000 American soldiers sleep.

1919 The Editor of The Delineator conducted a campaign for the benefit of Madame Marie Curie, the discoverer of radium and the greatest living woman scientist.

1921 The Delineator founded and financed the Better Homes in America movement, which grew into a public service organization with Herbert Hoover as president and Dr. James Ford of Harvard University as director.

1922 The late Dr. L. Emmett Holt organized a child health department in The Delineator with some of the greatest American child specialists.

1925-1926 The officers of the American Medical Association called the first conference to consider the relation of weight to health in adults.

PRESIDENT PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE ALTON B. PARKER

Death a Great Loss, Coolidge Wires Widow of Democratic Candidate for Presidency in 1904.

"A USEFUL CITIZEN," SAYS GOV. SMITH

Funeral to Be Tomorrow in New York City With Burial in Family Lot at Kingston, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Tributes to Alton B. Parker, former chief justice of the New York State Court of Appeals and Democratic presidential nominee of 1904, who died suddenly yesterday, were paid by President Coolidge, Gov. Smith and eminent lawyers and jurists last night.

In a telegram to Mrs. Parker, President Coolidge said:

"Please accept my sincere sympathy on the death of your distinguished husband. As a justice of the New York State Supreme Court, as Chief Judge of a Court of Appeals and as an officer of the American Bar Association and similar bodies, and as head of the National Civic Federation, he had rendered distinct service to the country. His prominence in public life was attested by his nomination for President of the United States. His death will be a great loss."

Gov. Smith said: "The State and Nation has lost a most useful citizen."

The funeral of the farm boy who became an eminent jurist and Democratic candidate for the presidency will be tomorrow.

The former justice died of a heart attack while driving through Central Park on his way with his wife and a nurse to his country home at Esopus, N. Y. He contracted cold three days ago and because of his age, 74, his physician ordered him to wait until yesterday for his holiday at the country home.

Besides the widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles Mercer Hall, wife of a Bridgeport, Conn., clergyman, and two grand children, Mary and Parker Hall. Mrs. Hall is the daughter of Judge Parker and his first wife, Mrs. Mary Louis Schoonmaker Parker, whom he married in 1873 and who died in 1917. He married the present Mrs. Parker three years ago.

The funeral will be at noon tomorrow at St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church. Interment will be in the Parker family plot at Kingston, N. Y. Among the honorary pall bearers will be Charles E. Hughes and John W. Davis.

LAKE YIELDS BODY OF WOMAN SLAIN BY HUSBAND IN OCTOBER

John Crowley Confessed Killing at Ashland, Wis., and Has Been Held in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

ASHLAND, Wis., May 11.—The waters of Chequamegon Bay, free of their winter burden of ice, have washed up the body of Mrs. John Crowley, seven months after her husband surrendered to police and confessed killing her.

Crowley has been held in jail since October, charged with beating the woman to death with an oar and throwing her body into the bay, but was not put on trial because of the State's failure to find the body.

TEST VOTE ON RAIL LABOR BILL

Motion to Recommit Defeated in Senate 14 to 59—Reed Opposes Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Passage of the Watson-Parker railroad labor bill in the identical form in which it was approved by the House was made almost certain with the first test of strength in the Senate.

This came yesterday on a motion to recommit the bill for further hearings, made by Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, and rejected 14 to 59. Three Democrats—Reed of Missouri, Ransdell of Louisiana and Edwards of New Jersey—joined with 11 Republicans in supporting the motion.

Several amendments, including one by Curtis to place final authority over wage awards in the Interstate Commerce Commission, have been or will be proposed, but their sponsors have little hope that any can muster a majority.

After the roll call, some leaders said proponents of the bill had at least 70 Senators pledged to vote for the measure.

Besides the three Democrats, those voting for the Curtis motion were Bingham and McLean, Connecticut; Curtis, Kansas; Fernald and Hale, Maine; Jones, Washington; Keys and Moses, New Hampshire; Norbeck, South Dakota; Phipps, Colorado, and Williams, Missouri.

More than three hours of debate preceded the roll call, with Reed of Missouri leading the fight to recommit the bill. He engaged in a running fire with Chairman Watson of the Interstate Commerce Committee, in charge of the bill, and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin.

The Missourian charged that the measure was largely written by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who, he said, had been foremost among those bent on destroying the usefulness of the Railroad Labor Board "by violation of the existing law."

Disputing the statement that Atterbury substantially wrote the bill, La Follette said it had been worked out in conference between railroad managers and employes.

Developing that the Interstate Commerce Committee had refused a request of members of the Railroad Labor Board to be heard, Reed charged that the committee had cut off the hearings without giving opportunity for all sides to present their case.

Conceding that the committee had denied a request from W. W. Beird, president of the Chicago & Alton, to extend the hearings, Watson said an end had to come some time if the committee were to get out any legislation. The committee chairman charged that the purpose of the motion to recommit was to kill the bill.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN ELEVATOR DEATH

Hein Inquest Discloses Lack of Safety Devices on Railway Exchange Cariers.

Elevators in the Railway Exchange Building, the largest office building in St. Louis, are not equipped with inner safety gates and there is no device to prevent them from starting up and down while the outer doors are open.

This was disclosed at the Coroner's inquest today into the death yesterday at Baptist Hospital of Elmer Hein, 30 years old, an accountant, of 7036 Kingsbury avenue, from injuries suffered May 3, when he was thrown backward to the floor of an elevator in the building as he was attempting to get out after the elevator had started.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned after testimony by the operator of the elevator, Jessie Ellis, a Negro, 2700 Baldwin street, and Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the building. Questioning of Ricketts by Deputy Coroner Dever disclosed lack of safety devices in the building's elevators.

The operator testified that Hein and two other men entered the elevator to descend at the twenty-first floor. The other men left the elevator at the nineteenth floor and the operator looked around to see if Hein, who had offices on the twenty-first floor, wished to alight also, as he frequently had done, she testified. She said he was reading a slip of paper and she started the elevator downward.

"As I closed the door and started down he rushed for the door and his left leg slipped through the small opening between the floor of the elevator and the wall," she declared. She added that she stopped the elevator at about the eighteenth floor.

Ricketts testified there is an opening of one and one-half inches between the floor edge of the elevator and shaft walls at each floor level, and said that this space is increased to about four inches between the elevator floor edge and the wall between floors. He said the operator has been employed for the last four years, and asserted he considered her efficient.

A new safety elevator ordinance, passed at the last session of the Board of Aldermen, and which becomes effective May 22, requires that doors or gates be equipped with an interlock to prevent movement of the car unless the door or gate is within two and one-half inches of being closed. The ordinance allows 18 months for making changes in elevators now in operation to conform to its requirements. It was passed following the death of John H. McCluney, Dec. 31 last, in a fall down an elevator shaft in the National Bank of Commerce Building.

FOUR GERMAN PRINCESSES TO INHERIT LARGE ESTATES

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 11.—Four princely young women, of whom the oldest is but 15 and the youngest 7, seem destined to become the richest Princesses in Prussia. They are second cousins to ex-Emperor William II, and the sole heirs of the so-called Albrecht line of the house of Hohenzollern.

Marie Therese, Louise Henrietta, Marianne and Elizabeth von Hohenzollern are the daughters of the late Prince Frederick William, who in turn was a son of the late Prince Albrecht, brother of Emperor William I. Albrecht was regent of Brunswick, and left an immense fortune which was divided among his three sons, Frederick Henry, Joachim Albrecht and Frederick William.

Frederick Henry as the oldest of the three sons was given, among other possessions, the estate of Camenz in Silesia, one of the largest and most profitable junker estates in Prussia, which has an area of 60,000 acres. The other two inherited as their chief legacy one of the most valuable parcels of real estate in Berlin.

It happens that neither Frederick Henry nor Joachim Albrecht has any children.

Iron with Cod Liver Oil Makes Weak Child Strong

New Easy-to-Take Tablet Form Builds Him Up Quickly

When your child "outgrows his strength" or is weakened by illness he should be given remedies known as "food tonics" to rebuild solid flesh and produce rich red blood. For this purpose, physicians prescribe cod liver oil and iron.

Chemists now extract the vitamines and flesh-building elements from cod liver oil and throw the nasty, useless oil away. They combine these extracts with blood-building iron in easy-to-take tablet form.

To get the genuine, specify Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets at the drug store. You'll soon have cause to be proud of the sturdy, energetic, well-nourished condition of your youngster. For sale by Walgreen Co., Drugs with a Reputation.

ASKS KELLOGG TO FIND A WAY TO LET DUTCH HERO INTO U. S.

Congressman Says Country Needs Such Material as Johannes Tielle, Life-Saver.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Secretary of State Kellogg was asked today by Representative Bloom (Dem.) of New York if it were not possible to allow Johannes Tielle, a young Hollander, deported Saturday after saving from drowning a young woman and a coast guardsman who went to her rescue, to reenter the United States on a non-quota basis. Tielle was deported because he was found in Buffalo without evidence of legal entry, having landed in New York two years ago as a seaman and failed to rejoin his ship.

"I would personally post a bond to guarantee that this desirable young man would not become a public charge," Bloom wrote. "It occurs to me that such extraordinary heroism as shown by this young man is entitled to some tangible recognition from our country, which is much in need of material of which he is made."

Of the five biggest selling cigarettes in America, the ONLY one of its type!

IT MAY WELL PROVE the "only" cigarette for your taste, too:

If you prefer something "out of the ordinary," instead of following the crowd (for this cigarette is distinctly different from the other big brands);

If as yet you have never tasted a "Virginia tobacco" cigarette (and without this agreeable experience no man's cigarette knowledge is complete);

If you once knew but have half-forgotten its mild sweetness, its zest and sparkle, and now would like to enjoy them anew.

In fact, the remarkable record of this big brand and the reasons behind it should interest all men who care enough for their smokes to think twice about them.

OF THE five leading cigarettes in the United States today, four are "Turkish Blends"—that is, blends of Turkish and American tobaccos. Each is distinctive, of course — in proportioning of tobaccos and in taste — but each contains at least some measure of Turkish blended in with its Domestic tobaccos. The fifth, the one big exception, is a cigarette made solely from the golden leaf known as "Virginia tobacco."

Piedmont, of course—we hardly need to name it. Ranking today among the top four in sales, it has been steadily among the leaders for twenty-five consecutive years—more than the whole life of any other "big" brand.

The one big exception!

Now, if it takes a corking good cigarette of any type, as it certainly does, to sell several billion a year, it surely must take a "regular humdinger" to win sales against the mighty current of popular taste.

And that is exactly what Piedmont has done. For in the last 10 or 15 years this country as a whole has turned noticeably toward the "Turkish Blend" type of cigarette — yet against four to one odds, Piedmont has actually held its place among the leaders, year after year.

Apparently in every new generation of smokers there are men, and a goodly number of them, to whom something "out of the ordinary" has a real appeal. Herbert Spencer said: "the minority is always right;" and at any rate these smokers who have left the crowded road to take a path of their own choosing must have found it pleasant—for they do stick to Piedmonts without end.

No man can claim cigarette knowledge until he has smoked a "Virginia tobacco" cigarette.

What lies behind this unique record?

But it is the different taste of Piedmonts that really counts.

It must be a matter of taste difference, for you will find Piedmont in the cigarette cases of prosperous New York and Chicago brokers, and in the pockets of workmen, who from their limited tobacco money must extract the last ounce of pleasure; you will find it the favorite among old tobacco men in the South, trained to match one leaf against another; and you will find it ever popular, on either coast, with men who follow the sea. Probably no other cigarette is smoked by more diverse types of people.

And this is important—for it means that Piedmont is chosen, not because "everybody's doing it," but for itself—because it possesses a genuine tobacco difference which any smoker of any class can recognize.

Probably no other cigarette is smoked by more diverse types of people.

A genuine difference—tobacco sweetness!

The explanation of Piedmont's record, then, is simple. Virginia tobacco is different from other tobaccos, always has been, and always will be—and Piedmont is made of first-quality "bright" Virginia tobacco, and nothing else.

And if you like mildness and unmixed purity of flavor, if you like that indescribable thing which we call "natural tobacco sweetness," you'll like Virginia tobacco—and you'll get it at its best in Piedmont.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Just what IS this Virginia tobacco?

It is a distinct type of tobacco grown in certain favored sections of four States—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia. The golden or "bright" Virginia used in Piedmont is a direct descendant of the first tobacco known to civilized man. Cultivated and improved for over three hundred years, its mild sweetness and purity of taste, not equalled by any other tobacco grown, have won world-wide prestige. It is truly the aristocrat of cigarette tobaccos.

EGAN GANG EXHIBIT FOR PHILADELPHIA FAIR

Chief Kaiser Prepares Case Display Containing Picture Story of Operations.

A case exhibit, illustrating the breaking up of the Egan gang has been prepared under supervision of Chief of Detectives Kaiser after a year's work in collecting material, and will be shown this summer in Philadelphia at the sesqui-centennial exposition there. A photograph of the exhibit appears on the picture page of today's Post-Dispatch.

In a case five and a half feet long and four feet wide, the display is made up of photographs of the gang members, the officers who ran them down, and witnesses, and is attractively varied with statistical data on the fate of members of the gang.

The gang photographs, 24 in number, are in two clock shaped designs, each of which includes 12 automatics and revolvers seized from Egan gangsters. In the center of one design is a large photograph of "Dinty" Colbeck, head of the gang, and in the other that of his chief lieutenant, "Chippy" Robinson, both of whom are serving Federal penitentiary terms for mail robberies.

Photos of Gangsters.

In the left hand "clock" are the photos of Harry Londo and Eddie Linehan, who were killed by members of their own gang; Charles Crowe, who was killed in a holdup; "Red" Lanham, Steve Ryan, Frank Hackenthal, William Engler and "Cotton" Eppelsheimer, who are serving Federal terms for mail robberies; Isadore Londe, now serving 40 years in Michigan for robberies, and "Dizzy" Daniels, who is in Jefferson City penitentiary on a life term for killing a policeman.

In the other "clock" are photos of Roy Tipton, Bartley Martin, Oliver Dougherty, "Featheredge" Schmidt, "Red" Smith, Leo Cronin and Gus Dietmeyer, Federal mail robbery convicts; Lee Turney, the gangster aviator, now a Federal convict; Barney Castle, killed in a Los Angeles holdup, and "Whitey" Doering, killed in a Williamson County brawl while under 30-year sentence for mail robbery.

In a center T-shaped design are photographs of Postoffice Inspectors Noah, Bunsen, Uttley, Reuter and Ward; Chief Kaiser, Detective-Lieutenant Ben Heggeman, Detective Sergeant Busch and former Constable Schoenbein, who were active in running down the gangsters; Special Assistant Attorney-General Horace Dyer and United States Attorney Williamson of Springfield, who prosecuted them, and United States District Judges FitzHenry and Faris, who sentenced them.

Witnesses Shown.

In other layouts are photographs of Dave Weisman, Doering's houseman, who is now in Federal prison; George V. Halliday, John Niedringhaus and John Dummeyer, brokers who testified against the gangsters in relating disposal of stolen securities; Thomas Saatkamp of Staunton, Ill., who testified against them in a trial before Judge FitzHenry; "Cocky" Leonard, a lesser light of the gang, and Walter Kelly, blind lawyer, who was indicted with eight of the gangsters for the St. Louis mail robbery of April 2, 1923, but has not yet been tried.

Photographs of the gang hangouts, dynamite fuse and assorted cartridges complete the exhibit.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED OF $925

Egg Dealer Tells Police Negro Forced Him Into Alley.

Isadore Schachter, an egg dealer, of 5565 Vernon avenue, was robbed of $925 by a Negro at 10:30 a. m. today, in an alley off Jefferson avenue between Wash and Stoddard streets.

Schachter told police that he had just drawn $800 from the Laclede Trust Co., at Jefferson avenue and Olive street, and was walking north in Jefferson to pay a bill owed Solomon Schneider of 2600 Dickson street. When he reached the mouth of the alley, the Negro stepped up behind him, pressed a revolver against his back and ordered him to walk into the alley, where he was searched and the money taken. The Negro escaped. The loss is insured.

SARGENT TO GO AFTER MILLERS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Department of Justice has taken a hand in the investigation of the flour milling and bread making industries with a view to obtaining, through grand jury proceedings, if necessary, evidence which certain concerns have refused to divulge to the Federal Trade Commission.

In a preliminary report submitted to the Senate and Trade Commission charged restriction of competition among some flour millers, but asserted its inquiry was blocked by the refusal of certain concerns to furnish data. It was learned at the commission offices that Attorney-General Sargent has requested and received the commission's report.

Bottles Thrown Through Windows.

Police are investigating a report by Louis A. May, 5840 De Giverville avenue, that milk bottles were thrown through both a front and rear window of his home at 2:45 a. m. today. May, a salesman for the Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., was asleep on a rear sleeping porch into which one bottle was thrown, but escaped injury. He told police he was unable to account for the attack.

Woman Freed of Killing Cousin.

By the Associated Press.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 11.—Jessie Hoge, 55 years old, was acquitted here of murdering Nathan Bell, her aged cousin, who the State alleged, was poisoned. Judge Ritz directed the verdict. No defense witnesses were called.

The Greater Hoover

—Even More Efficient Than the Previous Hoover And Offered for a Short Time at Special Terms!

Delivered on Cash Payment of Only $2 Balance in Convenient Monthly Payments

Everyone is enthusastic about "The Greater Hoover" when its wonder-working efficiency is demonstrated! It reveals cleaning efficiency that you would not think possible, until you see it. From every standpoint that careful housewives judge the Cleaner they buy, this Hoover excels. It is an engineering achievement, indeed—even more efficient than the former model, which was so widely considered the standard of efficiency! See it in our Electric Shop at your earliest convenience.

What the "Greater Hoover" Does—

It relieves you of the hardest cleaning tasks—beating and sweeping. The Greater Hoover doesn't merely beat—it makes possible "positive agitation" of floorcoverings.

By actual test, in the ordinary cleaning time, the Greater Hoover beats out and sweeps up from carpetings an average of 101% more dirt.

The Greater Hoover is an even greater rug saver; the oftener a carpet is cleaned with it the longer that carpet will wear—because all injurious dirt is removed.

The Greater Hoover requires a minimum of your care and attention—it is virtually service-proof; every part, including the new motor, requires NO oiling.

The Greater Hoover dusts as thoroughly as it removes dirt from rugs; the remarkable efficiency of its dusting tools has been increased by 50% stronger suction.

The dirt gathered up is safely and positively imprisoned in the bag until you empty it—this bag is dust and germ proof.

Also the fabric of the Greater Hoover's bag is now washable—a sanitary feature that you'll highly commend.

The Greater Hoover is a cleaner that you'll be proud of owning from the standpoint of appearance—and every new feature of it insures greater operating ease.

There is no reason for "getting along" with inferior cleaning equipment—because our terms make the "best" available to all. $2 cash places the Greater Hoover in your home to use while you pay the balance most conveniently. We will be glad to "Hover-clean" a rug in your home—without charge or obligation to you. Phone GArfield 5900.

American Flyer Who Looped North Pole Gives Full Credit to Pilot on Return to King's Bay.

ROUSING WELCOME HOME ON CHANTIER

Town Holds All-Night Celebration as Fatigued Aviators Sleep the Clock Around.

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York Times.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, May 11.—When Lincoln Ellsworth of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar expedition greeted Lieutenant-Commander Byrd and Pilot Bennett on their return from looping the North Pole by airplane, Byrd pointed to Bennett.

"It was Bennett—he did it," said Byrd.

Bennett, so tired he could hardly speak, said all he wanted was sleep. Man after man rushed up with congratulations, the Norwegians beaming happily at the end of an adventure their Northern hearts could readily appreciate.

Then Byrd and Bennett turned and walked down hill, led by Capt. Amundsen and Ellsworth. They got into a little boat which put out to their ship, The Chantier, as the crew of the Heimdal, the Amundsen-Ellsworth ship, lined the rail, gave cheers and their band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Rousing Welcome on Chantier.

When they reached the Chantier the whole crew, many unshaven and hardly rested from their labors in getting the airplane off, roared their joy. It was a scene not soon to be forgotten. The Northern light shone as brilliantly bright. On the white mountains the air was crystal clear and every crevice could be seen in the peaks of ice miles away. Hardly a cloud was in the sky.

Only 10 days ago the Chantier steamed into these Northern waters and now Byrd has made the flight. So great is the enthusiasm that every American in the place is greeted with outstretched hands in congratulation.

High up on the white hillside, silent and deserted for the time being, the great blue Fokker rests like a tired bird, its wings outstretched, headed South, her journey ended. The plane was engined for the flight with three Wright air-cooled motors of 200 horsepower each.

Sees Symbol in Sacrifice.

In a special interview Ellsworth said:

"When the Norwegian, American and Italian flags rest side by side at the Pole, there will be symbol of the three nations whose sons have deposited them as an example of the spirit which seeks to give and not to take. The value of these expeditions in dollars and cents is impossible to estimate, but the people who paid for them with their lives and sufferings have not paid in vain. Explorations grow out of the best qualities, both physical and mental."

Although protesting that he was not fatigued, Byrd retired early after his return and slept the clock around. Bennett, the pilot, doing likewise. In the exhilaration of success they had not realized to what extent they had been taxed.

King's Bay rubbed its eyes after an all-night celebration, wondering if it really was true that the Americans had already flown to the pole and returned. Everybody expressed admiration for Byrd's accomplishment and wonder at the precision of navigation which took the plane to the pole and back without the slightest deviation from course. On his return, according to calculations, Byrd still had enough gasoline and oil for five and a half hours' more of flight.

Expedition Takes Day Off.

Our entire expedition is taking a day off today, after which it will begin gathering material for the return. The Chantier's boilers must be cleaned and this will take from a week to a fortnight.

Meanwhile, the good ship Josephine Ford, while probably doing no further exploring, will be taken up for one or more test flights over Spitzbergen especially to obtain more data about ski construction. Both Byrd and Bennett agree that skis are the only feasible landing gear for Polar planes, but think those used in the flight did not have enough surface and that the design can be improved.

Bennett is enthusiastic about the possibilities of Arctic flying. He predicts it will soon be a common occurrence for planes to traverse the Polar regions, alighting and taking off at will.

BYRD GUIDED BY SHADOW ON DIAL OF SUN COMPASS

He Had One of Four Such Instruments in Existence—Observations "Bullet-Proof," Says Hydrographer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—One of the most important factors in the success of the initial flight of Commander Byrd and Pilot Bennett to the North Pole was their ability at all times to determine with accuracy and celerity both their exact direction and geographical position.

Use of the Bumstead sun compass and the Byrd bubble sextant in conjunction with the Little Hales method for finding geographical position in the region of the pole, made this possible and enabled Commander Byrd easily to know where he was at every stage of the journey and when he reached the pole.

With these instruments it was unnecessary to resort to the mariner's compass, which is of little value in the Arctic region on account of the wide fluctuation in magnetic variation; or to old-style sextants, which depend for operation on the finding of a horizon, one of the most difficult things to do in the Far North.

Latest Navigating Devices.

The sun compass and bubble sextant utilized by the flyers, as well as the Littlehales position-finding formula, represent the latest developments in the realm of aerial navigation. The success that has attended their use by Commander Byrd, enabling him to find his way not only to the pole, but to return to his base at King's Bay safely without placing any reliance on the mariners' compass, is expected by scientists in Washington to revolutionize the exploration of the polar regions.

This is the conviction of George Littlehales, hydrographic engineer of the hydrographic office of the Navy Department, who provided Commander Byrd with the formula he used for finding his geographical positions in the region of the pole, and of Albert H. Bumstead, chief cartographer of the National Geographical Society, inventor of the Bumstead sun compass.

Smallness of Compass.

By means of the sun compass, so compact that Commander Byrd was able to hold it in one hand while operating the controlstick with the other, he was able accurately to set the "direction" of his course along any desired line of flight. Having once so set his course he was easily enabled to determine his exact geographical position by the use of the Littlehales method. All he needed in addition to the latter was a correct watch, set accurately to Greenwich mean time, a bubble sextant and a nautical almanac. With these instruments and the formula his geographical position could at all times be plotted.

Before leaving Washington for King's Bay, Commander Byrd had many conferences with Littlehales and Bumstead, during which the employer's navigation plans, the instruments he intended using and the method by which his computations were to be made were approved. These had never before been used except during the MacMillan-Byrd expedition of last summer to Etah and Ellesmere Land.

"Bullet-Proof" Observations.

"We were confident of the success of Commander Byrd's plans before he left Washington," said Littlehales, "provided his plane met with no mishap and he had favorable weather. I had no doubt that he would encounter any difficulty in finding his position in the region of the North Pole merely by reliance on observation of the sun, with the kind of instruments he intended to employ and the formula he intended using. I have not the slightest doubt that his method for position finding is bullet-proof and that it enjoys the additional advantage of being able to be done on the spot in the field of action, without necessitating elaborate computations on return to this country to determine whether observations were correct.

"With such instruments, carefully used, and plenty of sunshine, Commander Byrd could never go wrong in Polar navigation. He would be able to chart his course quickly at all times, and his Polar map would show his route upon his return."

"The sun is visible for 24 hours a day in the summer in the Far North," said Bumstead. "The sun compass used by Commander Byrd depends upon the fact that the sun moves regularly around the sky in 24 hours, and by having the clock with a 24-hour dial, the pointer can be following the sun while the instrument remains in one position.

"Only four of these sun compasses have ever been made, and I made them all. I had for some time realized the need of some kind of compass more reliable than the old-time mariner's compass for use in the Arctic. I recognized that need when the late Admiral Peary made his trip to the Pole and after his return I got busy endeavoring to invent a substitute for the mariner's compass.

"The result was this sun compass, three of which I made for Commander Byrd and his associates, who took their planes to Etah last year on the MacMillan-Byrd expedition. Commander Byrd tried them out there and was pleased with the results that he decided to take a sun compass on the present expedition.

Advantage of Sun Compass.

"Its advantage lies in the fact that when using it you do not have to worry over the variation of terrestrial magnetism. Under previous methods, computations were necessary, taking into account differences in magnetic variation, and this is so great in the polar regions that the mariner's compass is practically useless there. The computations had to be made for each different position.

"The sun compass, which can be used at all times when the sun's position is discernible, gives results right off the reel. After the sun compass is once set for the direction in which you are going, the rest is easy and automatic so long as the sun is shining. No figuring is necessary.

"The sun compass contains two dials. One of the dials is that of a clock, the other of a compass.

Guided by Shadow.

"If Commander Byrd desired to travel in a due north direction, he would set the compass for north and then so maneuver his plane that a shadow thrown along one of the hands of the clock dial exactly superimposed upon that hand. This shadow is cast by a projection that rises from the body of the clock hand. The sun compass is very easy to use when the clock has been accurately set to sun time and the sun is visible enough to cast a shadow.

"By means of such a compass Commander Byrd was able to set the course of his plane. After having once set that course, then his position on the line of flight would be determined by use of his bubble sextant, and the method of determining geographical position invented by Mr. Littlehales. Sight should not be lost of the fact that Commander Byrd was able, through use of his sun compass, bubble sextant, and the Littlehales method of determining geographical position, to return safely to his base at King's Bay. That, in my opinion, was as remarkable a feat as going to the pole. There were no landmarks in that region to guide him in the navigation of his plane.

"The fact that he had no difficulty in finding his way back is sufficient evidence of the accuracy with which Commander Byrd was at all times able to keep his course."

Value of Bubble Sextant.

Bumstead said the bubble sextant was devised by Byrd for use at the time of the navy's Transatlantic flight. The importance of the bubble sextant, he explained, was in the fact that its use depends wholly on the sun being visible and not upon any horizon. The ordinary sextant can be used only when the observer is able to find a clearly defined horizon in addition of having the sun visible.

One other instrument used by Commander Byrd was a drift indicator. By means of this instrument he was able to determine the influence upon his airplane of the wind, which would drive it off his charted course unless due allowance were made for such drift in the navigation of the plane. There was nothing particularly novel in this instrument, it is understood, as it is used by all American aviators.

NORWAY WAITING FOR BYRD'S PROOFS

By the Associated Press.

OSLO, Norway, May 11.—There is some diversity of opinion here as to whether Lieutenant Commander Byrd reached the North Pole in his flight from Spitzbergen Sunday.

Dr. Skattum, president of the Geographical Society, holding that it is impossible to accept Byrd's claim before his observations are published, says it must be remembered how difficult it was during the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar flight last summer to estimate positions when there were several observers in the plane, and that in the present flight there were only two men in the aircraft, and one of them always was occupied in piloting the machine.

On the other hand, Lieut. Boee, chief of the Army Aeronautic School, praises the achievement of Byrd and does not doubt his claim. Lieut. Leif Dietrichson, a member of last summer's expedition, believes Byrd reached the Pole, or close to it, but says that since the American did not land he could not very well have taken astronomical observations, and that, therefore, it will be impossible to determine positions exactly.

RAIL RATES OF U. S. HINGE ON DECISION IN ST. LOUIS CASE

Interstate Commerce Commission's Forthcoming Order on Busch Estate Railways Far-Reaching.

OPPOSITE VIEWS ON BASIS OF VALUATION

Actual Investment Theory of Examiner Arrayed Against Replacement Value Claim of Railroads.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Revision of the railroad rates for the entire United States will probably depend upon the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case of the St. Louis & O'Fallon and the Manufacturers' Railway companies, two short lines owned and controlled by the Adolphus Busch estate.

Lawyers for the commission and the railroads are working on this probability, although only a few hundred thousand dollars and about 50 miles of track are involved in this particular case, which on its face merely involves the issue of whether the two lines can be considered as a "system."

Underneath the surface, however, is a fundamental question involving hundreds of millions of dollars. It is: Shall the railroads be valued on the "prudent investment" theory of Justice Braindeis of the United States Supreme Court, as expressed in his dissenting opinion in the Southwestern Bell Telephone case, or shall the "replacement value" theory of the railroads be the standard?

Attorneys for the railroads yesterday filed their exceptions to the proposed report drawn up by J. Paul Kelly, an examiner for the commission, who used the "prudent investment" basis to reach a valuation for the O'Fallon line. The exceptions attacked the examiner's report as "predicated upon theories of law that are revolutionary and radical."

The examiner's report is merely for the guidance of the commission and is in no way binding. The railroad attorneys are Edgar A. Clark, former chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Wilbur La Roe Jr., a former examiner.

The record in the case is voluminous. Kelly's proposed report fills 34 foolscap pages; the printed rejoinder of the railroads makes a pamphlet of 64 pages. The exhibits are numerous.

Large Issues Involved.

"We have gone extensively into the law of this case because of the tremendous issue involved," Clark told the Post-Dispatch. "We are interested not so much in the amount of money involved in the O'Fallon case as we are in the future policy of the commission."

The direct issue in the St. Louis case is whether or not the O'Fallon company, a rich line operating nine miles of main line and 12 miles of yard tracks and sidings in and around East St. Louis, shall be compelled to pay into the commission's contingent fund for the relief of poor roads, part of its net operating income in excess of 5¾ per cent of its valuation, or shall be allowed to make up the deficit of the Manufacturers' road.

Attorneys for the two lines argue that the O'Fallon and the Manufacturers' lines really constitute a system, inasmuch as they are under common control and management. The manufacturers' line, operating 30 miles of track in St. Louis, was not so profitable as the East Side line during the periods under consideration and the attorneys contended that the two lines should be considered together so the gains of the O'Fallon line could be used to make up the deficit of the larger but weaker branch. The two lines have three common members on their board of directors.

Where Opinions Diverge.

Examiner Kelly, while admitting that the two lines are under common control and management, contended they should be considered separately.

"Not only is there separate physical identity of these carriers, but there is no evidence of any corelation of function or present interdependence which would include them in the same system," he maintains in his report.

Having taken this stand, it was incumbent upon him to make a valuation on the O'Fallon property that the commission might pass upon what amount should go into the contingent fund for the relief of poor lines.

The periods for which this payment of "recapture" was due were from March 1 to Dec. 31, 1919, and for each calendar year thereafter until Dec. 31, 1923.

To make this valuation some

CAIRO, May 11.—The two inmost coffins of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the final and most precious finds of last year's excavations in the Valley of Kings, were removed from Luxor today and shipped to Cairo by boat under heavy police guard. Great secrecy was maintained.

Both of the coffins, as well as a multitude of minor trophies, will be exhibited in the Cairo museum for the first time as soon as the transfer has been effected.

Howard Carter, the American archaeologist, who conducted the excavations, has closed and sealed King Tut's tomb.

DEMOCRATS IN MOVE TO KILL TWO-THIRDS MAJORITY RULE

Norman E. Mack and Miss Elizabeth Marbury Also Favor Abolishing Unit Voting.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 11.—Telegrams exchanged between two Democratic national committeemen indicate a movement is under way to abolish the two-thirds and unit rules in Democratic national conventions.

C. L. Herring, McAdoo supporter from Iowa, wired Norman E. Mack, Smith follower, asking for an opinion on the rules. Mack's reply also was signed by Miss Elizabeth Marbury, the other New York representative on the National Committee. Their message stated that the Democrats of New York believed the National Committee should recommend that the two-thirds rule be abolished and that nominations be made by a majority vote. In place of the unit rule, Mack and Miss Marbury recommemnde the adoption of one permitting each delegate to vote for any candidate.

The National Committee will meet next January.

BERLIN MANAGERS COMBINE TO MAKE SPOKEN DRAMA PAY

Audience of Subscribers Part of Plan of Reinhardt, Robert and Barnowsky.

Special Correspondence of the Post Dispatch.

BERLIN, April 25.—A new and important move in Berlin's theatrical life has been made by the three prominent producers of high-class plays, Max Reinhardt, Victor Barnowsky and Eugen Robert. They have decided to co-operate next season. Among them they will own six theaters. They have decided to pool not only the theaters, but actors, plays and audiences.

In spite of the good business done this season, it appears that no theater can pay its way today in Berlin without a strong support of permanent subscribers built up after the fashion of the State and the People's Theater. Of the plays accepted, those will be first performed which receive the unanimous approval of the board of directors. Plays which receive four votes will be considered next, and finally those with three votes.

Reinhardt's new theater, the "Comodie," has been taken over by the biggest stars of comedy, Max Fallenberg and his wife, Fritzi Massary.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS OF ROYAL BRITISH COAL COMMISSION

Recommendation and Proposals Made for Betterment of Working Conditions in English Mines.

This is the summary of findings and recommendations of the Royal Commission on Coal which is so frequently referred to in discussions of the General Strike in Great Britain.

THE summary of findings and the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Coal are as follows:

The coal mining industry, for more than a century the foundation of the economic strength of the country, has come upon difficult times. This change of fortunes is the result of powerful economic forces. It is idle to attribute it either on the one hand to political unrest or restriction of output among the miners, or on the other hand to inefficency in the day-by-day management of the mines.

At the same time we cannot agree with the view presented to us by the mine-owners that little can be done to improve the organization of the industry, and that the only practicable course is to lengthen hours and to lower wages. In our view large changes are necessary in other directions, and large progress is possible. We agree that immediate measures are indispensable to deal with the immediate position, but the effort ought not to stop there.

The problem, indeed, is two-fold. It has a permanent aspect and a temporary aspect. We have proposals to make with regard to each. We will take first the permanent aspect.

The Need for Changes.

The industry is marked by great diversities. Among the existing collieries many date from an earlier time, and, according to modern standards, are badly planned. The defects are the result partly of the age of our coalfields, partly of the private and divided ownership of the minerals, with its effects on the lay-out of the mines, partly of other causes. Very many of the collieries are on too small a scale to be good units of production. A number are defective in equipment and some in management. On the other hand, there are a large number of collieries which are admirably planned, equipped and managed.

The methods of utilizing coal are unscientific. Four-fifths of the coal consumed in the country is burnt in a raw state; oil and valuable by-products are wasted and the atmosphere is polluted.

Research into the methods both of winning and of using coal is inadequate.

Mining, in many places, should be intimately associated with several other industries—with gas, electricity, smokeless fuel, oil, chemical products, blast furnaces and coke ovens. A beginning has been made toward this combination, but it is no more than a beginning.

The selling organization and the methods of transport are too costly, and do not secure the best financial results for the collieries, and, therefore, for the miners employed in them.

While the relations of employers and employed are generally better than sometimes appears on the surface, the organization of the industry on its labor side calls for many improvements.

Nationalization Proposal.

As a remedy for these defects the Miners' Federation propose the nationalization of the mines. We do not recommend the adoption of this policy, for reasons which have been fully stated in this report.

We are not satisfied that the scheme proposed to us is workable, or that it offers a clear social gain. We perceive in it grave economic dangers, and we find no advantages that cannot be obtained as readily, or more readily, in other ways.

We contemplate accordingly the continuance of the industry under private enterprise, but we make a number of proposals for its reorganization.

Recommendations.

1. Ownership of the Mineral.—The error which was made in times past, in allowing the ownership of the coal to fall into private hands, should be retrieved. The mineral should be acquired by the State—by purchase where it has a market value, by a declaration of State ownership in the case of unproved coal or coal at deep levels, which has now no market value. The coal of existing mines which are likely soon to cease working, and coal which is not now worked and is not likely to be developed in the future, should be excluded from the purchase. Safeguards should be adopted against excessive compensation claims. A Coal Commission should be appointed, under the authority of the Secretary for Mines, to acquire and administer the mineral property.

2. Amalgamations of Existing Mines.—The amalgamation of many of the present small units of production is both desirable and practicable. This may often be affected from within, but in many cases it will only take place if outside assistance is given. Any general measure of compulsory amalgamation on arbitrary lines, would be mischievous; the action to be taken should be elastic, and should enable each case to be treated individually. The State as mineral owner will be able to promote desirable amalgamations when granting new leases or renewing old ones. Legislation should provide for a compulsory transfer of interests under existing leases where desirable amalgamations are prevented by the dissent of some of the parties or their unreasonable claims. Existing leases would not otherwise be affected.

3. Combination of Industries.—A closer connection of mining with the allied industries should be promoted. Highly technical questions are involved, affecting a number of industries, and not electriclay alone The development of electrical supply under the new proposals of the Government should be closely coordinated with the generation of electricity at the mines. The heat, power and light requirements of country should be under the constant and comprehensive survey of a body formed for the purpose. We propose for consideration the establishment of a National Fuel and Power Committee, with advisory powers, composed of representatives nominated by the Government from among the official and other bodies concerned.

4. Research.—The existing provision for research should be lagely extended by the industry with the support of the state. It is urgently necessary that new methods for winning and utilizing coal should be sought for, and should be found, if the prosperity of the industry is to be restored and a proper standard of wages and working conditions assured to the workers. If processes of low temperature carbonization were perfected, great national advantages would ensue, particularly through the production of a smokeless fuel for domestic and industrial use, and the provision of large supplies of mineral oil from the country's own resources. The state should give financial support to the further experiments on a commercial scale, which are necessary.

5 Distribution.—The industry as a whole has so far failed to realize the benefits to be obtained by a readiness to co-operate. Large financial advantages might be gained by the formation, in particular, of co-operative selling agencies. They are specially needed in the export trade.

The Government should consider the establishment of an official system for the sampling and analysis of coal, with a view to encourage selling on specification and guarantee, in both the home and the foreign markets.

Local authorities should be empowered to engage in the retail sale of coal.

We propose measures to secure the adoption of larger mineral wagons on the railways, and a greater concentration of ownership of wagons. A Standing Joint Committee of the Ministry of Transport and the Mines Department should be formed to promise these measures.

6. Labor.—The relations between employers and employed are of fundamental importance, and here also we are convinced that a number of changes are necessary.

(1). The principle on which the recent wage agreements have been based is, in our opinion sound, but amendments are needed in the method of ascertaining the proceeds of the industry for the fixing of wages. A large proportion of the coal is sold by the mines to associated industries, and the most important of these amendments relates to the prices at which these transfers are made.

(2). The standard length of the working day, which is now on the average 7½ hours underground, should remain unaltered. The optional redistribution of hours within the present weekly total, over a week of five days instead of six, should be considered. The multiple shift system should be extended.

(3). Joint pit committees should be established generally.

(4). The methods of payment of men not employed at the face should be advised where possible so as to give them a direct interest in output.

(5). The introduction of a family allowance system, either nationally or by districts, is desirable. Pooling schemes should be adopted to prevent married men with families being prejudiced in obtaining employment.

(6). Profit-sharing schemes, providing for the distribution to the workmen of shares in the undertakings, should be generally adopted in the industry, and should be made obligatory by statute.

(7). For all new collieries a

GERMANY FAVORS NEW SYSTEM IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

Proposes That Membership Be Classified as Permanent, Six-Year, and Three-Year.

SPAIN STILL WANTS PERMANENT PLACE

Starts Propaganda Among Catholic Countries by Urging Co-Operation of League and Vatican.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, May 11.—With half a dozen divergent proposals before it, ranging from abolition of permanent seats in the League of Nations Council to creation of three or four categories of seats, the Council Reconstruction Committee met yesterday to attempt to democratize the organization's machinery.

Upon their success depends Germany's entrance next September, the possible withdrawal of Brazil, Spain, China and Persia, and continental political complications which might affect the ground work of the Locarno pacts.

Spain Still Unyielding.

Outwardly the situation which caused the disaster of the March Assembly is unchanged. Spain is still adamant in her claims for a permanent seat and has started adroit propaganda for support of Catholic countries by advocating closer co-operation between the league and the Holy See.

According to Afranio Mello-Franco, Brazil's aspirations are unabated, although Argentina's imminent return to the league practically precludes a permanent seat for the South American country.

The commission is expected to appoint a subcommittee composed of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay to formulate collective demands for American republics. Ten South American nations during the March assembly announced their opposition to any additions to the permanent membership except Germany, the United States and Russia. Consequently their recommendations are a foregone conclusion.

Germany's Plan.

Ambassador von Hoesch from Paris and Dr. Gauss, Foreign Office judicial expert, arrived to represent Germany. Wilhelmstrasse's compromise evisages a future council with only big Powers as permanent members, while such nations as Spain, Brazil, China and Poland would be elected by a certain specific majority for si-year terms and be eligible for re-election. A third category would consist of non-permanent members elected for three years and ineligible thereafter for another three years.

Trouble is anticipated regarding the unanimity rule under which Brazil was able to tie up the March proceedings. The movement for abolition of the rule has gained headway, although England and Italy insist upon its inviolability. One proposal advanced by smaller states is that it be retained only for questions involving war and peace.

Lord Robert Cecil has announced England's hands are free of all previous pledges, including the promise to support Spain, while Vittorio Scialoia's instructions indicate Italy will support the British in opposition to an increase in the permanent membership. Paul Boncour's pledge for France to support Poland is not taken seriously, as Warsaw is assured a nonpermanent seat for at least six years, which will be gladly accepted so long as there are no other permanent additions.

ATTORNEYS MUST SUPPORT FASCISTI UNDER NEW LAW

Any Who Have Been Publicly Active Against State Will Be Barred From Practice.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 11.—Lawyers whose activities are regarded as inimical to the Italian state henceforth will not be permitted to practice their profession, according to a decree which went into effect today.

"Lawyers and attorneys, who have carried out public activity in contradiction of the interests of the nation are not to be admitted to the bar, and those who are already members must be expelled," says the decree issued by Fascist authorities.

The new oath that is prescribed calls upon the legal candidate to promise "to fulfill professional duties with loyalty, honor and diligence for the superior ends of justice and the superior interests of the nation."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Self-Defense, the First Law of Nature.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN your editorial entitled "The Tennyson Case" you unequivocally state you are opposed to the prosecution of those violating the concealed weapon law provided the weapon is used in self-defense. Our courts, however, have decided that "The Missouri Statute against carrying a concealed weapon does not permit a citizen to carry a concealed weapon for his personal safety; it does not exempt from its penalty those who carry a concealed weapon in self-defense; and it is not unconstitutional." State V. Keet, 269 Mo. 206, 190 S. W. 573.

Seldom has the Post-Dispatch so completely permitted maudlin sentiment to influence its position on a question of public policy. The use to which the girl put the weapon, however justifiable, cuts no figure. Her offense was complete when she stepped from her home armed. Assuming that she had then been arrested, would the Post-Dispatch have defended her?

The concealed weapon statute is based upon the soundest principles of public policy. The Tennyson case illustrates this. Had the girl been unarmed she probably would have avoided entering a situation where protection of her person demanded the taking of life. When individuals are permitted to carry deadly weapons concealed on their person the number of homicides immediately increases. Past experience so conclusively demonstrates this that argument is unnecessary. A READER.

Real Mothers Not Out of Date.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SCANNING through today's (Sunday's) edition of the Post-Dispatch, my eyes incidentally fell upon the "Society News Section," and, lo and behold! "Matrons and Their Children"! Nothing of the freak or politician or circus rider about them; just mothers with their Madonna faces, and oh, those sublime motherly smiles when their angel like young are around! Faces and quite evidently characters that have urged and helped man so much throughout the ages in their upward climb.

This, indeed, is a forward stride in modern journalism. It is even unique. To recognize motherhood as a woman's achievement in this sophisticated jazz-mad age requires courage. I hope you are big enough to blaze the way. I just wish to ask you not to confine yourself to one class only. All mothers are mothers. Lincoln's mother, who was not a butterfly either, nor is there any record of her doing any Congress lobbying, in her humble station in life with tiny Abe in her arms, would hardly have attracted the attention of reporters today in search for Sunday material. A BACHELOR.

Safe Recreation for Girls.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I JUST read the letter in the Letters From the People Column signed "A Father." I have also read of the pathetic tragedy of which the father writes. I note that the father says that there is no humorous side of this tragedy. I quite agree with this gentleman.

I have several sisters who, when they came to the city, found sufficient recreation by attending church and the social functions the church affords. My sisters never picked up with strange men, attended the public dance halls or St. Louis County. And they never went out alone. Neither did they drink liquor or carry pistols. They are pretty girls and are now all married to honorable gentlemen. Never in my life did I ever hear of them complaining that any man insulted them. They would speak of men they met and always how kind they were to them. I attribute this to the fact that my sisters went to decent places, acted decently, dressed decently and invited no insults. My brother often tells me of how girls try to tempt him by showing themselves and making suggestive remarks. I think that that is the seat of such tragedies. Boys are only human, and when once enticed, work hard to carry through someone else's suggestion. This is innate in all boys. Some girls think it is smart to merely tease the foolish boys. If the boys are bad, the girls can reform them; if the boys are good, the girls can ruin them and then murder them and sometimes get away with it. I respect women and I find that 99 per cent of the men do, unless the woman causes them to think she is looking for a thrill. A BIG BROTHER.

The Beam in Our Own Eye.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

APROPOS of the mistakes even the best of us make when we venture to criticise others, and with particular reference to the brief editorial in your paper entitled "Mr. Babbitt's Bad Grammar" wherein you take Sinclair Lewis to task for his awkward use of the word "between" in his letter declining one of the Pulitzer prizes, it seems to me that the writer of this comment is in the same class with Mr. Babbitt himself. He stands convicted on the statement that "between" as used here, is pretty slovenly."

How can anything be "slovenly" and "pretty"?

It was Uncle Remus who said:

Right dar you'er boun' ter slide."

THE SAGGING BRITISH FIGHT.

Walter Lippman of the New York World, writing from London about the general strike situation, to the World and Post-Dispatch, insists that the Trades Union Congress did not intend the strike to be revolutionary. They declare that it is an industrial dispute, and that the whole purpose of the labor leaders was to obtain a living wage and decent working conditions for labor. But, Mr. Lippman adds:

As far as I can judge, the Government contention is right, in that a thoroughly successful general strike would transfer the ultimate power in England from Parliament to the Trade Union Congress, the affairs of England would be conducted thereafter with constant reference to the threat of another general strike and the reprisals which the antiunion forces would organize. In this sense, and this sense alone, the strike is revolutionary.

What the intent of the strikers was is of little importance. It is the logic of the situation that governs. As the Post-Dispatch remarked on the first day of the strike, the effect, if the fight were carried to a finish, would be revolutionary, and that a general strike was revolutionary, regardless of its intent, because it was aimed at the life of the nation and the Government. In short, it proposed to cut off all industry and trade and transportation, and so completely to tie up the business agencies that support the life and prosperous activities of the nation that the nation must surrender completely to organized labor.

A victorious general strike, therefore, would transfer the controlling power from the Government, representing the nation as a whole, to the strikers, representing organized labor.

This is the logic of a general strike, and it is this logic, this inevitable result, undoubtedly, which enabled the British Government to rally the masses of the people not affiliated with organized labor, and even many of the union workmen, to the support of the Government. The people felt that unless the strike were broken, the triumph of the labor class would inaugurate the dictatorship of the proletariat. Parliamentary government would be at an end.

It is the recognition of the inevitable effect of the general strike which is probably accountable for the apparent weakness of the strike, which late news indicates is sagging. The trades unions have discovered where the logic of their general strike methods leads, and are reluctant to go to extreme measures. However sympathetic the public may be with them on the industrial dispute, that sympathy is offset by opposition to the general strike method and its logical result.

The settlement of the strike, however, will be a mere truce. The mining industry must be thoroughly reorganized and probably ruthlessly readjusted, in the matter of mine royalties. England is heavily handicapped by a privileged caste and class and with antiquated landlordism. Quite a radical readjustment in line with the land reforms begun by Lloyd George will probably have to be accomplished before England can be put on a sound economic and political basis.

A rational and satisfactory readjustment, however, cannot be accomplished by general strikes or by force of any kind. That spells ruin. It must be accomplished by reasonable political and economic reform.

J. HAM'S HEROISM.

We have grossly misjudged J. Hamilton Lewis. That gentleman, who once lent elegance to the United States Senate, is noted in this country chiefly for his sartorial splendor. From his famous pink whiskers to his spatted shoes he has always been faultlessly and immaculately turned out. This outer display is deceptive. It is difficult to understand how a man who gives such fastidious attention to his clothing could have anything but a fashion plate's interest in life. Yet under J. Ham's boutonniered morning coat beats a brave and chivalrous heart.

He proved it in Paris. The annual riot in celebration of Joan of Arc Day was merrily proceeding. Everyone was having a good time except three American women, who were caught in the joyous head-cracking, cane-swinging crowd. J. Ham espied them, dashed into the crowd and rescued them. In the melee, J. Ham was considerably mussed, bruised and disarranged. He was a jaunty boulevardier when he rushed in; when he came out he was a sorry and disheveled sight.

There is a moral to this incident, namely, the man with pink whiskers sometimes packs a mighty sock.

GOV. BAKER AND THE DERBY.

In the list of boxholders for the Kentucky Derby, to be run at Louisville next Saturday, is the name of Gov. Sam Baker of Missouri. We were unaware that Gov. Baker is so interested in the sport of kings that he would have a box reserved for himself at a track more than 400 miles away from the executive mansion at Jefferson City. Since he is, it is, to say the least, an inconvenience for the Governor to go so far to see a horse race when, by vigorous leadership, he might enable Missouri to have her own race tracks.

WASHINGTON WONDERS.

Washington is speculating on the effect the indictment of former Attorney-General Daugherty is likely to have in the Iowa senatorial primary, in which Smith W. Brookhart, ousted Senator, is contesting the nomination with the venerable Albert B. Cummins.

Washington remembers that Brookhart was chairman of the committee that investigated Daugherty's administration of the Department of Justice at the instance of Senator Wheeler. Washington recalls that Brookhart allowed Wheeler the widest kind of latitude in presenting his evidence, and in consequence was bitterly denounced by all the hush-ups. Washington also remembers that, in the 1924 election, when the Democratic candidate for President, John W. Davis, was stressing the scandals of the Harding regime and demanding the rascals be turned out, Mahor Steck, the Democratic candidate for the Senate in Iowa against Brookhart, upbraided Brookhart, in the best manner of the Ohio Gang, for his method in conducting the Daugherty investigation.

So with all these poignant memories and poisonous data strewn around, Washington is inclined to think that this indictment of the former Attorney-General in a way substantiates the Wheeler charges, vindicates the chairman's management of the inquiry and perceptibly brightens Brookhart's prospects for defeating Cummins.

MERRITT AND MESABI.

As the man who discovered the Mesabi iron ore range in Northern Minnesota, Leonidas J. Merritt, who is dead at the age of 82, contributed in a notable way to the tremendous development of the United States in the past 30 years. It was in 1890 that Merritt struck the first major vein of the second largest ore field in the world. The Mesabi and other Lake Superior ranges have revolutionized the iron industry. In a highly industrial civilization whose ribs and framework are iron and steel, the significance of such an event is clear.

In 1870 the United States produced 3,080,000 tons of iron ore. Iron mining was then a picturesque but hardly a formidable industry. Iron ore had been found in numerous places throughout the United States, and gave rise to a legion of small furnaces. But in most cases the ore was in pockets, and was soon exhausted. In 1900, 10 years after the discovery of the Mesabi range, the production had risen to 16,393,000 tons. By 1913 it had reached 62,972,000 tons. In that year we definitely achieved world leadership, producing nearly four times more than England, nearly twice as much as Germany and 37 per cent of all the ore produced in the world.

It was a dun and ugly vein of mineral that Merritt found, but in this age it was more precious than gold. The Lake Superior region still vastly outranks other ore sections as an ore producer. In 1918 the Mesabi range yielded more than 39,000,000 tons. Figures for 1915 show that the Lake Superior region, including the Mesabi range, contributed 83.4 per cent of the entire American output. The Birmingham district was a distant second, with 8.5 per cent.

The story of Merritt, who was aided by his eight brothers in his find, is a brilliant chapter in the story of steel.

ALTON B. PARKER.

Alton B. Parker, whose death occurred suddenly yesterday afternoon, was a distinguished Judge and an able lawyer. His profession honored him signally. Universities conferred degrees upon him. His counsel was frequently sought in efforts of public worth.

But in politics, notwithstanding his party drafted him as a presidential candidate and paid many tributes to his ability, he lacked the qualities that make for popularity. His intellectual integrity prevented him from resorting to the tricks of the trade. He simply had no flair at all for the theatricalism of which both Roosevelt and Bryan were past masters.

For example, the "gold telegram." Here he was, the party's candidate, and on a platform which, by omitting all reference to free silver, might plausibly have been construed as an acceptance of the gold standard. That did not meet Judge Parker's requirement. Implication was not enough. Silent consent was not enough. He demanded an explicit statement in favor of the gold standard. On that condition only would he accept the nomination. It was an extraordinary act. It was unprecedented, bold, daring. A Roosevelt or a Bryan in such a role would have made the utterance epic. With Judge Parker it was merely a casual assertion.

It stunned the convention, to be sure. It infuriated Bryan. It aroused all the sullen hate of the Bryan wing into burning rage. The moral courage of the declaration, the bright, uncompromising honor of it, never entered into the public consciousness. Instead a gale of malediction swept the land. This reaction left the Judge unmoved.

He was badly beaten. He did not make much of a campaign. It was not until the closing days that he brought the charge of enormous slush funds against his opponent. Roosevelt denied with thunderous indignation. Subsequently the charge was pretty well verified by the Harriman correspondence; the "You and I are practical men"; the Cortelyou activities.

Twenty years ago, and more. The theater is emptied, the stage darkened, the music ended, the actors, mostly, gone. Now the "Sage of Esopus" leaves the scene. He lived and died, we think, in full possession of his self-respect.

IS "STOP THIEF" OBSOLETE?

Time was when a thief caught in the act and trying to get away could expect one or more of the public to help the victim of the theft, joining in the pursuit, with the hue and cry, "Stop thief." That possibility naturally made many a would-be robber pause before taking chances.

That was before the day of the automobile and the general disarming of the public, by laws which fail to disarm the professional lawbreaker. As told in Monday's Post-Dispatch, a policeman appealed in vain to three automobile drivers to aid him in following two hold-up men who had robbed citizens and were escaping in a motor car. Due to this refusal, the robbers made a clean get-away.

But what would have happened had the citizens driving automobiles consented to help the police officer by pursuing the robbers? Unarmed themselves, these citizens would have had to act as targets for the robbers' guns, with the best possible chances of being shot down. Under such circumstances, they can hardly be accused of cowardice or lack of sympathy with law enforcement. When and if the laws against carrying deadly weapons are so thoroughly enforced as to prevent lawbreakers obtaining arms, we may once more expect the average citizen to revive the thief-chasing industry.

BALLADE OF BELATED STRAW HATS.

Friends of a season indisposed
To lead us by that primrose way
Where Spring and Summer have disclosed
Their blended charms another day—
When Pan was always wont to play
For whomso sang or cared to dance—
Good friends, is there can truly say
When our straw hats will get a chance?

Is it to be like this throughout
The season when the katydids
Have usually chose to shout
The beauty of our rice-straw lids?
Since Egypt built the pyramids
No such fell blow was dealt romance
As that which still true love forbids—
When do our straw hats get a chance?

The trusts have bagged our little Cal;
The navy has refound the Pole;
Reform takes Folly for its pal,
And freedom sadly calls the roll.
Things do keep moving on the whole,
Albeit we may look askance
And doubt if man will save his soul—
When do our straw hats get a chance?

L'ENVOI.

Prince, we are restless, ill at ease;
This is not that which still enchants
Our hearts despite what age decrees—
When do our straw hats get a chance?

Words taken from daily newspapers, rather than time-honored trick words from spelling books, are the sort that should be taught in our schools, says State Superintendent Lee. Words from this source were used in the State contest last week.

Those most often misspelled in the high school division were: Supersedeas, manikins, Shakspearean, adherence, ofttimes, superheterodine, electricision, llottee. The elementary and rural school contestants missed: Proctocal, aboreal, untenable, demurrer, stratum, molecula, couched. The stiffest spelling came on the emergency contest given Williams and Pilant in the high school division in order to run off a tie. Some of the words used were: Tripartite, phantasmagoria, isochronous, pusillanimity and potpurri. Of fifty such words Williams missed but eleven and Pilant sixteen.—Monroe County Appeal.

That is all very flattering, but the newspapers cannot spell those words themselves.

Sir: That ardent dry, O. S., who rates his polemic so highly that he donated it gratis to all the local papers, should have convinced us alcoholic morons and moral degenerates that the degraded person who indulges in a drink is on par with the criminal careless, the thief and the sadist. Since O. S. does not believe that you can make people moral by legislation, one wonders why he and his kind sponsored the Eighteenth Amendment which tries to do that very thing. The fact of the matter is that prohibition is a religious idiosyncrasy which is perfectly good and proper within that sphere of moral persuasion as exercised by the church; but when it is indiscriminately forced upon all the people by compulsory governmental legislation, it borders upon gibbering imbecility. Consistency is indeed the one jewel which O. S. has not as yet added to his collection.

MORE DISCOVERIES.

SAN SALVADOR—Capt. Hispano of the Spanish Navy arrived here today from Falos, Spain, in a canoe equipped with overboard motor. He says America looks exactly as it did when Columbus discovered it, despite the drys.

HAWAII—Capt. Jones-Smith of the English Navy arrived here today from Bristol, England, in a motorboat powered with Diesel engines, retracing the route of Capt. Cook. He says the Sandwich Islands look about the same as they always did, and can't see how reign of King Cal differs particularly from that of King Calico.

NEW YORK—Capt. Ross of the Dutch Navy has reached this port in a rotorship, thus duplicating in our own way the feat of Capt. Henrik Hudson. He says New York is about what it always was except that Raquel Meller is here now.

BERMUDA—The celebrated three men who originally went to sea in a tub have reached here a second time in a peanut shell. They say all these things are being done in a different way and explorers have to be up-to-date. Bermuda, they say, has changed little; it is the work that is different.

DREAMS.

I have dreamed at times of love,
And pleasant things.
The drab, gray plumage of the dove,
The glorious light born of surprise,
The peace that evening brings,
The calm of God's blue skies.
Of tiny sprays of maiden-hair
In some remote and mossy place,
A green blossom's colorful snare,
And myriads of leaves enmeshed like lace.
I have dreamed
Of laureled brows; illimitable seas,
Luminous spirits; jasper and jades,
Waves of yellow; silver sanctuaries,
A woman's tears and etrurian glades,
Of cup-shaped hills where sunlight drips
Its wraith-like beauty all along,
Stooping to kiss your dear, sweet lips
So pregnant with rare glints of song.
Of all these I have dreamed, and more!
Noon-spectres, carven rocks, a good amend,
Esoteric canticles, an unimaginable shore,
Large red geraniums, an old fragrant friend,
Imperishable things; bright turquoise days,
A rainy smell; a mossy gate,
A sea of quietude, and soft, pungent haze,
Enveloping fields quite disconsolate,
Bold patches of sun; great cascades of time,
Pale hollows of clouds; a larkspur's deif blue,
A marvelous spell; a glow divine,
Mad exaltation, dear, and—you!

RACE RELATIONS.

From the Montgomery (Ala.) Journal:

IT will no doubt be difficult for those in the North and East who know the Negro problem only in the abstract to understand that scene enacted in Atlanta the other day when more than 500 members of the race formally presented to Dr. Jones Ashby Jones a silver pitcher. The event was designed to show the esteem in which the pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist Church in Atlanta is held by the leaders among the Negro race in that city. Dr. Jones is giving up his work in Atlanta after eight years of service to become pastor of the Second Baptist Church in St. Louis. He has been not only one of the outstanding pulpit ministers of the South, but his civic and welfare work has been of high order. Particularly appreciative are members of the Negro race of Dr. Jones' work in behalf of advancing interracial relations. That was a task to which Dr. Jones devoted much time and it was of a character which had the sympathetic co-operation of the leading thinkers in the South among both whites and Negroes. Thoughtful members of both races know that their destiny is concurrently in the Southern states, and they know that it is to the advantage of both races to have cordial relations exist. Those who are promoting this work are entitled to the gratitude of both races. The attitude of the Negroes could scarcely be better exemplified than was done in the case of visible evidence of their esteem shown to Dr. Jones.

THE DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE.

From the New Republic.

WITH international affairs in their present state, the outlook for the preliminary disarmament conference next month is about as gloomy as it could very well be. Russia has refused to participate, since the conference is to meet at Geneva, and Russia has boycotted Switzerland ever since the murder of Vorovsky. It is probably true that her alleged fear lest harm befall her envoys is only a pretext for keeping out of a conference for which from the beginning she has had no enthusiasm. It is also true that the western Powers are guilty of bad practice. If they believe, as they say, that the presence of Russia is vitally important they could have managed to hold the conference outside the boundaries of Switzerland. The truth is, of course, that they are divided in regard to the matter. France is afraid of what may develop in the final conference and for that reason is glad to see the postponement even of the preliminary meeting; the present British Government is apathetic about it; the real enthusiasm in so far as there is any, lies with the smaller powers and, to a not very startling degree, with the United States.

A SINGLE TAX PROBLEM

From the Baltimore Sun.

THE single taxer has a new problem with which to reckon. Dr. E. W. Brown, professor of astronomy at Yale, informs the National Academy of Sciences that the diameter of the earth periodically swells and shrinks by as much as 12 feet. That does not seem much until one learns that it means a change in bulk of as much as a million cubic miles. Who gets the unearned increment and who is economically penalized by this terrestial elasticity?

B. E. BRADLEY DIES IN SAN FRANCISCO

He Was for 11 Years Assistant General Manager of the Post-Dispatch.

Benjamin Edgar Bradley, former assistant general manager of the Post-Dispatch, died yesterday in San Francisco after an illness of a week. He was 56 years old.

For the last three years he had been residing at Sacramento, where, until his retirement last May, he had been associated with the Sacramento Union. Becoming seriously ill a week ago, he went to the University of California Hospital at San Francisco. Doctors were puzzled as to the exact nature of his ailment, which had been diagnosed as a form of toxemia.

Mr. Bradley was connected with the financial management of the Post-Dispatch for 11 years, coming to St. Louis from the Chicago Inter-Ocean, of which he had been night editor.

He planned and supervised the construction of the Post-Dispatch Building.

In July, 1918, he purchased an interest in the St. Louis Star, of which he became general manager. He remained there only a short time, going to the Denver Post. After a few months he purchased an interest in the Sacramento Union.

Surviving are two sons, Philip E. Bradley of Berkeley, Cal., and Robert Bradley of Denver, and a daughter, Catherine, with whom he resided. He was twice married, his first wife dying in 1910 and his second in 1922.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

standard was necessary, as prices fluctuated monthly. The railroad and capitalists in general have maintained that the proper value of a property is the amount of money necessary to replace it at prices existing at the time of the inquiry. In this way the unearned increment incidental to changing times would be incorporated in the value. Those of opposite opinion hold that the unearned increment should be eliminated by valuing the property at its actual purchase price, adding capital expenditures for betterment during the ensuing periods, less a certain percentage for depreciation. This procedure would eliminate the capitalization of good will and the intangible value of a going concern.

Figures for actual capital expenditures on the O'Fallon line were not available because the carrier's accounting records from the date of its incorporation in 1896 to 1908 were missing.

Valuing the O'Fallon Line.

The examiner contended, however, that construction costs remained about the same from 1896 to 1914. He, therefore, took the replacement value of the property as of 1914 and added the capital expenditures from that date until June 30, 1919, the date for valuation in the first period. He further found fault with the fact that the line had $47,000 cash on hand and materials and supplies listed on its books as worth $84,000, asserting that $50,000 was enough for these two purposes.

The examiner stated that $850,500 was a fair valuation for June 30, 1919, the arbitrary date set for the first period. For the succeeding periods he added the amount of actual capital expenditures and deducted minor amounts for depreciation.

The railroad officials contended this was not the way to calculate valuation. They were willing to take the replacement figures of 1914 as a starting point, but stated that prices for all commodities increased enormously during the ensuing ten years. Using index figures prepared by the Labor Department, they said construction prices had more than doubled between 1914 and 1920.

With an index of 100 for 1914, they said the index for 1920 was 230; for 1921, 195; for 1922, 157, and for 1923, 174.

They claimed that with these index figures and the actual expenditures for capital betterment they could reach a replacement value upon which the net operating income could be fairly computed. They admitted that $50,000 was adequate to cover the cash on hand and the value of materials and supplies.

Valuations Vary Enormously.

The following table shows the wide difference in the two valuations:

| Date. | By Examiner. | By Railroads. |
|---|---|---|
| Dec. 31, 1920. | $856,065 | $2,213,265 |
| Dec. 31, 1921. | 875,280 | 1,863,806 |
| Dec. 31, 1922. | 978,344 | 1,871,583 |
| Dec. 31, 1923. | 978,236 | 1,769,585 |

For the 1920 period the railroads' calculation was over two and a half times that of the examiner, and the actual money difference was $1,357,200.

The smallest difference occurred in the 1922 figures, and even then the railroads' valuation was more than 40 per cent greater than that of the examiner. With a great railroad like the Pennsylvania or the B. & O. the difference would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Future freight rates will be based upon these valuations and the difference of these hundreds of millions of dollars will determine whether the rates shall be high or low.

Contends for Unearned Increment.

The railroads concluded their argument with the following statement:

Future freight rates will be based upon these valuations and the difference of these hundreds of millions of dollars will determine whether the rates shall be high or low.

Contends for Unearned Increment.

The railroads concluded their argument with the following statement:

"Under the settled principles of constitutional law and under the definite provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act, a fair return on value of properties devoted to public service is a common right of the owners of these properties. A railroad worth $1,000,000 may have been, by reason of some fortuitous circumstances purchased in 1887 for half its value. It may have been constructed at less than the usual or normal cost of construction. By reason of increasing volume of tonnage, increased population, the enhancement of prices and the general demand for transportation, the value of that railroad may have been increased 100 per cent or more during the years 1887 and 1923. Can it be fairly or justly said that the owners of that railroad are entitled to no more than a return of 6 per cent on a $500,000 investment representing approximately one-fourth of the present value, plus a return on the net cost of such additions and betterments as may have been made made in the interim? The proposition is contrary to all principles of law."

"Actual Investment" Theory.

Examiner Kelly held that a fair return on the amount actually invested should content the investor.

"The purpose is to insure reasonably adequate railroad service," he said in the closing argument for his valuation. "Adequate service requires an adequate transportation machine. Such a machine cannot be provided and maintained unless there is a continuous flow of capital into the transportation system. This flow of capital can be assured by the fair treatment of the capital already invested and of the additional capital required to keep the transportation machine abreast of the times. The rule of a fair return on the fair value of property is intended to accomplish this result. The method of valuation for rate-making purposes which we have adopted in this case insures fair treatment to the investor because a fair return will be secured for every dollar that has flowed into the project, provided, of course, that traffic is available. Whatever the price level may be, however severe the fluctuations, the methods here employed will result in yielding a fair return on every dollar invested in the property. This is the greatest assurance which can be held out to the prospective investor. No stronger inducements can be offered in fairness to all the interested parties."

NEW YORK, May 11.—The tenth Distinguished Service Medal awarded by the American Legion was pinned on a bathrobe, while the recipient, Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist and former Premier of Poland, lay propped up on his bed here with pillows. A cold, which kept Paderewski confined to his apartments, made necessary the cancellation of the presentation dinner planned for last night.

The pianist was taken entirely by surprise when John R. McQuigg, national commander of the military order, and a party of Legion officials called to make the presentation. The medal was conferred for Paderewski's work in giving a series of benefits for the Legion.

BOOKSELLERS WANT NO LITERARY CENSOR

National Convention Here Trusts Them to Weed Out Salacious Stories.

The American Booksellers' Association is opposed to a clean books bill. Speakers at the opening session of its convention at Hotel Statler yesterday and a report of the Association's board of trade were against such legislation. The opinion was expressed that booksellers can be trusted to keep their own shelves clear of bawdy literature.

Cedric Crowell of the Doubleday-Page Co., New York, who presented the committee's report, suggested that the booksellers halt the distribution of salacious books by refusing to sell them. He and Ellis W. Meyers of New York, Executive Secretary of the Association, called upon the convention members to organize against compulsory regulation of booksellers.

Other topics discussed by the convention were the increase in the number of college trained men and women selling books and the rapid rise in public favor of non-fiction literature. On this latter topic Walter McKee, president of the association, remarked that the present flair for biography among writers and the interest taken by the public in news events accounted largely for the sale of non-fiction books.

Noted Authors Expected.

The convention will close Thursday morning. The feature of the program is to be a reception and authors' night tomorrow evening at the Washington University field house. Among the authors expected to attend are Carl Sandburg, Sinclair Lewis, Miss Temple Bailey, Charles J. Finger, Stuart Sherman, Richard Halliburton, Gilbert Frankau, and Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley. Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the Public Library, will preside.

Authors began arriving yesterday.

One of the visitors in Opie Read, old-time newspaper man and the "Mark Twain of Arkansas."

Opie Read Revisits City.

Read came into town wearing a black bow tie, a broad hat and slouchy clothes. He looked like a Kentucky Colonel and was full of reminiscences of the Old South. In 1874 Read was a newspaper man here. He afterward moved to Arkansas and edited the Arkansas Gazette at Little Rock. Possessed of a brand of humor indigenous to the soil, he wrote books around well-known characters: "A Kentucky Colonel" and "An Arkansas Planter" and "Tennessee Judge." He is 73 years old now and has lived in Chicago for the last 30 years, supporting himself by lecturing.

He announced, however, that he was back in the writing game and had brought out a new book entitled, "Come on, Buck," a story of the Scotch in Tennessee. Talking over the radio yesterday, Read spun a yarn typical of his humor.

"A man met me in the hotel lobby this morning," he said, "and asked me, 'How are the horses running?' I answered, 'What do you mean, horses running? I'm not following the track.' He was much taken aback. 'Oh,' he said, 'I thought you were attending the bookmakers' convention.'"

To reporters Read grew reminiscent on St. Louis of the old days.

"Prohibition has been the death knell of the old Mississippi River characters," he said. "Where can they hang out now? There isn't any place compared to the old saloon. The saloon as I knew it in St. Louis wasn't a bad place at all. St. Louis always was a law-abiding town. Wit and good nature flowed in the saloon, as well as the liquor on tap. You found the most interesting characters there."

METHODIST BISHOPS VERY DRY

Board Reaffirms Stand on Prohibition and Enforcement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church has reaffirmed its stand in favor of prohibition laws and urged enactment of the legislative program of the Treasury Department designed to strengthen enforcement machinery.

The resolution expressing its views was unanimously adopted by the board after it had heard Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of its Board on Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and Roy A. Haynes, both of whom urged a strengthening of the present liquor laws. Bishops Lowe of Singapore and Badley of Bombay told their colleagues that prohibition in this country was grossly misrepresented abroad by American tourists, some of whom, they said, were intoxicated when they landed from "dry" ships.

Beauty Talks and Questions Answered By Marie Davant

Whitens Your Skin Almost Overnight

No longer need you worry about your muddy, blemished skin! For science has now discovered a wonderful new home treatment which clears and whitens your skin with amazing quickness. Almost overnight you can clear your skin of freckles, pimples, redness, roughness, blotches, muddiness or any blemish. Here are complete directions for using this new treatment. Thoroughly cleanse the skin with Golden Peacock Cleansing (Cold) Creme. Massage well and remove the excess creme with a cloth. Then smooth a small quantity of Golden Peacock Bleach Creme on the skin. Allow it to remain overnight. The very next morning notice how tan, muddiness and sallowness have already started to give way.

I have found nothing quite so good for freckles, pimples and blackheads as Golden Peacock Bleach Creme. — Ruth Roland.

Oily Skin Treatment

Mrs. M. L. J.: I know of nothing so good for oily skin as the following skin treatment: First cleanse the skin with Golden Peacock Beauty Soap, then moisten a thin linen cloth in warm water and lay on the face. Sprinkle this cloth with Golden Peacock Astringent. Upon this apply two or three hot turkish towels. Now wet a soft rag with the Astringent and apply to the face and neck. Large coarse pores will start to vanish and soon wrinkles, blackheads and oily skin will begin to go. Flabby tissues, sagging facial muscles and all age signs will disappear.

A Skin Tonic

Private Secretary: If your skin looks old and lifeless I advise that you try a new and different kind of face powder which is actually a skin tonic, renewing skin youth and beauty, healing pimples, closing enlarged pores, and correcting oily skin. A famous French Beauty Expert has just discovered that certain imported ingredients have an almost magic tonic effect on the skin, renewing skin youth and bringing back the soft, alluring color of childhood. These tonic ingredients have been powderized and mixed with a soft, fine powder which is both healing and soothing. Ask for Golden Peacock Tonic Face Powder at any drug or department store.

What My Readers Say

"I have found Golden Peacock Bleach Creme to be as you recommend it. It gives quick results, leaves the complexion in a perfect condition, and I consider it an efficient Bleach Creme, giving better results than any I have ever used."—Mrs. Wm. R. Scott, Texas.

French Powders Inferior

"I have never used a powder that I liked better than Golden Peacock Cold Cream'd Powder, and I have tried some French Powders that could not compare with this blend."—Loretta Creighton, New York.

Removed Tan

"Almost overnight Golden Peacock Bleach Creme removed all tan from my face, and when I got up in the morning my husband asked if I felt ill because I looked so pale."—Mrs. M. M., Michigan.

ITH international affairs in their pres ent state, the outlook for the prelim y disarmament conference next month hout as gloomy as it could very well be. sia has refused to participate, since the ference is to meet at Geneva, and Russia boycotted Switzerland ever since the der of Vorovsky. It is probably true her alleged fear lest harm befall her oys is only a pretext for keeping out of nference for which from the beginning has had no enthusiasm. It is also true the western Powers are guilty of sharp ctice. If they believe, as they say, tha presence of Russia is vitally important y could have managed to hold the con nce outside the boundaries of Switzer d. The truth is, of course, that they are ided in regard to the matter. France is id of what may develop in the final con nce and for that reason is glad to see a ponement even of the preliminary ting; the present British Government pathetic about it; the real enthusiasm, o far as there is any, lies with the small powers and, to a not very startling de , with the United States.

SUMMARY OF THE FINDINGS BY BRITISH COAL COMMISSION

proper provision of houses for the workers should be a condition of the lease.

(8). The general establishment of pit-head baths is necessary. This should be undertaken by the existing Miners' Welfare Fund, which should be increased by a substantial contribution from royalties.

(9). When prosperity returns to the industry we consider that annual holidays with pay should be established.

The Immediate Problem.

To bring any of these measures of reorganization into effect must need a period of months; to bring all of them into full operation must need years. The Miners' Federation fully recognize that, even if nationalization were to be accepted, much time must elapse before the great changes it involves could be put into force and the effects be seen. Meantime, the hard economic conditions of the moment remain to be faced.

The dominant fact is that, in the last quarter of 1925, if the subsidy be excluded, 73 per cent of the coal was produced at a loss.

We express no opinion whether the grant of a subsidy last July was unavoidable or not, but we think its continuance indefensible. The subsidy should stop at the end of its authorized term, and should never be repeated.

We cannot approve the proposal of the Mining Association, that the gap between costs and proceeds should be bridged by an increase of an hour in the working day, reductions in the miners' wages, some economies in other costs, and a large diminution in railway rates to be effected by lowering the wages of railwaymen. In any case, these proposals go beyond the need, for we do not concur in the low estimate of future coal prices on which they are based.

While the mine-owners presented a plan which is unacceptable, the Miners' Federation abstained from making any suggestion as to the means for meeting the immediate situation. The duty, therefore, devolves upon the commission to formulate its own proposals.

Revision of Wages.

If the present hours are to be retained, we think a revision of the "minimum percentage addition to standard rates of wages," fixed in 1924 at a time of temporary prosperity, is indispensable. A disaster is impending over the industry, and the immediate reduction of working costs that can be effected in this way, and in this way alone, is essential to save it. The minimum percentage is not a "minimum wage" in the usual sense of that term. The wages of the lowest paid men will be safeguarded by a continuance of the system of subsistence allowances. The reductions that we contemplate will still leave the mine owners without adequate profits in any of the wage agreement districts, and without any profits in most districts. If trade improves and prices rise a profit will be earned. If prices do not rise, an adequate profit must be sought in the improved methods which should in any case be adopted.

Should the miners freely prefer some extension of hours with a less reduction of wages, Parliament would no doubt be prepared to authorize it. We trust, however, that this will not occur.

We consider that it is essential that there should be( as there always has been hitherto, considerable variation in the rates of wages in the several districts. But we are strongly of opinion that national wage agreements should continue. Such agreements are entered into in all the other British industries of importance.

We recommend that the representatives of the employers and employed should meet together, first nationally and then in the districts, in order to arrive at a settlement by the procedure that we have previously suggested.

By a revision of the minimum percentage coal mining would be saved from an immediate collapse, but it seems inevitable that a number of collieries would still have to be closed. This may give rise to the necessity for a transfer of labor on a considerable scale. We recommend that the Government should be prepared in advance with such plans to assist as are practicable, and should provide funds for the purpose.

Conclusion.

In the summer of last year the nation was oppressed by a grave anxiety. Having emerged from the mental stress and the economic strain of an unprecedented war, aware of the imperative need of recuperating its strength, it found itself faced by the possibility of an industrial conflict, or a series of conflicts, on a scale equally unprecedented, perhaps, in extent and in duration. And the issues that were at stake were wider even than the limits of the nation; for the stability and the prosperity of Great Britain have a profound influence both upon the opinion and upon the interests of Europe, and of the world at large. If there were here a period of confusion and conflict, of instability and retrogression, the effects would be felt in a widening circle everywhere else.

This commission was appointed to investigate the causes of the trouble and to endeavor to suggest a remedy. We have discharged our onerous duty to the best of our ability. There is no part of this wide field which we have not sought to examine. We have suggested a series of definite constructive proposals.

The way to prosperity for the mining industry lies along three chief lines of advance; through greater application of science to the mining and using of coal, through larger units for production and distribution, through fuller partnership between employers and employed. In all three respects progress must come mainly from within the industry. The State can help materially—by substantial payments in aid of research; by removing obstacles to amalgamation under existing leases; as owner of the minerals by determining the conditions of new leases; by legislation for the establishment of pit committees and of profit-sharing, and in other ways.

The future depends primarily upon the leadership, and the general level of opinion, among the mine-owners and the miners of Great Britain. In laying down our charge, we would express our own firm conviction, that if the present difficulties be wisely handled, if the grievances of the one side and of the other be remedied, and a better spirit prevail in consequence between them, the mining industry, with the aid of science, will certainly recover, and even surpass, its former prosperity. It will again become a source of great economic strength to the nation.

45-MILE SPEED LIMIT ON PUBLIC HIGHWAYS URGED

Newly Formed Missouri Association for Street and Highway Safety Will Seek Legislative Action.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED AT CAPITAL

State-Wide Council at Jefferson City Elects Labor Commissioner Hinkle Chairman

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 11.—A permanent organization, to be known as the Missouri Association for Street and Highway Safety, which will seek adoption by the Legislature of measures providing uniform and safer regulation of traffic in Missouri, and carry on an educational campaign on accident prevention, was formed last night in the State-wide conference on street and highway safety. The conference closes here today.

State Labor Commissioner Roy B. Hinkle was chosen chairman of the association and Julian Harvey, manager of the Kansas City Safety Council, secretary. The executive organization will be enlarged by appointment of representatives from each congressional district, safety councils, automobile clubs, public and parochial schools, farm and labor groups, women's clubs, public utilities and others.

A board of seven governors will direct the work of the association. Three governors selected last night were Hinkle, Harvey and John Malang of Joplin, director of the Good Roads Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri. They will select the other four governors.

Radical changes in the State regulations for operation of motor vehicles were recommended in a Legislative Committee report last night, including a proposed speed limit of 45 miles an hour on public highways, except under certain conditions. The present law provides a "presumptive" limit of 25 miles an hour, except under certain conditions.

Among speed regulations for motorists recommended by the committee were the following:

Not in excess of 15 miles an hour when passing school houses during school hours, when approaching and traversing grade crossings except on State highways; when traversing curves or grades where the driver's vision is obscured and on streets in business districts of cities and towns.

Not to exceed 20 miles an hour when approaching or traversing grade crossings on State highways.

Not to exceed 25 miles an hour in residence districts or public parks, unless a different speed has been fixed by local authorities and posted. Not to exceed 45 miles an hour on public highways under conditions not otherwise restricted.

Another proposed amendment would prevent motor vehicles from passing a street car that has stopped to discharge or take on passengers. The amendment would require motor vehicles to stop behind the street car except where a safety zone is established. The present law permits motor vehicles to pass a street car discharging or taking passengers where there is an 8-foot clearance between automobile and street car.

Another section of the proposed law would authorize the State Highway Commission to erect stop signs at dangerous grade crossings and drivers would be required to come to a full stop before traversing these crossings.

Extension of the arterial highway system from the cities into the rural sections of the State is provided in a section authorizing the highway commission to designate certain state roads as through highways. All traffic coming in from side and intersecting roads would be required to come to a full stop before entering or crossing the through highways.

Revision of penalties for violation of traffic regulations was recommended with an increasing minimum penalty for additional convictions. It was proposed that for misdemeanors the first conviction carry a fine of not more than $100 or ten days in jail; second conviction carry a fine of not more than $200 or 20 days in jail; third conviction in a year not more than $500 fine or not more than six months in jail.

Imprisonment for five to 90 days and a fine of $25 to $500 upon first conviction of reckless driving was recommended with imprisonment of ten days to six months and fine of $50 to $1000 for second conviction. For failure to stop after an accident, the measure provides a wide range of penalties, from 30 days to a year in jail or imprisonment in the penitentiary up to five years or a fine of $100 to $5000.

AUTHORS OPEN JOURNALISM WEEK AT MISSOURI U.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair Makes an Appeal for More Normal Characters in Fiction.

NINE ADDRESSES ON PROGRAM TODAY

James Melvin Lee, H. J. Haskell and Clifford K. Berryman, Cartoonist, Will Speak.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 11.—A plea for new authors to write more novels depicting the life of normal persons with the same frankness and honesty as many novelists have in the past with abnormal characters, was made in a journalism week address at the University of Missouri here yesterday by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, article and fiction writer of Joplin, Mo.

Novelists today, she declared, were too prone to stress the abnormal persons and conditions. Many writers draw heavily on their imaginations and too much on police characters and sensation to "get their works across," she said.

Dana Gatlin, fiction and feature writer of New York City, told her audience that few novelists and feature writers needed an agent to market their products for them. She attributed her success to her individual ideas, extensive reading of good literature and her determination not to be swayed by the works and opinions of other writers. She said a good fiction and feature writer should have his individual ideas and not follow the precepts laid down by other authors.

Varied Interests Represented.

Mrs. Frances Jacobi O'Meara, feature writer of Martinsburg, gave a few tips for feature writers of the school of journalism, and Monte Crews, magazine illustrator of New York, expressed his ideas of an ideal story from the illustrator's viewpoint.

Miss Julia W. Kieney of the Capper Publishing Co., Topeka, Kan., told of her work in preparing and publishing household magazines and described the purpose and benefits of those periodicals. She said service to the public was the keynote of any household magazine's success.

Mrs. Mary Black Woodson, president of the Missouri Writers' Guild; John H. Whitson, novelist, Mexico; Johnstone McCully, detective story writer, New York; Walter W. Manning, editor of the Woman's World, Chicago; Margaret Hill McCarter, novelist, Topeka, Kan.; Miss Catherine Prosser, moving picture editor, Kansas City Star; Cedric Worth, feature writer, Kansas City Journal-Post, and J. Breckenridge Ellis, novelist, Plattsburg, were other speakers on today's program, held under the auspices of the Missouri Writers' Guild.

Nine Addresses Today.

The program today will be devoted to discussions on special features. The speakers and their subjects are:

"The Origin, Development and Influence of Cartoons," by Clifford K. Berryman, cartoonist, Washington Evening Star.

"Of Interest to Children," by Mrs. Wayne Sprague, childrens' editor, Des Moines Register and Tribune News.

"Advertising as a Field for Women," Mrs. A. W. Proet, Gardner Advertising Co., St. Louis.

"A Reporter Looks at Europe," by H. J. Haskell, editorial writer Kansas City Star.

"What is the Greatest Need of the Advertising World Today," by Frank LeRoy Blanchard, of the Henry L. Doherty & Co., New York.

"The Present Position of the German Press," by Dr. Emil Dovifat, deputy director of German Institute of Journalism and chairman of the Berlin section of the German Press Association.

"Covering the British General Strike," by Ralph H. Turner, news manager, United News, New York City.

Speakers tomorrow night will be: James Melvin Lee, director of the department of journalism, New York University, and Mrs. Bess M. Wilson, editor of the Redwood Gazette, Redwood Falls, Minn. Lee will speak on "The Newspaper as an Economic Product," and Mrs. Wilson will talk on "Journalism and Public Service for Women."

'O. D.' BLANKETS THE BEST

Kind Used in World War Given Preference at Service Test.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The same old "O. D." blankets with which millions of young Americans became familiar during the World War have been found the most serviceable covering for troops on field service by the experimental board at Fort Benning, Ga.

The report of the board, which tested blankets of many kinds, said that while those with more wool in their texture were warmer, they were too bulky for doughboys to carry and held rain water too long.

Illinois Waterway Awaits Completion of 63-Mile Link

Mississippi System Eventually Will Include 9100 Miles of Channel, Superintendent Mulvihill Says.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., May 11.—The Illinois waterway, considering its length, is probably the most important project for the development of inland navigation under construction in the United States, William F. Mulvihill, superintendent of waterways, said today. It is the connecting link between Lake Michigan and the Gulf of Mexico and until it is completed the New Orleans to Chicago route will remain a figure of speech, he declared at a joint meeting of the Peoria Association of Commerce and the Peoria Advertising and Selling Club.

"The proper development of the agricultural, commercial and industrial interests of the great Middle West demands the immediate improvement of our inland waterway possibilities," he said. The development of the Mississippi system is not antagonistic to the use and development of the Great Lakes system. They would supplement each other.

"The Mississippi system when fully developed will include about 9000 miles of connected waterways, of which about 3106 miles will be a trunk line with 6000 of laterals. A great east-west line will extend 1600 miles from Pittsburg through Cairo to Kansas City, and a main north-south trunk will run 1500 miles from New Orleans to Chicago, referred to as the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

The Federal Government is improving the Ohio River from Pittsburg to Cairo so as to provide there in a 9-foot navigable channel which when completed will connect with the 9-foot navigable channel in the Mississippi extending from Cairo to New Orleans.

"This Federal improvement is costing the Government approximately $100,000,000, and will require for its completion three or four years.

"The missing link in the lakes to the gulf waterway project is the section between Utica and Lockport, a distance of 64 miles, work on which is now being vigorously prosecuted with a prospect of completion somewhat in advance of the Federal improvement of the Ohio River."

HAS TAUGHT SCHOOL HERE FOR 55 YEARS

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Dale Says Work Is Recreation; Wants to Die in Harness.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Dale, a grandmother, who is still a teacher in the primary grades in St. Louis public schools after 55 years of service, has been named as a candidate for the American Teacher Award. This award is a tribute to the teachers of America, established by the directors of the Sesquicentennial International Exposition, which will be held in Philadelphia from June 1 to Dec. 1.

Mrs. Dale is teacher in the first grade at Clinton School, 1224 Grattan street. In discussing her experiences as a teacher Mrs. Dale emphasized her belief that children of today are much easier to handle than they were 40 or 50 years ago.

"Children today are more alert than they were 40 years ago," said Mrs. Dale. "The new method of teaching makes it much easier to handle them. Fifty years ago a first grade pupil had to keep his head buried in his book, never budging from his seat, never looking to the right or left. As a result he was restless.

Change in Methods.

"Today we do not teach first grade pupils to study, for first grade children will not study anyhow. They paste pictures in their books and learn spelling from these pictures. When they want some paste or the scissors they walk quietly to the rear of the room and get them. This gives them a chance to work off their surplus energy.

"My age? That's one thing I haven't told for a long time. It's nobody's business, do you think? Of course, you couldn't go far wrong if you guessed it. I've been teaching for 55 years, so you see I'm over 60. I'm a grandmother.

"I have never believed in telling my age or having my picture taken."

Mrs. Dale is not interested in the possibility of her winning an award in Philadelphia, which is given to the teacher who accomplishes the greatest good among children. "I'm not even going to Philadelphia. When the Sesquicentennial opens I'll be on the Jersey coast and contests and awards will be farthest from my mind. I've never believed in awards, anyhow. I teach because I love my children. Teaching is really a hard task, but it has come to be a recreation with me. I want to die in the harness."

Started Teaching in 1871.

Mrs. Dale started teaching in the Douglas School, Eleventh and Howard streets, in 1871. From there she went to the Jackson, then to the old Bates and Lyons. She taught in the Madison School for 20 years and from there went to Clinton.

She remembers that she taught the Busches and the Lemps, but does not recall their first names. She said they were later, however, connected with the Busch and Lemp breweries here.

During the entire 55 years of her service, Mrs. Dale has missed only a year from her work. "Was that due to sickness?" she was asked. "Well, just say that I missed a year," she replied. She lives at 5701 Julian avenue.

MISSING BANKER RETURNS

Richmond (Mo.) Man Gives $5000 Bond on Forgery Charge.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Mo., May 11.—S. L. Bay, the missing Richmond Trust Co. treasurer, has returned to his home here and is under arrest on a charge of forgery. He was released on $5000 bond for appearance at his preliminary hearing May 21.

Bay has been missing since April 13, soon after the closing of the Richmond Trust Co. by the board of directors.

FORMER MINISTER, WORKING AS CLERK, SEEKS DIVORCE

Frank C. Cheever Alleges Wife Refused to Play Organ in His Church in Canada.

Frank Chester Cheever, a former Methodist pastor, is suing in the Circuit Court to divorce Mrs. Mildred Louise Cheever, alleging general indignities. She is now at Portland, Me., where she is organist, while he is employed as a clerk in this city. They were married Oct. 27, 1920, at Grafton, Mass., at which time Cheever was pastor of a church at Salvador, Can.

According to Cheever his wife refused at times to play the organ in church for him or to take part in the social functions incident to his church work. Because of her actions in this respect he was compelled to resign his pastorate four years ago, he says.

The deposition of Rev. Sidney J. Willis of Pittsfield, Mass., a former Universalist preacher, which has been filed in the case, shows that on various occasions when he visited the Cheevers there would be no food prepared. The deponent states that Mrs. Cheever made complaints to him about her husband which he knew to be unfounded. Another deposition in which Sergt. D. C. Shervill, a member of the Canadian Royal Northwest Mounted Police, describes Cheever as "a fine fellow, who played tennis and was musical," also was filed. Shervill said he frequently stopped at the Cheever home in patrolling his territoyr.

SETTLEMENT OF LITIGATION BASED ON FALL OF CORNICE

Suits Against Schaper Stores Co. and Others Followed Total Collapse During Storm.

Litigation growing out of the collapse of a cornice on the roof of a building occupied by Schaper Stores Co., northeast corner of Sixth street and Washington avenue, is being settled out of court.

There were about 15 damage suits based on claims of persons who were injured by falling debris and one based on the death of George Stein of Gerald, Mo.

Attorney Edward W. Foristel represented the plaintiffs in the suit, which were directed against Schaper Stores and other defendants, but he declined to state the terms of settlement. The suits, however, are being dismissed in favor of the plaintiffs. The cornice fell on the afternoon of June 2, 1923, during a storm. A settlement filed in one case shows payment of approximately $10,000.

KIRKWOOD PARK COMMISSION

Ordinance Creating Body of Nine Members Passed.

An ordinance providing for the formation of a park and recreation commission, consisting of nine members, was passed by the Kirkwood Board of Aldermen last night. The duties of the commission will be to select sites for parks, to make recommendations to the Board of Aldermen in relation to parks or forestry, to be in charge of the forestry department of the City of Kirkwood, and to generally supervise any parks that may be formed.

The commission will consist of a man and a woman from each of the four wards, with the Mayor as an ex-officio member. The Mayor will appoint the members who will hold office for four years.

$10,000,000 for Benevolences.

Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, stated clerk, compiled the figures for the fiscal year ended March 31 for presentation to the Presbyterian General Assembly when it meets at Baltimore, May 27. The statistics show these expenditures: Board of Foreign Missions, $4,773,962; Board of National Missions, $3,622,550; Board of Christian Education, $898,593, and Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustenation, $533,180.

CHANCES FOR FARM RELIEF MEASURE SLIM

Indications Are That Haugen Bill Advocates Will Defeat Tincher and Aswell Plans.

THEN THEIR OWN BILL WILL BE BEATEN

Scheme to Line Up Democrats to Support Haugen Measure Meets With Set-Back.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Farm legislation, that was to be the great political question of the coming campaign, as well as the campaign of 1928, apparently has collapsed.

The plan evolved by some of the Democratic leaders in the House and Senate, to aid in passing the Haugen bill, with its $375,000,000 subsidy, to the end that President Coolidge would be forced to veto it and thereby destroy himself in the granger states, has struck a snag and now the Democrats are hopelessly split as to the virtue of such strategy.

Carter Glass of Virginia, in the Senate, and Representative Pou of North Carolina, in the House, have blasted the idea as fool politics, the inevitable effect of which would be to make Mr. Coolidge more solid than ever. Without almost solid Democratic support the Haugen bill cannot pass the House, much less the Senate. The indications on the eve of the voting are that the Tincher and Aswell-Curtis bills—pale substitutes for the gorgeous Haugen dream—will be killed by Haugen supporters and that in turn the administration people with the aid of half the Democrats will defeat the Haugen bill.

The Tincher bill was the administration effort to give the farmers a sip, but the representatives of the agricultural organizations have declared that it meant nothing to them to provide a $100,000,000 credit to finance co-operative marketing. They insisted on a bill that would definitely provide for keeping the surplus crops off the market, thus insuring higher domestic prices. The Aswell bill, which only allows $10,000,000, seems to have no friends.

The best evidence that none of the bills is going through is that the chief proponents of all refuse to express more than a hope that his particular measure will pass. When the sponsor of a measure does not claim everything in sight it means that he is pessimistic.

Oldfield of Arkansas, the Democratic whip of the House, is credited with having devised the strategy of putting the President in a hole. He thought he had 75 of his party lined up for the Haugen bill, but yesterday's debate indicated that a large number of these had gotten away from him.

Simmons of North Carolina is the chief Democratic supporter of the plan in the Senate. For a while the farm vote had the two Houses buffaloed. The first break came when Madden (Rep.) of Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, announced that he would not vote to appropriate a dollar for any of the farm relief plans if they were enacted.

Begg (Rep.) of Ohio, right-hand man of Speaker Longworth, jumped on his colleagues from the wheat and corn belt yesterday for making all sorts of promises to the farmers.

"Why don't you be honest with your constituents," he exclaimed, "and tell them that it is utterly impossible for Congress to enact legislation that will insure them high prices for their products?"

Comment of Glass.

"I don't know," said Senator Glass, "whether it is worse economy or worse politics that they have been thinking about. The towering tariff is bad enough, but at least that applies to everybody, but this idea of taking hundreds of millions out of the Treasury, for the benefit of part of the country at the expense of the rest is the limit. It doesn't mean a thing, for cotton and tobacco is not even mentioned in the bill. The Southern growers buy 70 per cent of the food they consume, and the feeds for their stock—why should we connive at increasing their costs? Suppose they put the President in a position where he would have to veto the bill—do wrong ourselves in order to compel him to do right—the veto would make him President again, if he never did anything else."

Naturally, the farm crowd, which led the battle for the subsidy, is furious, but with the Democrats splitting and the Republicans nearly as badly divided, it is difficult to see how they can mete out punishment. Their own Senators and Representatives will generally vote for the Haugen bill, so the weight of their displeasure can hardly be visited on them. As to what they will do two years hence, nobody is worrying. No politician looks that far ahead.

During the debate yesterday, Hawes of Missouri said he would support the Haugen bill because a majority of his constituents favored it.

STUDY OF INDUSTRIES HERE ON BEHALF OF NEGROES ENDED

National and Local Urban League Service Designed to Improve Status of Workers.

T. Arnold Hill, director of the industrial relations department of the National Urban League, New York, has completed a study of St. Louis industries for the local Urban League, a social service organization for Negroes, the idea being to improve their status. The St. Louis Urban League found work for 5296 men and women last year, but its main purpose is to widen the field of employment for Negroes.

In outlining the purposes of the national industrial relations department, Hill called attention to three important shares of his program, as follows:

Popularizing the use of Negro workers in manufacturing and industrial pursuits; improving the relationship between white and Negro wage earners, and increasing the efficiency and responsibility of Negro workers.

"Of the more than 1,000,000 Negroes who have come North during the last ten years," said Hill, "a large number have been forced to accept employment below that for which they have been trained. For the trained young man and woman occupations are very limited."

Hill gave the following as the Urban League's objectives in industry: Further use of the Negro in industry; dissemination of information on successful experiments with Negro workers; abolition of restrictions of Negroes to certain stereotyped lines of work; dissipation of anfagonism between Negro and white workers; removal of barriers against Negroes by labor unions; better training of Negro workers in trade schools, and better apprenticeship opportunities for Negroes entering new occupations.

The Industrial Advisory Committee of the St. Louis Urban League includes V. C. Turner, chairman; John B. Strauch and E. L. Harris.

MOTOR CYCLE RIDER DIES OF INJURIES

Negro Suffered Fractured Skull Saturday Night in Collision With Auto.

A collision between a motorcycle and an automobile at Pendleton and Finney avenues Saturday night resulted in the death yesterday of James Bass, 26 years old, a Negro of 4449 St. Ferdinand avenue. He died at City Hospital No. 2 of a fractured skull. A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today.

Bass was riding his motor cycle west in Finney avenue when it collided with an automobile driven by Herbert Jackson, 32, a Negro of 412 Adelaide avenue. His death is the fifty-fifth automobile fatality here since Jan. 1, as compared to 62 during the corresponding period last year.

Police are searching for the driver of an automobile who fled after striking Mrs. Lela Cobble, 18 years old, 103 Hickory street, at Eleventh street and Chouteau avenues yesterday. She is at City Hospital in serious condition from a fractured skull.

Mrs. Rose Wedel, 26 years old, wife of Dr. Carl J. Wedel, 4263 McPherson avenue, suffered fractured ribs and internal injuries yesterday, when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband was struck by an undertaker's limousine driven by Lester Miller, a chauffeur, at Union boulevard and Easton avenue. Misses Margaret and Cathryn Madden and their brother, Lee, occupants of the limousine, were cut and bruised.

Homer A. Hatfield, 31, a mechanic, of 8143 Lynn street, Vinita, St. Louis County, suffered scalp lacerations when he fell asleep at the wheel of his machine at 3:30 a. m. today and collided with an automatic traffic signal at the intersection of Washington boulevard and Newstead avenue. He was charged with careless driving.

He fell from a window while at work at an apartment building. After an examination at a hospital he walked to his home.

DISAPPROVES FLYING FIELD PLAN FOR GOVERNOR'S ISLAND

Secretary of War Davis Suggests to Senate Committee Site on Jersey Meadows.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Establishment of a civil air port at Governor's Island, New York, is proposed in pending legislation would be unsafe and unsatisfactory, in the opinion of Secretary Davis of the War Department.

Writing Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate Military Committee today, the War Secretary said he regarded Governor's Island as a very important military post, and planned to increase the garrison.

"It is absolutely essential," Davis said, "that the open space on the filled portion of the island be retained for instruction purposes. To established a landing field thereon would preclude such use.

"The landing field itself, from the standpoint of experienced flyers, would be unsafe and unsatisfactory."

He suggested that a place be found in the Jersey meadows.

FRENCH WOULD REOPEN ISSUE OF NAVAL ARMS LIMITATION

Delegates to Geneva Conference Won't Accept Washington Settlement as Final.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, May 11.—The preliminary disarmament conference in Geneva next week must take up the whole question of disarmament, the French say. It cannot consider that the Washington conference settled the question of sea armaments. Land, sea and air disarmament, as the French National Council of defense decided, must be discussed as a unit.

The instructions given the French delegates are explicit. If the United States delegates insist that the Washington conference removed the question of sea disarmament from the present discussion, there will be wide divergence.

Man and Sister Held Up in Auto.

Joseph Santee of 3321 North Broadway, and his sister, Florence, driving in Santee's automobile, were crowded to the side of the road at Helen and West Florissant avenues at 10 p. m. yesterday by three men in a sedan. The trio, with revolvers, made both get out of their car, robbing Santee of $4.50 and escaping in the sedan. The license number on the sedan taken by Santee was turned over to policemen, who learned the car had been stolen earlier in the evening from Garesche and Mimika avenues, and was the property of Conrad Kirk of Pine Lawn, Mo.

$10,000 CLUBHOUSE FOR GAME PRESER

Directors and Committee St. Louis Organization Meet on 8000-Acre Tract.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., May 11. The board of directors and development committee of the Water Game Preserve Club, a St. Louis organization, met on their newly acquired game reservation on Cold Creek. Plans were formulated for the erection of a club house of rustic design, the first story to be of stone and the second of logs, both materials to be secured on the grounds. The cost will be approximately $10,000.

Sites also were selected for the erection of a number of privately-owned cabins. The site was also chosen for the first dam across the stream which will form a lake of several acres. Ten of these are to be built. The stream bed is of solid rock, and the water is as clear as crystal. The stream is said to have several hundred springs. The fishing is plentiful.

Three of four deer have died in the reservation, considered the finest in the State, was purchased for $50,000 after W. H. Wielandy of St. Louis, former State Game Warden and now president of the organization, endeavored to induce the State to take control. Because of lack of interest on the part of State officials, a club was organized limited to 2500 members and their families, all being St. Louisans except four from Farmington.

Land values in the vicinity of the reservation have increased in value and local business men have already felt financial advantages accruing from the development of the club's holdings.

GOOD WILL TOURISTS HAVE STRENUOUS DAY

Visit Seven Arkansas Towns—Guests at Night Meeting in Little Rock.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 11.—The Good Will tour of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, represented by 92 business executives, worked overtime on the first long day of the week's outing, during which business men in 33 cities and towns in Arkansas and Louisiana will be visited.

The tourists were routed out of their comfortable berths at 5 a. m. yesterday and they put in a strenuous day until midnight, visiting seven towns. Stops of 20 to 50 minutes were made in succession at Forrest City, Marianna, Helena, Brinkley, Devalls Bluff and Lonoke, Ark.

Everywhere enthusiastic crowds met the party, led by their 10-piece band. The St. Louis delegates made a fine showing, in their shining white ribboned straw hats. Reception committees headed by Mayors greeted the visitors. Children swarmed along the line of march vieing with one another in their wild scrambles for souvenirs distributed by representatives of St. Louis firms. Thousands of toy balloons, whistles, medals, caps and paper trinkets have gladdened hearts of kiddies.

Truck Load of Roses.

The town of Brinkley turned out in force. The Mayor made a speech of welcome in the town square. A cheer squad of young girls and boys registered their noisy greetings at Lonoke, where no definite arrangements had been made, the visitors received a rousing reception, a truck load of roses rolled down the platform, and two score pretty girls were kept busy pinning rose buds on coat lapels.

The big event of the day was at Little Rock, which was reached at 4:30 p. m., an hour late. Fifty automobiles met the delegation at the Rock Island station and drove them well down the heart of the city, where the line of march was taken up through the main streets to the new Lafayette Hotel. There the delegation was met by Little Rock business men and scattered over the city. Those who wished had cars placed at their disposal to tour the residential districts. At 8 p. m. a big meeting was held in a conference room of the Lafayette.

Enthusiastic Meeting.

Mayor Moyer, supported by the City Council and members of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the St. Louisans. J. C. Conway, president of Little Rock Chamber of Commerce, acted as toastmaster, introducing the Mayor and Attorney Lawrence B. Brown, who made speeches of welcome.

John C. Hall of St. Louis acted as toastmaster for the visitors and presented in succession the visiting speakers, Harry T. Bussman, who had a message from St. Louis manufacturers, and J. Harry Rabe, who outlined the development of markets, and Hiram C. Martin, who spoke on St. Louis package car service. Scott R. Dekins exhibited motion pictures of St. Louis as the miracle city. The last speaker of the evening was John B. Edwards, who made a hit in his expressed appreciation of Little Rock as a city of roses. Community song leader, Rosenberg, of St. Louis secured some rousing choruses from the 200 business men and George Ravold of St. Louis quite captivated his audience with his inimitable soup.

TWO BANK OFFICIALS SHOT ON CROWDED SPOKANE STREET

Assailant, Involved in Litigation With Depository, Is Disarmed by Pedestrians.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 11.—R. Lewis Rutter, president of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Co. and the Western Union Life Insurance Co. of this city, was shot twice and seriously wounded on a crowded business street yesterday by Phineas Saffron, with whom the trust company is involved in business litigation.

Connor Mallott, secretary-treasurer of the company, was shot under the arm but suffered only a superficial flesh wound.

Witnesses said Saffron, against whose property the trust company recently forced foreclosure of a mortgage, followed the two bank officials for a block, firing from behind without warning. Pedestrians disarmed Saffron. He declared he was seeking to avenge wrongs which he felt he had suffered at the hands of Rutter's company.

Wielandy of St. Louis, former State Game Warden and now president of the organization, endeavored to induce the State to take control. Because of lack of interest on the part of State officials, a club was organized, limited to 2500 members and their families, all being St. Louisans except four from Farmington.

Land values in the vicinity of the reservation have increased in value and local business men have already felt financial advantages accruing from the development of the club's holdings.

GOOD WILL TOURISTS HAVE STRENUOUS DAY

Visit Seven Arkansas Towns—Guests at Night Meeting in Little Rock.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 11.—The Good Will tour of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, represented by 92 business executives, worked overtime on the first long day of the week's outing, during which business men in 38 cities and towns in Arkansas and Louisiana will be visited.

The tourists were routed out of their comfortable berths at 5 a. m. yesterday and they put in a strenuous day until midnight, visiting seven towns. Stops of 20 to 50 minutes were made in succession at Forrest City, Marianna, Helena, Brinkley, Devalls Bluff and Lonoke, Ark.

Everywhere enthusiastic crowds met the party, led by their 10-piece band. The St. Louis delegates made a fine showing, in their shining white ribboned straw hats. Reception comtimetes headed by Mayors greeted the visitors. Children swarmed along the line of march vieing with one another in their wild scrambles for souvenirs distributed by representatives of St. Louis firms. Thousands of toy balloons, whistles, medals, caps and paper trinkets have gladdened hearts of kiddies.

Truck Load of Roses.

The town of Brinkley turned out in force. The Mayor made a speech of welcome in the town square. A cheer squad of young girls and boys registered their noisy greetings at Lonoke, where no definite arrangements had been made, the visitors received a rousing reception, a truck load of roses rolled down the platform, and two score pretty girls were kept busy pinning rose buds on coat lapels.

The big event of the day was at Little Rock, which was reached at 4:30 p. m., an hour late. Fifty automobiles met the delegation at the Rock Island station and drove them well down the heart of the city, where the line of marchg was taken up through the main streets to the new Lafayette Hotel. There the delegation was met by Little Rock business man and scattered over the city. Those who wished had cars placed at their disposal to tour the residential districts. At 8 p. m. a big meeting was held in a conference room of the Lafayette.

Enthusiastic Meeting.

Mayor Moyer, supported by the City Council and members of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the St. Louisans. J. C. Conway, president of Little Rock Chamber of Commerce, acted as toastmaster, introducing the Mayor and Attorney Lawrence B. Brown, who made speeches of welcome.

John C. Hall of St. Louis actfed as toastmaster for the visitors and presented in succession the visiting speakers, Harry T. Bussman, who had a message from St. Louis manufacturers, and J. Harry Rabe, who outlined the development of markets, and Hiram C. Martin, who spoke on St. Louis package car service. Ccott R. Dekins exhibited motion pictures of St. Louis as the miracle city. The last speaker of the evening was John B. Edwards, who made a hit in his expressed appreciation of Little Rock as a city of roses. Community song leader, Rosenberg, of St. Louis secured some rousing chorouses from the 300 business men and George Ravold of St. Louis quite captivated his audience with his inimitable soup.

TWO BANK OFFICIALS SHOT ON CROWDED SPOKANE STREET

Assailant, Involved in Litigation With Depository, Is Disarmed by Pedestrians.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., May 11.—R. Lewis Rutter, president of the Spokane and Eastern Trust Co. and the Western Union Life Insurance Co. of this city, was shot twice and seriously wounded on a crowded business street yesterday by Phineas Saffron, with whom the trust company is involved in business litigation.

Connor Mallott, secretary-treasurer of the company, was shot under the arm but suffered only a superficial flesh wound.

Witnesses said Saffron, against whose property the trust company recently forced foreclosure of a mortgage, followed the two bank officials for a block, firing from behind without warning. Pedestrians disarmed Saffron. He declared he was seeking to avenge wrongs which he felt he had suffered at the hands of Rutter's company.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 700 Washington Av. and Grand and Olive Sts., Keiffer Drug Co. and Johnson Bros. UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Answering some more questions about the United States Rubber Company's Rubber Plantations

Q—When did the United States Rubber Company first start to grow its own rubber?

A—In 1911 the company planted 14,000 acres, or about 22 square miles, in Sumatra. This represented then and still does, the largest planting operation completed by any one company in a single year.

As new property has been acquired the work has gone steadily forward until today the company has 136,000 acres, approximately 60% of which is already planted.

Q—Does it take long to grow a rubber tree?

A—It takes about 4 to 6 years from the time a seedling is planted until a tree is ready to be tapped, and its initial yield is only small.

Clearing the jungle, removing stumps, draining the land, breaking and preparing the ground, growing seedlings from selected seeds, budding, grafting, transplanting and carefully tending the young plants, to say nothing of constructing roads, railways, wharves, storage tanks, and buildings to house power plants, equipment, and employees in a wild tropical country—all take time and money.

Q—Why did the United States Rubber Company make this investment?

A—Because it foresaw the time coming, when in the interest of greater economy and better and more uniform quality, it would be advisable for it to know all there was to know about rubber growing, and to be producing a considerable portion of its own rubber. Recent events have justified this far-sighted policy, and every man who buys a United States Tire or any other United States Rubber Company product is today benefiting by it.

Q—Is the United States Rubber Company Plantation well regarded by authorities on rubber?

A—Yes. Herbert Ashplant, the British Rubber Mycologist of Southern India, in his report entitled "Recent Developments in the Rubber Planting Industry," refers to the United States Rubber Company's Plantation at Kisaran, Sumatra, as follows:

"Of all the areas visited, none produced so much useful information. Kisaran, the headquarters of these plantations, has become the Mecca of all planters who wish to keep abreast of recent rubber research. It is astonishing to find how many of the familiar problems of rubber planting have been satisfactorily settled by the researches of the scientific staff."

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Fair but cool weather prevailed for the first appearance here of the season for the Browns thi safternoon.

Claude Jonnard, the elongated pitching acquisition from Toledo, was Manager Sisler's choice for box duty and he was opposed by Dutch Ruether, veteran left-hander of the champions.

The game:

FIRST INNING.

BROWNS—Haris threw out H. Rice. Durst bounded to Ruether. Peck threw out Sisler. NO RUNS.

WASHINGTON—McNeely walked. Harris sacrificed, Jonnard to Sisler. Sam Rise walked, and so did Goslin, filling the bases. Judge also walked, forcing McNeely over the plate. Lamotte backed up for Bluege's pop fly. When Peck also drew a free ticket, S. Rice walked in with a tally. Lamotte tossed out Ruel. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

BROWS — McManus struck out. Jacobson flied deep to McNeely. Williams popped to Bluege. NO RUNS.

"Frosty" Peters Ready to Take Grange's Place

Zuppke, Who Says He Wants No Outstanding Hero, May Have One Anyhow.

By Lawrence Perry,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, May 11.—It was a sort of backhand slap at Red Grange as well as a wallop in the general directions in all outstanding football stars that Bob Zuppke took in discussing the situation at Illinois after spring football practice at Urbana.

"I'll have a better team than last fall," said Zuppke. "Next year I will have 11 men on the team."

Meaning, of course, that a meteor on a football outfit has its drawbacks as well as its benefits.

Any eleven with a genius in the lineup naturally tends to depend upon the stellar performer as Illinois footballers did upon the famous Red, and when Grange foozled occasionally—as any human will—the team suffered physically and in morale.

Yet Zuppke may be cursed, or blessed—whichever way he may regard it with another blazing luminary next season. He is Frosty Peters of Billings, Mont., who is said to have kicked 17 goals in a single game as a high school player. If he did this Frosty holds a world's record beyond all peradventure.

And he is a nifty open field runner, too, they say. Jud Timm of Twin Falls, Idaho, was another freshman who opened the eyes of the coaches with his ball-carrying this spring. Looks as if Illinois is dipping into the Rocky Mountain school with a grasping hand.

In all Zuppke uncovered six freshman backs who are likely to develop beyond the average.

Dusek and Ector Draw.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., May 11.—Rudy Dusek of Little Rock wrestled to a draw here last night with George Ector. Matchmaker Lustan Morrow called it after two and a half hours by agreement between the wrestlers. There was no fall. Ector finished in much better condition than Dusek, who was near collapse.

Killed When Horses Ran Away.

Arthur Stears, 35 years old, a Negro, of Meacham Park, was killed at 5 p. m. yesterday when a trace became loosened and his horses ran away, causing him to be thrown under the wheels. His skull was fractured and he suffered internal injuries. The accident occurred south of Kirkwood, on the Kirkwood road.

Heavy Advance Sale for Hakoah Soccer Contest

Crowd of 10,000 Expected to Witness Game Saturday at St. Louis U. Field.

The advance ticket sale for the exhibition game between the Hakoah club of Vienna, Austria, and the All-St. Louis picked team indicates a crowd of 10,000 or more, it was announced today by Oscar Leonard, secretary of the local committee in charge of the game. The match will be played Saturday afternoon at St. Louis University Field, Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue.

At least $500 of the $2 tickets for grandstand seats have been sold, Leonard said today. Tickets are on sale at all of the sporting goods houses, including Spalding's and Leacock's, and at the Hakoah Committee headquarters, on the Fourth street side of the Planters Building, opposite the Pierce Building.

General admission seats will be sold at $1.

May Set New Record.

The largest crowd that has ever watched a soccer game in this city was 13,000, attracted to the national cup final between the Vespers and Fall River, two years ago. It is possible that this record will be surpassed Saturday.

A very strong team will represent this city. In view of the record of Hakoah, it is a question whether the best players in this city can stop the European champions. However, playing on their home field and strong in the belief that they are one of the finest teams in the country, the local players must be regarded seriously.

Dave Evans of Detoit will referee the match.

The Hakoah party, comprising about 15 players, will arrive here tomorrow morning.

The French tennis star will have the sanction of the French Lawn Tennis Association, Pyle announced, adding that he couldn't see how the U. S. L. T. A. "can but do likewise under the circumstances." He plans a trip to France in June to complete the arrangements recently initiated with Mlle. Lenglen by his personal representative.

HARARD'S NEW SLOGAN IS 'BACK UP BINGHAM'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 11.—"Back up Bingham" is the plea the Committee on Athletics of the Associated Harvard Club prepared to submit to the parent body when it meets June 3, 4 and 5 at Chicago. It is this committee which officially introduced the proposal that Harvard should have a director of athletics and also boosted Bingham for the position.

The report says in part:

"Harvard toward maintaining proper relations with schoolboy athletes. Preparatory schools from which Harvard has secured most of her athletes in the past have been sending fewer 'letter men' to Harvard in recent years.

"Few contracts with athletes are made at schools by Harvard men; we have tended to lean over backward to avoid any appearance of proselyting."

LOS ANGELES, May 11.—Kenneth Grumbles, high hurdles champion of the University of Southern California, with two other athletes from the same institution were arrested here Saturday, police announced today, when the trio was about to hop off to a track meeting in Colorado in an airplane alleged to have been stolen.

The charge against the three is suspicion of grand larceny. Grumbles' companions were Donald A. Burch and Edgar L. House.

122 Miles An Hour Wins Auto Race for Devore

Winner Travels 250 Miles in 2 Hours, 4 Minutes, 54 Seconds.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 11.—Driving at an average of 122.04 miles an hour, Earl Devore yesterday won the 250-mile Confederate Memorial day race over the mile and a quarter board saucer. Devore made the distance in 2:04:54 to win the $25,000 purse.

Harry Hartz finished second and next was Fred Comer, only a few minutes behind the winner. Approximately 35,000 persons saw the race.

Speedway authorities announced that hereafter the 250-mile event will be displaced by a series of short sprints, including 25, 75 and 150 mile races for championships. The first program will be held August 23.

Others finished as follows:

Norman Batten, fourth; Frank Elliott, fifth; Zeke Meyers, sixth; Pete Kreis, seventh; Dr. William E. Shattuc, eighth; Ben Jones, ninth.

Others of the 16 pilots starting were forced out for various causes. Ralph Hepburn was the first to fall by the wayside, dropping out early. He had sustained an injured eye several days ago, a sparrow striking his goggles while he was qualifying for the race.

Bob McDonogh, Cliff Woodbury, Benny Hill, Pete de Paolo, Eddie Hearne and Dave Evans were others forced to leave the track.

Woodbury and McDonough led for a time, but Devore and Hartz were the consistent drivers.

The only near accident was early in the race when Hearne skidded around in front of the grandstand and slid down to the inner rim. He was uninjured.

RESULT OF PREAKNESS MAKES DERBY A MORE OPEN CONTEST

RADLEY ENTRY STILL CAUSING SPECULATION

bbling Over Only Certain Starter for Kentucky Derby—Owner—Trainer Likes Bagenbaggage, Despite Defeat.

the Associated Press.

OUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—ed in song, story and Californade movies, the Kentucky by this year will be the same itional struggle of East against , with the East better represed than it has been in the past years. Earl Sande got the stern colt, Flying Ebony, to the first in 1925 and the year be a Western colt, Black Gold, the winner of the Golden Jue Derby.

or Saturday's event the invasion dy has begun. Pompey, champ 3-year-old, is due here today, other Eastern colts which ran the Preaknes yesterday are duled to be shipped West imately.

allure of Canter and Baggenage, two of the best-liked of Derby eligibles, in the Preakn yesterday makes the Derby a open one than ever. It is that Pompey and Bubbling , two fleet-footers, are very h in the running; but the unected showing of some of the rs has brought them also into limelight.

Bradley Horses in Limelight.

here is much speculation among men here as to what horses E. Bradley, master of Idle Hour m, will send to the post next urday. Bagenbaggage will not his chance, if he came out of Preaknes in good shape, and it sumed he did. Trainer R. J. mpson likes the colt and considhim a handy one to have around the finish. Bubbling Over will that is definite, but of Bagenage, Barcolo, Banco Suivi and to Boot, the trainer has not osed his intentions. That two, possible three, of the Bradley rses will be in the running seems ain. It is hardly likely that re will be started.

Louisville will entertain the larg- Derby crowd that has ever throngged to the city. Already hotels are being filled with thousands of visitors, but the influx does not begin in earnest until Friday. Railroad and other transportation officials estimate a crowd of 125,000.

Chicago to Send 20,000 Derby Fans.

Chicago, with an estimated 20,000, will lead. Fifteen special trains have been scheduled by the Pennsylvania Railroad alone. The L. & N., B. & O., C. & O., Big Four, Illinois Central and Southern Railway also may be depended on to bring their quotas of visitors to the gateway to the South. Many regular trains will haul extra coaches and will be run in sections.

Nine special trains of from 10 to 14 coaches are due from Chicago next Friday morning. A special of 12 coaches also will arrive that day from New York, and another of the same size from Pittsburg. Saturday morning two additional trains of 13 coaches each are due to arrive. Steamboats from St. Louis and from Cincinnati are due Saturday morning.

Ruth Hits No. 8; Near 1921 Pace

In Spite of Injured Foot, Yankee Slugger Is Hitting With Great Force.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Despite an injured foot which makes him limp, Babe Ruth has batted his way within reach of his record pace of 1921, when 59 circuit smashes carried from his club.

By poling a drive into the right field bleachers yesterday against Detroit, he increased his total for 1926 to eight—one less than he had gathered on the same date five years ago.

It was his third homer in four days, and soon after delivering the blow he retired from the field to rest his foot, hurt in a collision with Lazerri in the outfield last week.

Baseball men pronounce Ruth in better condition this year than at any time since he joined the Yanks. He is taking no cuts at bad balls and receiving many passes. He is resorting frequently to placement hits into left field when opposing clubs switch their defenses to the right in anticipation of home-run attempts.

WRAY'S

The Dark Dynasty.

HARRY WILLS, now on the outside looking in at the world's championship situation, apparently will be enrolled as the third hard-luck member of the "dark dynasty" of Negroes who were ALMOST heavyweight kings of the world.

First there was Peter Jackson from whom John L. Sullivan is said to have retreated behind the first "color line" in ring history. John L. was the first glove champion to refuse to fight a Negro for the title.

After Peter Jackson came Sam Langford, "Little Dynamite." Not five and one-half feet high, he swarmed to the top of the ladder of fame only to find entrenched there another of his race, Jack Johnson, who steadfastly refused to meet him. After Johnson, Willard drew the color line until age mowed Langford down.

Today we have Harry Wills, the Brown Panther, one of the most dangerous and experienced of all the heavyweight Ethiopians. He is slowly but obviously being crowded out of his chance for the title. Probably he will not be matched with Dempsey and will grow old without having had a title fight.

Langford Best of All.

THESE three fighters may not have been of world's title timber, but the records of all indicate they were.

Peter Jackson came from Australia a great scrapper. He was so good that Sullivan either sidestepped him or was strangely sincere about the color line.

Jim Corbett, the greatest BOXER of all the white heavyweights, could do no better than draw with Jackson, when that fighter had suffered a previous hard defeat at the hands of John Barleycorn.

Langford in his prime undoubtedly was the greatest FIGHTER of the three Negro heavies.

All were immeasurably greater than some of our champions such as Marvin Hart, Tommy Burns and Jess Willard, who belong to the cheese period of American ring history.

Meager Rewards.

THE ring rewards some of its heroes shabbily. Take Sam Langford, who is doing a boxing exhibition stunt at a local theater this week. Sam is half-blind, middle-aged and practically broke, after 23 years of active fighting in the ring, meeting all comers, running from none.

Balked of both fame and financial reward, Sam has a right to feel bitter about his profession. But he doesn't. He just grins and remarks that "you have to take the lean with the fat."

Wipe It Out.

ONE of the most pathetic injustices ever unconsciously done to a great fighter happened in the case of Langford in 1918.

Sam was fighting Fred Fulton, an opponent who, ordinarily, would not have lasted a round with Sam. But Langford, although few besides his manager, Joe Woodman, knew of it, was blind in one eye and was losing the sight of the other.

As luck would have it, almost the first poke of the fight from the long left of Fulton hit Sam's good eye and for six rounds he was unable to keep even the timorous Fulton at bay. The intermission after the sixth round found Sam sitting helpless in his corner, unable to see out of either eye.

He was unable to continue and had to surrender the fight without leaving his chair.

In one record book today, the result of this fight is chronicled thus:

"Langford quit."

High time this stigma was removed from the record of a fighter against whom not the faintest whisper of such a charge had ever before been heard.

Subsequent operations on Sam's eyes and his almost total blindness for a long period, completely absolve him of the uncharitable implication of the record book.

Rhinock Displays Speed and Class In 'Derby Trial'

Prince Pal Colt Overcomes Bad Luck and Defeats Banco Suivi.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—Rhinock came from behind to win the Derby trial, feature race at Churchill Downs yesterday. He caught Banco Suivi in the last 70 yards and his time for the mile was 1:39. Malcolm B. Jr. was third and American Son fourth.

The Prince-Pal Rose of Roses colt was off to a slow start, was cut off twice, but got up to win going away. Banco Suivi set a fast pace for the first three-quarters and held on gamely. It was the first start as 3-year-olds of these colts. Malcolm B. Jr., well up in the first half mile, surrendered to Rhinock after a struggle in the stretch. American Son ran an even race.

Four other Derby eligibles—Spanish Lay, Smiling Gus, Bolton and Token—finished in the order named. Rhinock was a 1-to-2 favorite.

Generally considered a certan starter in the Kentucky Derby next Saturday, Rhinock, by his race yesterday will win a place at the post, barring accidents. Banco Suivi seems eligible to be entered as pacemaker for his stablemates, Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage. None of the others looks to be good enough for the issue.

Phil Kaplan's Power of Punch to Be Tested in Tonight's Bout With Gans

Rugged Italian Is a Human Shock Absorber—Johnny Kaiser and Morrie King to Settle a Grudge—Five Bouts On Card at New Coliseum.

The canny, weaving, scientific boxer, Phil Kaplan, opposes the rushing, punching, boring fighter, Italian Joe Gans, in the feature event of a boxing show at the New Coliseum this evening. Each is within one step of a bout with Harry Greb in a New York ring and it is expected that each will cut loose with the best he has in ring craft. They are middleweights.

Gans, the only man in the ring who has knocked out Southpaw Johnny Wilson, former champion, proved that he is at the top of his form by mauling and bruising Tiger Flowers, the present titleholder, in a bout at Wilkes Barre, Pa., two weeks ago.

Kaplan, rated close to the top of the middleweight division, is not without a knockout wallop. In his first appearance here he boxed in out and around Jimmy Gory and then knocked him out in the fifth round. Later, against Babe McCorgary, he outboxed his foe for four fast rounds, knocked the Babe down in the fifth, but failed to knock him out. McCorgary's courage in resisting the clean, smashing punches of Kaplan won the applause of the crowd and the admiration of Kaplan.

How Good Is Kaplan?

There is little question about Phil's ability to outpoint his rugged foe tonight, but the crowd will be asking for a knockout. If either is to be considered a coming middleweight champion, a potential conqueror of Tiger Flowers, he must needs show a real wallop. If there is any "saving of hands" the crowd is apt to roar its disapproval.

An interesting situation is found in the semifinal bout, also of ten rounds, in which Johnny Kaiser faces Morrie King. They fought a slashing draw in the same ring about four months ago. A knockout is not out of the range of probability in this match.

Pivac Takes on Tough Foe.

Tommy Pivac is clashing with somewhat of an unknown quality, when he bucks up against Jimmy Bean, Jack Tippetts' Cherokee Indian, for Jimmy is making his initial bow before the local fans. Bean was given this "crack" at Pivac on Babe McCorgary's recommendation. McCorgary is loud in his praise for the "Redskin" for it was Jimmy Bean who gave Babe one of his worst beatings.

A heavy punch will no doubt be the deciding factor in this shindig for both Tom and Jim have kayo wallops in their right maulies. Jim has scored 27 knockouts in 50 bouts and Tom has stopped six of eight opponents.

KEEN BEATS THE GIANTS FOR HIS FOURTH VICTORY OF SEASON

EXTRA BASE WALLOPS WIN FOR THE CARDS

Blades and Bell Hit Home Runs—But if You Ask Keen Who Won the Game He'll Tell You O'Farrell.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Have you ever watched the baseball athletes as they depart from the scene of battle, with the crowds milling about the arena, the bat boys hustling the bludgeons into the bat bag, the field flunkies hurrying the sacks from the field and preparing to spread the tarpaulin cover?

Have you ever noticed the chest of the winning pitcher, how it expands and becomes prominent and how high he holds his head as he struts to the dugout on the way to the shower, to join the common or garden ball players?

You will be interested in watching Victor Keen. Victor did his stuff yesterday afternoon. Victor scored his fourth victory of the season. He beat the New York Giants. It is always a feat to beat the New York Giants, even when they are in a slump. And this victory that Victor Keen achieved was especially welcome. It broke a Cardinal losing streak. It showed that Hornsby made a wise move when he acquired Keen from the Cubs. It pleased the cash customers and the women, who turned out on ladies day in large numbers.

But if you watched Victor Keen after the contest you saw something new in the way of reactions. In this day and age where the interest of too many ball players is divided—between the first and fifteenth of each month—it is refreshing to see a pitcher like Victor Keen.

There was no strutting. There was no expansion of the chest. There was no stress or strain on his hat band.

Frank Snyder, a big burly batter, a dangerous hitter, was the last Giant to face young Victor Keen. Snyder smashed a grounder to Rogers Hornsby. The Cardinal manager scooped it up and tossed to Bottomley. Keen's work was done. But he did not head for the dugout. He chased toward first base. He pursued another Cardinal, a sturdy fellow, wearing shin guards and a pneumatic body protector. The other Cardinal was Bob O'Farrell and Keen caught him near first, where Bob had raced to back up the base on that grounder to Hornsby.

Keen's arms encircled O'Farrell's neck. Then they loosened and Keen pounded O'Farrell on the back. It was a rataplan of joy. A young pitcher, discarded by one club, had found a catcher who was making him a winning pitcher, a success in baseball and the young pitcher, instead of sticking out his chest and enjoying his greatness, was thanking the man to whom he attributed in large measure his success.

Bob O'Farrell blushed. He was glad the kid had won. But it was embarrassing as the devil to have him come out and maul him like this.

"You pitched a great game, Vic. That 'a boy."

"Great game, nothin', Bob, you did it. Thanks Bob, thanks. It was great the way you fooled 'em."

You will like Victor Keen. He's that kind of a fellow. And he will succeed. He loves to win. And he knows that baseball victory depends not so much on one man's pitching arm, but rather on an entire team, and that a pitcher is only part of a battery.

And if you ask Victor Keen about his four victories and one defeat, he'll tell you that Bob won four and that if he himself had been just a bit more careful, Bob would have five victories out of the five starts, instead of four out of five.

Yes, you'll like Victor Keen.

RHEM AND BARNES TO PITCH TODAY

Charles Flint Rhem, who has won four games and lost one, will pitch against the Giants in the second game of the series this afternoon. Zeke Barnes is due to twirl for McGraw's men, who are now one game below the .500 mark. Their defeat yesterday was the fourth in succession. They won the first game at Chicago and then lost three straight.

Hornsby and his men won, though the Giants outhit 'em, 10 to 7.

Blades and Bell were in the game up to their necks. Each contributed a home run. Each fielded brilliantly. Bell kicked in with a sacrifice fly. Blades leaped into the air and took a drive that was about to crash into the fence for an extra base hit.

How the Runs Were Scored.

Giants—Southworth doubled in fourth. Meusel singled, sending Southworth to third. Kelly singled, scoring Southworth.

Frisch doubled in fifth and scored on Southworth's single. Frisch singled in eighth and scored ahead of Meusel on Irish's home run.

Cardinals—Bottomley doubled in fourth and Mueller tripled. Mueller then scored on Bell's sacrifice fly.

In the fifth Thevenow walked and Blades hit a home run.

Lester Bell hit a home run in the sixth inning.

Bleachers Roped Off.

The center field bleachers were roped off to exclude spectators. The Cardinals and Dodgers were complaining that the moving figures in center made it difficult to see the ball. The bleacher seats and concrete will be painted green to aid the batters.

Tommy Thevenow made a circus catch of Lindstrom's line drive in the fifth. He leaped high in the air and brought down the ball with his gloved hand. Hoff would have needed a pole to go that high.

HORNSBY'S ANSWERS

(1) Runners on second and third. Two out and two strikes on the batter. After a conference with the catcher, the pitcher returns to the mound and is standing at leisure at least three feet from the rubber when the runner on third steals home. Is the run legal? (2) Can the umpire in chief render a decision on the bases when the base umpire does not see the play?—C. KEEN, Moberly, Mo.

(1) Apparently it is.
(2) He may if appealed to but not on his own initiative.

(1) What is the batter credited with whose hit lands in the bleachers but bounds out again? (2) What if the ball bounces into the bleachers? (3) Why does not the pitcher get credit for a putout in striking out a batter?—KNOTHOLER.

(2) Also a home run.
(3) The last player to handle the ball in any play is given credit for the putout. He is given an error if he fails to perform his part perfectly and is considered to deserve the putout if his work is flawless. A muff of the third strike by the catcher exposes him to the danger of an error as the batter might reach first base, so he receives the putout when the batter fans. No injustice is worked on the pitcher, as he receives credit for his work in the summary. An extra putout would not aid his pitching average.

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80"

AS FINE AS MONEY CAN BUILD

And Built for Those Who Want Supremacy

CHRYSLER has never built a car for any other purpose than to give the public a marked improvement and a greater value.

That is why Chrysler builds the Imperial "80".

You and Chrysler both know that mere years add nothing to the inherent value of an automobile name. True it's a fine thing to buy a grand old name at a high price and have your neighbors recognize that you've bought a fine car.

But it's a lot better thing to buy the finest performing, easiest riding, most luxurious car on the market—a car as fine as money can build—and have all you pass say you have the finest car and the soundest automobile investment in the world.

You know how the famous earlier Chrysler achievements advanced the whole art of building fine cars in the lower priced fields. And you know there has long been even greater opportunity for advancement in the high priced field.

The Imperial "80" brings you every advancement you have so long hoped to find. If you want real supremacy in your car, don't fail to drive the Imperial "80". Isn't that a fair way to present it to you?

MATÉO
(Mah-tay-ho)

The Sensational Drink with a Wonderful Flavor

A carbonated and sweetened beverage, prepared from the leaves of the Yerba Mate (Ilex Paraguariensis,) a wonderful herb of South America, and flavored with ginger.

Gives Pep, Vigor and Endurance

Mate has been used for centuries by the South American natives and our own Southern Indians as a wonderful stimulant and restorative.

Rev. Dr. Zahm, C.S.C., Ph. D., companion to the late Col. Roosevelt through South America, writes: "It is the most invigorating beverage imaginable. Where Mate is used, drunkenness is practically unknown. Give a native Mate and he will run or work all day with no other food."

"In the southeastern republics it is a much prized article of luxury, and is the first thing offered to visitors."—Encyclopaedia Britannica.

YOUNG STRIBLING IN NEW YORK, READY FOR RISKO BOUT FRIDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Young Stribling, Georgia's light heavyweight challenger, was here today to finish training for his bout against Johnny Risko of Cleveland Friday night at Madison Square Garden as the stepping stone to a title match with Paul Berlenbach June 10 at Yankee Stadium.

Humbert Fugazy, promoter of open-air bouts at Ebbets Field, wants the proposed Berlenbach-Stribling match, arranged by Tex Rickard, cancelled by the State Boxing Commission and a match between Jack Delaney and Berlenbach substituted.

Fugazy is to ask the commission to make the change because of its ruling that a leading challenger should have a chance against a champion.

YOUNG STRIBLING IN NEW YORK, READY FOR RISKO BOUT FRIDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Young Stribling, Georgia's light heavyweight challenger, was here today to finish training for his bout against Johnny Risko of Cleveland Friday night at Madison Square Garden as the stepping stone to a title match with Paul Berlenbach in Yankee Stadium.

Humbert Fugazy, promoter of the open-air bounts at Ebbets Field, wants the proposed Berlenbach-Stribling match, arranged by Tex Rickard, cancelled by the State Boxing Commission and a match between Jack Delaney and Berlenbach substituted.

Fugazy is to ask the commission to make the change because of its ruling that a leading challenger should have a chance against a champion.

ANNUAL Roll Call

WHITE FLEETS of TEN or MORE

The annual White Roll Call again! It is the industry's most convincing performance document. . . . Greater fleets. . . . Greater total of fleets. . . . Greater diversification of fleets. . . . Greater evidence of the consistently increasing earning power of White Trucks and White Busses—all models, in all lines of business, everywhere.

This year's Roll Call shows 961 of the country's foremost owners operating 35,755 Whites in fleets of ten or more. . . . 124 more owners than last year . . . . 4,662 more Whites.

Imposing as this total is—35,755 Whites in Roll Call fleets—it represents less than half the Whites in service. Tens of thousands of additional owners operate fleets of less than ten, or single Whites. There are more Whites in service than trucks or busses of any other high-grade make.

Each line in this record represents a business success. Great, growing institutions invest millions in additional Whites year after year. They don't guess. They know motor transportation. . . . They know they get the most money-earning miles from Whites.

This record is published every year. The building up of most of the fleets goes back over five, ten—in some cases fifteen and sixteen years. Every year has brought tremendous increases. The safest, soundest guide to your own selection of a motor truck or a motor bus is facts. The Roll Call is facts—an astounding collection of them.

No other truck or bus manufacturer has ever published such a volume of evidence of uninterrupted, profit-building service. No other manufacturer can.

BERLIN TO HAVE HYDROPLANE SERVICE FOR TOURISTS

Regular Week-End Trips to North Sea and Baltic Health Resorts to Be Made.

BERLIN, May 11.—An interesting innovation in this year's holiday season will be the regular service of hydroplanes to take visitors to the North Sea and Baltic health resorts direct from Berlin. A whole chain of very beautiful lakes surrounds the city, and upon one of them the Municipal Council propose erecting a landing-stage for hydroplanes.

This will be used in the main for flights around the waterways of Berlin and Potsdam. But the enterprising Lufthansa Co., which controls Germany's regular passenger traffic, has proposed a regular week-end time-table to seaside places whose popularity has been proved by crowded trains bringing husbands and fathers down on Saturdays.

This is not so easily done by ordinary airplane passenger craft, as suitable spots for landing-stages are not easy to find in the usual run of such places.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

C. Z.—Inquire among the book shops for the information regarding the Bible in question.

G.—The F. R. S. insurance policies can be renewed at 702 Post-Dispatch Building.

W. M. Z.—See answer to "O H." for the information about exterminating moles.

EDITOR.—The St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross is located in the Community Building, 2221 Locust street.

MISS F. F.—Election day is always the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. In the year 1908 election day fell on the third of the month.

O. H. — To exterminate moles from a garden or lawn take a tablespoonful of turpentine, mix it well with a cupful of ordinary sack salt and scatter in their runways with a spoon.

H. S.—A royal flush in the game of poker is ace to the ten of any single suit, either spades, diamonds, hearts or clubs. Nothing beats a royal flush in poker. Another royal flush ties it, since the suite are all of the same rank.

E. — The birthday of Florence Nightingale, pioneer in modern nursing, was celebrated May 12, 1921, for the first time as a National Hospital day in nearly 8000 hospitals throughout the United States. May 12 is known as National Hospital day.

MR. J. H.—To produce holes in panes of thin or weak glass provide the places to be perforated with a ring of moist loam, whose center leaves free a portion of glass exactly the size of the desired hole. Pour molten lead into the ring and the glass and lead will fall through at once. This process is based upon the rapid heating of the glass.

EDDIE.—The seating capacity of the Coliseum is as follows: Boxes 318, arena floor 2612, first balcony 2798, second balcony 3318, making a total of 9046. The above figure for the arena provides for a 12 by 20 foot stage at the side. With a stage of this size at the end the capacity of the arena is from 100 to 200 less.

VERNA.—The force of the wind, acting against high buildings, is often of great magnitude, and this is provided for by designing the structural steel to resist all wind pressure. The Railway Exchange or any other steel constructed building does not sway. If it did it would cause great damage to walls and partitions.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

P. D. READER.—You have good ground for a suit for damages against the owner. You should consult a lawyer.

ANNOYED.—Report the facts to the Prohibition Enforcement Office, in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

423.—Write to the Clerk of the Circuit Court here, or have a lawyer examine the records in the Clerk's office.

J. M. C.—The interest on registered bonds is paid by the Government twice a year by check mailed to you.

X. Y. Z.—Write to the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C., for information and blanks regarding the copyright. The cost of a copyright is $1.

WORRIED.—The owner of the house ordinarily holds the warranty deed. If the deed has been recorded it will show the Recorder's stamp.

INQUIRER.—She has no dower in the property, but she probably has an undivided interest in it, since the property was in both names. Consult a lawyer.

MRS. O. M. F.—In taxing for street improvements ordinarily they take in all property half way back to the next street. If there is an alley, they frequently go up the alley.

TROUBLED.—Report the facts to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, care Clarence F. Wescoat, Esq., Liberty Central Trust Building.

MARY.—Probably you have a good defense to their suit. Consult the Legal Aid Bureau, in the Municipal Courts Bldg., Fourteenth and Market, and ask them to defend you.

TOBBY.—She is not of legal age and cannot marry without her parent's consent, until she is 21. If her adopted parents are taking care of her property there is nothing that can be done about it.

MR. AND MRS. C.—If there were any negligence on the part of the principal or the school authorities they could be sued for damages. Consult a lawyer and ask him to take the case on a contingent fee.

A. B. C.—The agreement would probably not be valid if its legality was attacked by the brothers, since you say that B is "rather childish." A should consult a lawyer with regard to having himself appointed B's guardian.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A. B.—The best results in the treatment of pimples are obtained by a combined internal and external medication as the following—Internal: Tincture of nux vomica, 1½ drachms; benzoate of soda, 1½ drachms; fluid extract of cascara, ½ ounce. Compound tincture of cardamon, 6 ounces. Mix well. The dose: One teaspoonful in a wineglass of water three times daily after meals. Locally: Sulphate of zinc and sulphids of potash of each ½ drachm; rose water, 4 ounces. Mix, shake and apply locally at night, washing off the sediment in the morning.

X. Z.—Bunions are rarely, if ever, entirely cured after being fully developed. However, much can be done for their relief by the wearing of properly fitting shoes and the systematic application of ointments, plasters and proper strapping. But to be effective such treatments should be carried out by one experienced in such work. That is, by a foot specialist (a chiropodist).

J. R.—By cataract is meant opacity or cloudiness of what is called the "crystalline lens." The crystalline lens is a small disc located just behind the pupil of the eye, whose function is to focus and accommodate the vision to different distances. The most usual causes are old age, wounds and infections. Once started, little, if anything, can be done to retard the growth or ripening of a cataract, except where possible to remove the cause. When ripe vision is restored by the removal of the lens and supplying its place with appropriate glasses.

TRACK PAVEMENT ROW IS RENEWED IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Council Tables Proposed Franchise Ordinance Presented by Railway Concern.

The issue of exempting the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. from obligation to pave and repair streets between the car tracks was brought before the City Council of East St. Louis again yesterday, in the renewal of a franchise ordinance presented by the company to operate cars on Third street between Missouri avenue and Broadway. The ordinance was tabled by the Council on vote of 3 to 2.

A franchise ordinance containing the same exemption clause was defeated by referendum vote last fall. Commissioner M. J. Whalen at that time pointed out that this cost would then have to be borne by residents along the car lines.

The Third street franchise expired recently and the Council refused to renew, ordering the car company to remove its tracks because of the congested condition of the street. Officials of the company refused to comply and countered with the ordinance containing the exemption clause. The company contends it cannot surrender its old franchise without crippling service.

IRREGULAR MOVEMENT TO STOCKS

Scattered Covered by Shorts Brings Easy Recovery in Prices—Fresh Selling Near Close—Exchange Better.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Scattered covering of short commitments resulted in an easy recovery of stock prices in today's market. This was induced by more favorable news on the British strike and to the fact that the public is apparently not inclined to sell holdings at these levels. Rails were generally strong and the announcement that Studebaker sales in April were the largest in history lent support to the motor group. Tractions received renewed attention and moved into higher ground. Near the close prices again declined under a fresh selling movement. Traction bonds were also strong. Foreign government obligations rallied somewhat following the receipt of London cables that the strike might end any minute. A better tone in the foreign exchange market likewise played an important part. Liberties were firm. Radio common, after an initial drop of a point, came back in strong fashion, adding about 2 more points to the gain of yesterday. Recent activity in this stock has attracted no little attention. Money was again offered freely on call at 4 per cent, as also were time accommodations.

Hard to Move Market.

"The stock market appears to have reached a point where it is not in a position to move much in either direction. In the drive yesterday the bear element discovered they could dislodge no more stops except at prohibitive costs. In other words, they can force prices lower by selling stocks, but when it comes time to cover they find that prices rally back to their starting point and they have made no profit and are out their commissions. Bull pools are in practically the same position. They can run an issue up perhaps several points with a little concentrated buying, but they cannot attract a following and the minute they attempt to cash in on paper profits, such profits disappear in thin air. A sizeable short interest is believed to exist in many stocks and for that reason any attempt to force a rally is likely to meet with severe opposition. On the other hand, those who have the welfare of the nation's business at heart would be inclined to discourage a concerted effort to drive prices down to a point below their intrinsic worth.

Rails Prominent.

"Rails were prominent in the upturn in the market today under the leadership of Atchison, which at one time was up more than 2 points. That the carrier shares should lead the rally was only natural inasmuch as about the only really good news which had made its appearance in the financial district for the past few weeks has been from that quarter.

Exchange Market Better.

"A more favorable outlook for a settlement of the British industrial crisis was reflected in a stronger trend in foreign exchanges. Sterling moved up fractionally, while Belgian rates developed renewed strength and French francs moved forward. Italian exchange was weak, however, and dropped to below the 4c level. Scandinavian exchanges were in demand at a higher level. Chinese rates eased off slightly.

Commodities Erratic.

"Prices moved erratically in the principal commodity markets, with grain values decidedly stronger and cotton offered more freely on realizing sales. Declines in cotton lacked uniformity, losses ranging from 8 to 17 points, but the tendency was downward in the face of more encouraging advices from Liverpool. Settlement of May wheat contracts caused not a little confusion in Chicago and prices rallied briskly after a lower start. May contracts moving up more than 3c a bushel. Corn was about 1c a bushel higher at the close.

Stock Exchange Head Re-Elected.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 10.—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange for the last two years, has been re-elected for another one-year term without opposition. Retiring members of the governing committee also were returned to office.

CURB MARKET IS QUIET AND MOVEMENTS NARROW

NEW YORK, May 11.—Today's curb market continued quiet with generally narrow movements in stocks which had previously been established as among the most active issues and there was again a disposition shown to wait for further developments in connection with the British labor troubles. Few of the industrials showed any degree of activity but the tone in that group generally was firm. Glen Alden Coal gained a point and Swift International reflected quiet absorption with a fractional advance. There was a fair amount of business in Freshman Radio, which rose more than a point. Trading in General Electric new stock was fairly large within a moderate range in prices.

Public utilities were irregular. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore recovered the loss sustained yesterday and improvement was shown in Northern States Power and Cities Light and Power new stock. United Gas Improvement yielded slightly under small sales and American Light and Traction dropped 3 points on a few transactions.

Oil stocks, including the tropical shares, were generally higher. Humble Oil, after a fractional loss, had a brisk rally following renewed predictions in some quarters that the outstanding mineral deposit would soon be offered to favorable terms for absorption by Standard Oil of New Jersey. Standard Oil of Indiana was under moderate pressure and had a fractional loss at the close. A slight gain was made in Standard Oil of Kentucky. Carib was established at a higher level and there was a fair amount of business in Lago Transport at around its lowest range.

SHARES SOLD

MAY WHEAT SHARPLY HIGHER AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 11.—May delivery acted tight today and went sharply higher on that month date buying, but new crop months were affected by better weather in the Northwest and Southwest. The rise in the current month helped the deferred futures recover from their early depression.

At the outset scattered commission house selling induced by further wet weather over the spring wheat country and in the Southwest gave the market an easy tone. Later some Eastern commission houses bought and later there was further local buying based on rumors of settlement of the English strike. The May delivery shot up nearly 3 cents on purchases of less than 100,000 bushels.

Wheat closed at the best prices of the day owing to covering by frightened shorts. Last prices were 4c to 5c higher; new May, $1.63¾ to $1.64; old, $1.62½; July, $1.40 to $1.40⅜; September, $1.33⅝ to $1.33¾. Corn closed ⅞c to 1c higher; May, 74¼c; July, 75¼c to 75¾c; September, 78¾c to 78¾c. Oats were ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. May, 40½c; July, 42¼c; September, 42¾c to 43c. Lard closed 15c to 17½c higher; bellies 10c to 15c higher. Local cash sales: Wheat, 130,000 bushels; corn, 34,000 of oats. The seaboard reported interest in export wheat, but Winnipeg said exporters were buyers of futures there all day.

An order of the grain futures administration called upon all clearing house members for a report on open trades of 100,000 bushels or more.

A Canadian Government report showed spring wheat planting to have been far advanced May 1, and set fine. Rains of winter wheat by winter killing at 13 per cent, leaving 753,000 acres for harvest. The United States Department of Agriculture estimated that winter wheat acreage in Europe is 14 per cent under last year. Wheat supplies on ocean passage decreased 666,000 bushels to 37,440,000. Milling demands have quieted down because of the increasing premium of May over the July. There were 1,000 arrivals of wheat from upper lake ports.

Corn trade was quiet and steady. The unseasonably cold weather caused some buying of the late months. Eastern bids for corn were slightly below a workable basis. Sales of 35,000 bushels were made to go to store.

Oats were quiet and little changed. There was a little liquidation in May. But cash interests bought the current month and sold July at 1½c difference. Shipping demand was quiet.

Provisions were higher on good foreign buying. At midday lard was 10c to 17½c higher, bellies 10c higher.

WAYNE ELY DECIDES AGAINST SENATE RACE

Makes No Explanation of Attitude He May Take Toward Other Candidates.

Wayne Ely, who 10 days ago announced that he was considering entering the race for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, said today that he had decided he would not become a candidate.

"After canvassing the situation," he said, "I have concluded to stay out of the race. I have talked to a number of my friends and have gone rather thoroughly into the situation."

Ely refused to say whether he would participate in the campaign in the interest of any of the candidates. His former announcement occasioned much surprise among Democratic politicians because Ely had been active in promoting the candidacy of Congressman Hawes for the senatorial nomination. He gave as a reason for his break with Hawes that the latter had led him to believe that he was in favor of the World Court and would make prohibition an issue in the campaign. Hawes' later repudiation of the court, Ely said, had embarrassed him with friends he had induced to support Hawes.

He was in an auto which overturned when the steering gear failed to operate while ascending a hill. Schulz was dragged a yard with the weight of the auto on his arm.

CHAPTER 38.

August 22.

As time goes on the case is complicated with the eagerness of all sorts of people to bring in extraneous circumstances which they consider important.

For instance, Livingstone's butler, the one who bought the knife in Oakville and caused so much excitement by so doing, has been over to get a description of Gordon, preserving an air of mystery which under other circumstances would be vastly entertaining.

Another story concerns a middle-aged man of highly respectable appearance and of a square and heavy build, who was seen walking uncertainly along the main road near the Livingstone place at 1:00 a. m. the night of the murder. A passing car, seeing his state, stopped and asked if he was in trouble.

He replied that he had been struck by a car an hour or so before, and had been lying by the road ever since. His condition bore this out, as he was stained with blood and dirt. He accepted the offer of a lift, and was left at the railroad station at Martin's Ferry to catch the express there for the city.

There have been many similar ones; an innumerable number of people are convinced that they have seen Gordon, and apparently almost any dapper youth of twenty or so, with what Edith calls patent leather hair and an inveterate cigarette habit, is likely at any time to be tapped on the shoulder and taken to a police station. . . .

Of clues of other and lesser sorts there has been almost an embarrassment. Both the library and that portion of the hall near the telephone have furnished finger prints. But as Greenough says:

"Finger prints do not discover criminals; they identify them."

Nevertheless, great pains have been taken to preserve them. On the white marble mantel a very distinct imprint in blood was photographed without difficulty; others, less clear, were dusted with black powder before the camera was used. Detailed pictures were made of the library and hall, before any attempt to put them back to order was permitted, and these prints have been enlarged and carefully studied. One of them with a strange result.

Greenough, handing it to me today, said:

"This print is defective. You can keep it, if you care to."

But I wonder if it is defective. There is what Greenough calls a light streak in the lower corner, but it requires very little imagination to give to this misty outline the semblance of a form, and to the lower portion of it the faint but recognizable appearance of brocade.

I have said nothing. What can I say? . . .

One thing which puzzles the police is the violence of the battle; it seems incredible that Bethel could have made the fight for life which he evidently did. At the same time, they have two problems to solve which repeated searching of the house and wide publicity have not yet answered.

One is the disappearance of the manuscript on which Bethel had worked all summer. Annie Cochran has testified that this manuscript was kept locked in a drawer in the library desk; when Halliday and I entered the house this drawer was standing open and the manuscript was missing. It has not yet been located.

But perhaps the most surprising is the failure of any friend or relative of Simon Bethel to interest himself in the case. Cameron's note to Larkin before Bethel rented the house expressly disclaims any previous knowledge of him.

"Here is a possible tenant for Mr. Porter's house," he wrote, "of which he spoke to me some time ago. I have no acquaintance with Mr. Bethel, save that he called on me a day or so ago, in reference to a statement in a book of mine. I imagine, however, that he would be a quiet and not troublesome tenant."

Halliday brought up this curious situation yesterday in one of the rare moments he has given us since the murder.

"Has it occurred to you, Skipper," he said, "that it is strange that no one belonging to Mr. Bethel has turned up?"

"I dare say a man can outlive most of his contemporaries and most of his friends."

"He wasn't as old as all that." And he asked, apparently irrelevantly a moment later: "The two evenings you saw him and talked to him, how did he impress you? I mean, his state of mind?"

"The last time, of course, he was frankly frightened. He said as much."

"And before that?"

"He didn't say so, but he was more or less on guard. He had his revolver. Of course, those were rather parlous times."

As a matter of fact, the case is anything but a clear one against Gordon as it develops. Greenough has been, all along, as convinced of Gordon's guilt as he had previously been of mine. But Benchley is more open to conviction, and a conversation between Halliday and him this morning, on the lawn near the terrace, is still running in my head.

Halliday had been protesting against Greenough's method of "following a single idea until it went up a blind alley and died there."

"Of course," he said quietly, "you can make a case against Gordon; it's all here. But you'll have something left over that you won't know what to do with. We know that it was Mr. Bethel who hit Gordon and knocked him out some time ago, but who tied him? Where's the boy's own story about seeing a man at the gun room window? Mr. Porter here later on finds that same window open, and sees a man in the lower hall. Who was that? The same hand tied the boy that tied Carroway, and Gordon hadn't even seen this place at that time. What are you going to do with that?"

"Then where's Gordon now?" Benchley asked, practically enough.

"I don't know. Dead, maybe."

Benchley stood thinking.

"I think I get the idea," he said. "The fight, you think, was between Mr. Bethel and this unknown of yours; the boy either saw it and got mixed up in it, or knew he'd be suspected and beat it. Is that it?"

"Well, I would say that a man about to commit such a crime doesn't pack his suitcase, with the idea of escaping with it."

A thought which, I admit, had never occurred to me until that moment.

As a result of this conversation, Benchley has advanced a theory of his own which accounts at least for the failure of any relatives to make inquiry. This is that the old man was in hiding under an assumed name; hiding, in the most secluded spot he could find, from some implacable enemy who had finally caught up with him.

How he reconciles this with the Carroway murder and the disappearance of Maggie Morrison I do not know, but certain facts seem to bear out this idea. He was, in one sense, a man of mystery. His accounts were paid in cash; the automobile in which he arrived had been bought at secondhand a few days before, by the secretary and in the same manner. And all identifying marks had been carefully removed from his clothing.

In addition to all this, there is the puzzling report on the knife itself. Examination under the microscope shows fibers of linen as well as fragments of cellular tissue. But it also reveals minute particles of tobacco leaf, showing it had gone through a pocket.

But Mr. Bethel was not a smoker.

At some one time, then, Bethel clearly secured the knife and wounded his assailant. Not seriously, evidently, since after that he was able to do what he did do, but sufficiently to turn the minds of the police toward the man who claimed to have been struck by an automobile.

This clew, however, has developed nothing. The night was dark, and his rescuers have no description of him, save of a heavy-set figure and a dazed manner of speech. They carried him to Martin's Ferry, but the conductor of the night express remembers carrying no such passenger. . . .

Greenough today showed me Gordon's diary, rescued from the suitcase. It has at some time been dropped into water, and certain pages are not legible. If indeed that word may be used where nothing is legible; where each page presents such jumbles of large and small letters as the following sentence, which I have copied as a matter of interest:

Trn g.K. GTRgg UnMT aot LmGT MotrT."

The record is not a daily one, but apparently was used for jotting down odd thoughts or ideas. It continues, however, at intervals, for the entire period of his stay at Twin Hollows, the last entry having been made on Aug. 17.

Certain entries are neat and methodical. The one on July 27, however, after his injury, is by hand, and shows certain erasures and changes. Once or twice in August the record is long, covering more than a page, while the July entries are all brief. On the last page, however, and without comment, he has drawn in, rather carefully, a small circle inclosing a triangle.

Greenough, while attaching a certain interest to it, has not yet sent it to be deciphered by the code experts of his department. As a matter of fact, I suspect him of holding it out, with the idea of being able to claim the reward if he finds Gordon.

Which reward, by the way, now stands at $10,000.

August 23d.

HALLIDAY saw a red light in the house the night Bethel was killed. He has just told me.

He ran out, after I telephoned him, and from the foot of the lawn he saw it. It was gone almost at once.

He has asked me to experiment with him tonight, using the lamp from the attic closet. I have given him the keys. Apparently what he wishes to discover is the approximate location of such a light. I have no idea of his purpose. . . .

I understand that the guards who have been watching the house at night have been withdrawn, and that hereafter only such watch will be kept as will suffice to keep away the curious crowds that still throng here in daylight hours.

Today Annie Cochran and Thomas have been putting the house in order, preparatory to its final closing. I shall never open it again. Thomas has already painted the window boards and put some of them in place. Let us pray that they keep inside what should be inside, and outside what should be out.

To Be Continued.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Wages.

WHAT are the wages I would ask, if but the choice were mine? What payment for the heavy task the passing days assign? Would it be more of shining gold to treasure year by year? Would it be honors manifold to crown a proud career? Would it be freedom that my feet across the world might rove? Or, would I ask, of all things sweet, a little more of love. A little more of tenderness from those I hold most dear. The feeling of a swift caress to banish care and fear; these would I ask if it were mine to choose my living wage, then brighter would the sunlight shine on all this mighty stage. Then sweeter would the bird songs ring, the hours more swiftly move; this charm would gladden everything; a little more of love.

Nut Peppers.

Cut off the ends of four bell peppers and remove the seed cones and tough skin ribs. Take a cupful of dried crumbs, a quarter cupful of chopped pecan nuts, a grated onion, a minced hard boiled egg, a tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of sugar, pepper, salt, a beaten egg, and a little heavy cream to bind the mixture. Stuff the peppers, after oiling them over, and bake until the peppers are tender when pierced with a straw.

A Noted Artist Picks the 15 Most Beautiful Americ

MARY PHILBIN

CATHERINE DALE OWEN

Ernst Linnenkamp of Vienna Lauds Particularly the Figures of Americans, Which He Says Are Due to Free and Natural Life.

APPARENTLY Ernst Linnenkamp, the Viennese portrait painter, who was commissioned by a great publishing house to discover and paint the 15 most beautiful women in America, did not come to St. Louis in his search. For more than a year he has been seeking the country over for most nearly perfect and representative types of American beauty and the home addresses of his models as finally selected show that he must have traveled from coast to coast, stopping in many cities on the way. Surely he must have passed through St. Louis at night or without letting his presence be known. At any rate, let us give ourselves and him the benefit of that doubt, since no St. Louis beauty adorns his collection.

Now he has returned to New York with his list complete. A good deal of excitement was created by the artist's announcement upon his arrival there that there was one place yet to be filled. Immediately he was besieged by beauties and Miss Louise Clerc, a designer in a dressmaking shop, was selected as the fifteenth.

The Other Fourteen.

Here is his list of the other fourteen most beautiful women in America:

Miss Harriet Camac, New York.
Miss Kathryn Owen, New York.
Miss Elaine Windsor, Hollywood.
Miss Marie Philbin, Hollywood.
Mrs. Louis Lisser, Los Angeles.
Mrs. Paul Verdier, San Francisco.
Miss Rowena Ferguson, San Francisco.
Miss Katherine Kuhn, San Mateo. (Cal.).
Mrs. Arthur Lilienthal, Burlingame (Cal.).
Princess Tadeo Sansedoni, Washington, D. C.
Miss Faye Martin, Waterloo (Iowa).
Miss Helen Anderson, Chicago.
Mrs. Lillian Kennedy, Chicago.
Mrs. L. D. Hopkins, Oakland (Cal.).

In an interview with a Post-Dispatch correspondent at Hotel Astor in New York, Prof. Linnenkamp told how and where he had discovered his models.

"I looked," he said. "I kept my eyes open in the streets, in the hotels, at the dancing clubs. I was invited out in society. And the newspapers have been very kind. When I arrived in a city, they would announce that I came there to paint the most beautiful woman.

"Many possible candidates were glad to give you the chance to look them over," it was hazarded. And Prof. Linnenkamp smiled an urbane assent.

How He Distinguishes Them.

"Now, how do you describe the typical American beauty?" he was asked.

"She can always be distinguished from the European beauty by her franker and more natural manners," he began. "This spontaneity of charm may be truly called a national characteristic. But in her physical characteristics, particularly in her coloring, I do not find that there is a strict national type, as in most countries in Europe. Beauty, physically speaking, is a matter of race, and here you have all races. The beauty of the Eastern part of America is more the type of the Northern races, deriving from her English, Irish, Scotch, German, Scandinavian inheritance. She is likely to be a blonde. The beauty of the South and West, on the contrary, shows more clearly the inheritance of Latin blood—of Spanish and Italian race strains.

Have Fine Figures

"Likewise, the beauty of the East is more subtle and mysterious and reserved. She has a dignity, a poise which I do not find so noticeable in the West. There the beautiful women spend so much of their time in outdoor sports—in your States where there is no winter—that their beauty is less carefully tended, less, perhaps, a cult."

"Are there not certain points which seem to you especially noticeable in the American beauty?"

"Beautiful women in the United States have particularly fine figures," he replied, thoughtfully. "I attribute this to their free and natural life, spent so largely out-of-doors and in sports. They also understand the art of make-up superlatively well; they make up to resemble the natural complexion, while the French make-up, for example, is frankly artificial. New York girls have beautiful feet"—and then Prof. Linnenkamp did let a cat out of the bag!

"California girls, especially those in San Francisco, have too thick ankles," he declared. "I found it quite noticeable, and I attribute it to the fact that they must climb so many hills."

"But beauty," he continued, "is so largely a matter of opinion. For myself, I consider beauty the mirror of culture. To me, it seems to flower most perfectly when a woman is most cultivated, intelligent, spiritual. That is why I say that no woman need despair of being beautiful. No matter what her physical characteristics, if she has a beautiful soul, a beautiful mind, they will shine from her eyes, irradiate her smile, make her truly beautiful to the discriminating observer.

"And I do not," Prof. Linnenkamp added firmly, "believe that beauty can exist without mental and spiritual loveliness behind. I think that your American slang phrase, 'beautiful, but dumb,' is a contradiction in terms. No one who is 'dumb'—that is to say, stupid—can be really beautiful, in my opinion."

"Don't you think," it was suggested, "that American women know how to dress and groom themselves in a way to enhance whatever beauty they possess?"

"Yes, most of them do," he replied, "but they sometimes overdo it and lose their personality," he added. "Now and then you find a woman who sacrifices individuality—something the wise beauty does—but they are the exception. And American beauty is well distributed. I have found remarkably beautiful types among the shop girls in this country."

"Speaking of dress, how variety there is in the fashions today! In other countries lands there was a national dress and with it each nationality became identified. But this is all changed. An American woman is one type of beauty, she is wearing her hair in one way, is another type in sports dress, she is a third type in her tailored suit; and she is a type different from all the others when she dresses for dinner and evening."

This was all very charming and delightful, but the reporter thought Prof. Linnenkamp might have for us a bit of criticism as well as a great deal of praise.

for remaining young and beautiful by various artificial methods?" the portrait painter was asked finally.

"Oh," he exclaimed with vivacity, "I once gave a talk about that. It is a craze to be found all over the world. After 30 comes the danger period. Women have their cars, they eat rich food at lunch and tea and dinner and supper, they take almost no exercise—they do not even walk, they live artificial and unhealthy lives. Of course they grow old—whatever they do, in the way of spasmodic dieting and various beauty treatments, to remain young.

"Yet keeping youth and beauty is so simple. It is just a matter of health. Let a woman do her exercises every day, eat simply, live simply, cultivate her mind and her soul—then she will be as beautiful as 50 as she ever was in her life!"

Teeth Like Pearls

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My teeth, as countless women know, glisten like a row of pearls.

This tells you why. I use a new-type tooth paste which combines all helps in one. The ablest authorities I consult told me to employ it.

The name is Quindent, meaning five in one. It is made by Quindent Laboratories. It contains an olive oil cleanser of the highest order. Two harmless polishers which beautify the teeth. Four antiseptics and iodine, to combat germ attacks on the gums. Magnesia and other antacids, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay. And breath deodorants.

I have used all these helps—always. But I had to use several tooth pastes, then a mouth wash, then magnesia, then deodorants. I spent a half-hour daily on my teeth.

Now Quindent is presented, combining all in one. Four great organizations collaborated on it. It typifies the utmost in a modern dentifrice. The 16 ingredients do everything required. Now I use it exclusively, and use nothing else, by the ablest advice I can get.

The makers supply me samples—enough for 20 uses. They are for women who wish to use what I use—who follow my advice. Let me send you one. It will bring you new conceptions of a tooth paste. It will show you what modern authorities advise. Don't hesitate. This is the dentifrice of today.

Johnny Chuck Gets Into Mischief

What's mischievous to you, to me
Quite innocent may seem to be.
—Johnny Chuck.

JOHNNY CHUCK sat up in the crotch made by the lowest limb of the young apple tree. It was a small tree. Probably he wouldn't have thought of climbing that tree had it not been that Chatterer the Red Squirrel had teased him until he lost his temper. Now as he sat there his temper was still lost. Isn't it funny how people talk about losing a temper? Really they don't mean that at all. No one with a lost temper has really lost it. In fact, the temper is very much in evidence. It was so with Johnny. He ground his teeth, he growled, he snarled up at Chatterer, who was clear at the top of the tree, as far as he could get.

Johnny knew very well that he couldn't climb up there. He was too big. He couldn't hang on to those little branches the way Chatterer did. The knowledge that he couldn't get up there made him more angry than ever. Yes, sir, it did so. It made him so angry that he wasn't satisfied with just grinding his teeth. He felt that he just must bite something. He was biting angry; that's what he was. Folks do get that way sometimes, especially the little folks who wear fur. He felt that if he could sink his teeth into something he would feel better.

Now, there wasn't a thing for Johnny to bite but that young apple tree, so he bit the young apple tree. That is what he did, he bit the young apple tree. He just set his teeth right in and pulled off a big piece of bark. He didn't care much for that bark, although it wasn't bad tasting. He reached around and bit again. He was taking out his anger on that helpless young tree. By the time he felt better he had pulled off bark away around that young tree, and that meant that that young tree would die. You know that is what Peter Rabbit has sometimes done and what Danny Meadow Mouse has sometimes done in winter. They have gnawed the bark all the way around a young tree and the tree died. When bark is taken off a young tree in this way it is said to be girdled, and a girdled tree dies.

So Johnny Chuck had been in the very worst kind of mischief, although he didn't know it. He didn't know that tree would die. Probably he wouldn't have cared if he had known. But he hadn't known. It didn't enter his head that he had really hurt that tree. He had done it more to show Chatterer what he would do to him if he could only catch him. Chatterer continued to cling to the top of the tree and keep his mouth shut and his tongue still.

Johnny Chuck, having taken out on the poor young tree the anger which Chatterer had so provokingly aroused, felt better. He stopped growling. He stopped biting the tree. He stopped grinding his teeth. He looked up at Chatterer and grinned. He saw that Chatterer was anything but comfortable. This is what made him grin. He decided that he would make himself as comfortable as possible and keep Chatterer out there for a while. So there he sat and sat and sat, and up above him Chatterer clung and clung and clung.

They were both there when Farmer Brown's Boy came along. Johnny Chuck saw Farmer Brown's Boy coming. He waited until Farmer Brown's Boy was quite near, then he jumped down and scampered for home as fast as his short legs could take him. The last that Farmer Brown's Boy saw of him was a pair of black heels disappearing through that doorway. As for Chatterer, he jumped, too, as soon as Johnny Chuck had jumped, and away he went, chattering and scolding.

"Now, what," said Farmer Brown's Boy to himself, "was Johnny Chuck doing up in one of my young apple trees?"

THE PASSING SHOW.

JOE CANNON, known as "Uncle Joe,"
At ninety years is not so slow,
In fact he's rather sprightly;
The while he cracks his little joke,
A flock of stogies he can smoke
And wear his honors lightly.

The sage of Danville, Illinois,
Is gay and happy as a boy
And quite a fancy stepper;
In spite of his four-score and ten,
We know a lot of younger men
Who haven't half his pepper.

With vigor unabated.
The Dove of Peace was overworked
Until at last the job he shirked.
And war was reinstated.

And have no time to bother with
The escapades of Babbitt;
But, speaking of the greatest book
We can't see how they overlook

ALEX FLANNIGEN NOTED IN EAST SIDE POLITICS ENDS LIFE

Lawyer, 73 Years Old, Shot Himself to Death at Home, 3137 Market Avenue, East St. Louis.

KEPT FROM SUICIDE EARLIER IN DAY

Picturesque Character Often Clashed With Court, Once for Buying Drinks for Jurymen.

A picturesque carrer in East St. Louis courts and politics for the last 50 years was ended last midnight by the suicide of Alexander Flannigan, 73 years old, an attorney, whose body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found in his home, 3137 Market avenue, by his son, Walter Flannigen, City Comptroller of East St. Louis.

An automatic pistol was found near the chair in which Flannigen was sitting. He left his law office, 103 North Main street, at 3 p. m. yesterday, after telling his clerk, John Kelly, that he was feeling ill. Earlier yesterday, Kelly said, he prevented his employer from taking his own life by taking away a shotgun he was holding between his legs.

Kelly said Flannigen had the shotgun, which he had accepted recently as a fee in a Justice of the Peace court case, pointed at his head and was attempting to pull the trigger with his feet. East St. Louis police and city officials told today of attempts by Flannigen to borrow a weapon from them yesterday. Where he obtained the pistol with which he shot himself has not been learned.

His Colorful Career.

Flannigen was one of the most widely known men in Southern Illinois, because of his colorful career, his unusual appearance and mode of attire and his knack for anecdotes. His son, Walter, said he had "made a million in the practice of law, but had spent or given most all of it away."

A short, stocky man, with a flowing gray mustache, Flannigen was easily distinguished by his frock coat, large black campaign hat, dark trousers and vest, from which dangled a huge gold watch chain.

Flannigen was born in Galena, Ill., and, after being graduated from public school, began teaching school. While teaching he studied law and was admitted to the bar. His entire legal career was spent in East St. Louis.

Noted as Criminal Lawyer.

In his early years as an attorney Flannigen achieved considerable reputation as a criminal lawyer, acting as attorney in some of St. Clair County's most noted murder cases. Of recent years his practice had been chiefly in Justice of the Peace courts and in divorce cases in East St. Louis City Court.

Not all of Flannigen's appearances in court have been as a practicing attorney. Twice he appeared as the defendant on felony charges, but was acquitted each time, and he had been plaintiff or defendant in a score of civil suits.

Frequently Judges reprimanded Flannigen for some practice they considered unethical. On one occasion five jurors were dismissed from the jury panel after an East St. Louis City Court Judge learned they had gone to a saloon to have a drink at the expense of Flannigen, who was representing one side of a case in which they had been impaneled to serve. Flannigen admitted buying drinks for about 25 men who followed him from the courtroom to a nearby saloon but he denied knowing they were jurors.

Flannigen's "Irrigation Fee."

On another occasion one of his clients stated that Flannigen demanded $5 as an "irrigation fee" to buy drinks for the jury.

Flannigen's most recent reprimand was by City Judge William Borders for alleged forgery of the name of a defendant in a divorce suit to an entry of appearance and waiver of jury. This occurred last Jan. 23.

Truth, a plain-spoken publication, was used by Flannigen for about 25 years as his mouthpiece for attacks on various city administrations. Frequently his comments were so bitter that his adversaries attacked Flannigen, and on one occasion, in 1912, he chased Charles H. Lambert, then Mayor of East St. Louis, with a shotgun after an affray. He said afterward the gun was not loaded.

Old Quarrel Patched Up.

Flannigen, while City Treasurer of East St. Louis, more than 20 years ago, fell out with Mayor Stephens, who has been a figure in
